Death Strikes Down Very Prominent Ft. Wayne Man | Captured Liner Steams in Flying German Naval Flag

PERRY A. RANDALL A VICTIM OF APOPLEXY

Leading Citizen, Suddenly Stricken, Expires Aboard Trolley Car While Coming from Suburban Home.

WAS LONG A FORCEFUL AND PROMINENT FIGURE

Perry A. Randall, aged sixty-nine, and for more than a quarter of a century a leading figure in Fort Wayne business and political circles, was stricken with apoplexy as he waited for a car at Taylor and Freeman streets at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning and died while he was being rushed to the city on the car three minutes later.

As lawyer, home-builder, civic patriot, the father of the lake-to-lake canal enterprise and as tireless worker for everything that was for the advancement of Fort Wayne's interests, Mr. Randall has long played a prominent and useful part in Fort Wayne's affairs.

He had walked from his country place at Sprinkle station, one and a half miles from the end of the Taylor street line, in company with Attorney Harry Kennerk, who also resides in the Country club district. It has been the habit of Mr. Randall, Mr. Kennerk and Ernest W. Cook to come to the city together in the morning and often they walked to the city car line.

Falls Suddenly.
Tuesday morning Mr. Randall seemed to be feeling particularly well and walked fairly fast. Mr. Kennerk started behind him, but hurried to catch up with him. When they arrived at Freeman street the car was nearby, and just as it drew up beside them Mr. Randall fell against his friend.

Turning to see what had happened Mr. Kennerk saw him fall on his face. Picking him up, and with the aid of the car crew, he carried the unconscious man to the car and placed him on a seat, ordering the motorman to hurry to town. As the car started an automobile passed and Mr. Kennerk shouted to the driver to get a doctor.

Although Mr. Randall gasped several times after he was placed aboard the car, it was readily seen that he was dying, and when the car reached Broadway there was no sign of life, and the Klachn & Melching undertaking firm was notified.

Wife Reaches Scene.
Shortly after Mr. Randall had started for the city Mrs. Randall followed in a carriage and while the ambulance with his body waited at the corner of Broadway and Taylor streets she drove up and stopped. She was told of his death, and ordered the body removed to the Klachn & Melching establishment.

Mr. Randall had been in ill health for fully a year, and had suffered several severe heart attacks last fall and early in the winter. Just recently he was the victim of an attack of grip, and had been recovered only about two weeks. However, his condition when he left home Tuesday morning seemed to be better than it had been in months.

Native of Indiana.
Perry A. Randall was born at Avilla, Noble county, Indiana, on July 24, 1847. He was the second of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Randall, pioneers in Indiana, Indiana, Indiana. Mr. Randall came to Fort Wayne to attend the high school, and was graduated with the class of 1867, and four years later was graduated from the University of Michigan, after which he entered the law department and received his diploma in 1873.

Here Forty-Three Years.
Shortly after leaving the law school Mr. Randall moved to Fort Wayne, and was admitted to the bar, and soon opened an office and began a general practice. He was one of the most successful young attorneys of the time, and in 1881 he entered a partnership with Will J. Vesey, the firm becoming one of the most prominent legal firms in northern Indiana.

At various times in his legal career Mr. Randall was affiliated with Judge Fall, Gordon W. Seaver, Charles Nixson, and Newton D. Doughman. For years he had offices on Couth street, then in the Bank block, then moved to the Bass block, and finally after the erection of the Shoff building removed his office to that structure.

Had Many Interests.
Probably no man in Fort Wayne had as many varieties of business interests as did Perry A. Randall. For twenty-five years he had been prominent in the upbuilding of this city as a manufacturing and business center, and in the later years of his life he had devoted himself almost exclusively to the development of civic affairs.

LONDON GIVES OUT A DENIAL

Declares Untrue Reports That She Intends to Abandon Allies.

MORE PRECAUTIONS AGAINST ZEPPELINS

French Say They Foiled New German Air Raid on Paris.

Today's War News Given in Summary

One of the most stirring marine happenings of the war developed today with the arrival of the missing British steamer Appam at Newport News with a German prize crew on board. She had been captured off the Canary islands by a German submarine while on her way from Dakar, Africa, for Plymouth, England, the capture being effected on Jan. 15, four days after the Appam left Dakar. The passengers aboard the Appam, which days ago was given up for lost, originally included high colonial officials of the British government. The status of the Appam from the viewpoint of international law has yet to be determined.

Last night's Zeppelin raid on England apparently was not directed at London, the comment that has come through concerning it indicating that the course of the raiders was more to the north, possibly taking in the great manufacturing center of Manchester and apparently being intended to seek out and damage or destroy munitions factories. No details of the damage done have been received.

On the western front the Germans keep up their hammering tactics and announce further gains south of the Somme, where they recently reported having pushed back the French lines along a stretch of some 3,500 yards. The new gain of ground claimed was in the course of hand grenade fighting. Paris declares there were no important developments on the front in France.

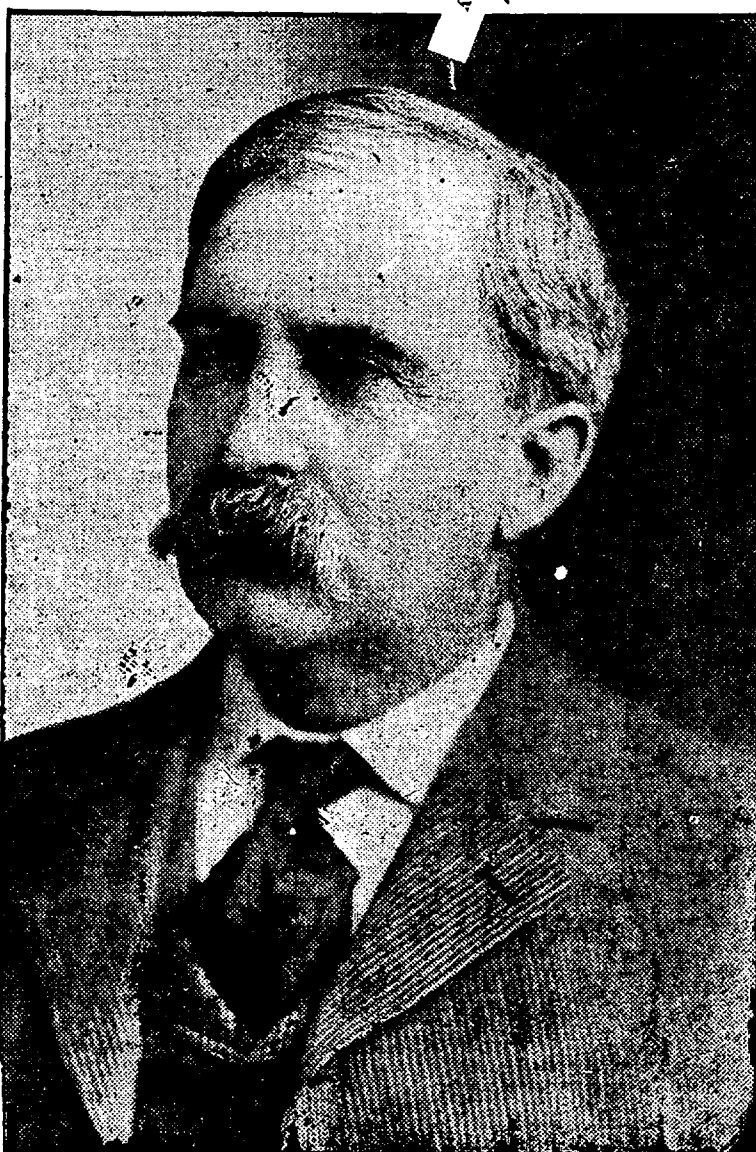

The most recent military movement reported from the Balkans is a German air raid on Saloniki, where a German airship is declared by Berlin to have successfully attacked the entente ships and depots.

Reports attributed to German sources that Great Britain intends to abandon her allies and has made peace overtures to Germany which had been refused are given official denial in a British statement.

London, Feb. 1.—Official denial was made here today of reports attributed to German sources that England intends to abandon her allies and has made peace overtures to Germany. By direction of the naval and military authorities the police today ordered discontinuance of chimes and the striking of hours by public clocks between sunset and sunrise as a precautionary measure against Zeppelin raids.

The territory roughly outlined in the British official statement of last night may be construed as including the city of Manchester, which is thirty miles from the Western coast of England, to the east of Liverpool and 164 miles northwest of London. It is a city of vast manufacturing interests a number of fine public buildings and a population of over 550,000. The statement of the Pall Mall Gazette "that no sounds came within London's listening ears," indicates that the city of London was not visited by the Zeppelins as does the reference of the Globe to the defenselessness of

Came to Fort Wayne Just Fifty Years Ago

HENRY C. SCHRADER.

It was on Feb. 1, 1866—just fifty years ago—Tuesday—that Henry C. Schrader, pioneer Fort Wayne insurance man, came to this city from Warsaw to make his home. "It was an extremely cold day, I remember very well," said Mr. Schrader in recalling the occasion.

His first business undertaking in Fort Wayne was as a boot and shoe merchant, but a few years later embarked in the insurance business, with which he is still actively identified as the head of the firm of Schrader & Wilson.

RANCHES ARE LAID WASTE BY FLOODS

Ruin in San Diego Valley Will Mount Up to Many Millions.

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 1.—When the water drains out of San Diego county's flooded valleys, many ranchmen now camped in the hills who a week ago counted themselves prosperous, will have no ranches to return to. Not only are their dwellings, barns and orchards and live stock gone, but the soil itself has been devastated by erosion and deposits of sand and gravel to such an extent that as one investigator said today, those unfortunate "might as well try to grow crops on a granite slide walk as to think of utilizing their land any longer."

In the San Diego valley between the towns of Foster and Lakeside, 20 miles northeast of this city, fifteen partly improved farms of forty acres and more were ruined and reports of similar disaster were received from other districts. It was announced that the naval authorities are prepared to send further medical supplies into the flooded districts and if necessary to assign more marines and sailors to patrol and relief duty. The total numbers of deaths caused by the flood remains at 65.

AUSTRIANS DID NOT SINK LINER PERSIA

Washington, Feb. 1.—Secretary Lansing today announced the receipt of a dispatch from Ambassador Penfield, at Vienna saying that he had been informed by the foreign office that all Austrian submarines operating in the Mediterranean had reported that none of them was concerned in the sinking of the Peninsular and Oriental liner Persia.

The secretary also announced that he was addressing to Ambassador Morgenthau for presentation to the Turkish government any inquiry as to whether a Turkish submarine was responsible. The state department considers that the statement from Austria-Hungary closes the question of whether a submarine of that nationality sunk the Persia.

DEFENSE MAKES CONCESSIONS.

Consent Agreement is Filed in Cash Register Action.
Cincinnati, Feb. 1.—Practically every change asked for by the United States government in its action against the National Cash Register company, of Dayton, Ohio, under the civil section of the Sherman anti-trust law was agreed to by the defendants today when a consent agreement was filed by attorneys for the defendants and the government in the United States district court here.

54 DIE IN AIR RAID

London, Feb. 1.—Fifty-four persons were killed and 67 injured in last night's Zeppelin raid.

The official statement says bombs were dropped at several towns and in rural districts in Derbyshire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire and Staffordshire. Some damage to property was caused.

The Manchester Guardian says that city was a center of discussion of the Zeppelins last night.

The Evening News points out that last night's raid was the largest which has yet occurred so far as the number of Zeppelins is concerned.

With one exception last night's raid caused the greatest number of casualties of any since the beginning of the war. On the occasion of the last attack on London made on the night of Oct. 13, fifty-five persons were killed and 114 were injured according to an official statement. Unofficial reports said the total was much greater, it being estimated by returning travelers that between 150 and 300 persons were killed.

NEW YORK CENTRAL MERGER HOLDS GOOD

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 1.—The New York Central Railroad company, formed in 1914 by a merger of eleven minor companies, today in the supreme court, won its fight against the opposition to the combination. The merger was opposed by Clarence H. Vannoy and James Politz, of New York, minority stockholders in one of the subsidiary companies. Vannoy and Politz had asked the supreme court to reverse the order of the Ohio public utilities commission, authorizing the issuance of $100,000,000 worth of twenty-six year debenture bonds, by which the merger was to be perfected. The court decided that the question involved was moot, inasmuch as the bonds should be issued and the merger effected.

APPAM, GIVEN UP AS LOST, IS WAR PRIZE

CASE MAY RAISE NEW QUESTION TO PERPLEX

Newport News, Va., Feb. 1.—With the German naval ensign fluttering boldly from her stern and in charge of a German prize crew the British South African liner Appam, given up for lost, took refuge in Hampton Roads today with the story of seven vessels destroyed by German sea raiders off the African coast.

The Appam was captured off the Canary islands on January 15 by a German raider four days after she had sailed from Dakar, British West Africa, for Plymouth, England.

Whether the captor was a German U boat or a hitherto unreported German auxiliary cruiser is undetermined. From what was learned by some of the officials who boarded the Appam it is believed that some steamer acting as a German auxiliary off the African coast took the British liner and put the prize crew aboard. This view is supported by the fact that a submarine could hardly have spared a lieutenant and such a large crew to a prize.

Notable as Sea Exploit.
Lieut. Berge, of the German navy, placed on the Appam when she was captured, brought in the prize, eluding the cordon of British cruisers across the Atlantic and adding to the historic chapter of German exploits at sea a chapter to rank with the adventures of the Emden, the Prince Eitel Friedrich and the Kron Prinz Wilhelm.

There are 450 persons aboard the ship including 130 survivors of seven ships sunk by the raider which captured the Appam, 20 German civilians being transported from Africa to England to be placed in detention camps; 115 members of the Appam's crew, 155 original passengers on the Appam and the prize crew of 22.

Notables Among Them.
Many of the passengers on the Appam are women and children. There are also several high British officials who were returning to England from Africa. There are also four wounded soldiers, taken from one of the sunken ships, which resisted capture and was shelled.

According to the information gleaned from those who talked with Lieut. Berge the Appam was captured without any show of resistance on January 15, the day that British news reports said wireless communication with the vessel suddenly ceased. A prize crew was placed on board and the same day the submarine which captured the Appam gave chase to another British steamer bound for Australia with a cargo of meat. The meat ship gave battle, was captured and sunk, after a large portion of her cargo had been taken off.

The names of the steamers sunk by the raider which captured the Appam are given as the Trader, Arthur, Corbridge, Ariabena, Brommondy, Farrington-Ford and Clan McFarlane. It is also reported now that the raider was the German cruiser Mowe, instead of a submarine, although this is not confirmed.

Six More Taken Rapidly.
Six more vessels then were taken in rapid succession. The crew were taken on board the Appam, which ran down west across the Atlantic for Hampton Roads.

WILSON ADDS MORE STOPS TO HIS TRIPS

Four Illinois Cities Hear Him on His Run Across State.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—President Wilson left Chicago at 10:01 o'clock this morning to continue his speaking tour of the middle west. He said he felt full of energy and much invigorated. The trip to the station was made in a closed automobile on his physician's advice. An escort of mounted police and a detachment of motorcycle police accompanied the president to the station. Only a small crowd witnessed the departure of the president. Mr. Wilson stepped to the rear platform as the train pulled out and raised his hat in salute to the crowd.

ASSERTS MRS. MOHR'S TEARS WERE SINCERE

Providence, R. I., Feb. 1.—Miss Amy Nichols, who lives in the house of Mrs. Elizabeth F. Mohr, on trial for the murder of her husband, testified today that the night the doctor was shot Mrs. Mohr "cried and it was sincere."

Rev. Wm. McNamara said he asked George W. Heals, Dr. Mohr's negro chauffeur, who turned state's evidence, if Mrs. Mohr had anything to do with the murder and that Heals replied, "I don't know; she never said anything to me about it."

Attorneys for Mrs. Mohr rested at 10:42 o'clock and the defense of Brown and Spellman, two negroes accused with Mrs. Mohr, was begun.

ROMANCES OF KIDNAPING.

Preble Lad of 13 Tells Wild Tale to Exterminate His Running Away.

Bluffton, Ind., Feb. 1.—Delmer Sheets, 13, a son of S. P. Sheets, of Preble, ran away from home and walking along the C. & E. railroad, passed through Tocsin and reached Kingsland, and then having satisfied his desire to see the world, started back home. When he reached the Elmer Bryan home, near Tocsin, in the afternoon, he stopped and asked for something to eat. He was recognized by a telephone message summoned his father, who took him home. His parents and the neighbors had become alarmed and were organizing to search the woods. Fearful of admitting the truth at first, the boy told a story of having been kidnapped by men in a buggy, and he described minutely the imaginary outfit. The Bluffton officers were called to help search for the supposed kidnapers, and they suggested questioning the boy more closely, and he admitted the kidnapping story with fiction. He had gone to the woods with timber cutters and had wandered away and had reached the railroad and kept walking until he became afraid to go farther.

CLUB WOMEN WILL REGULATE DRESS

Federation to Put Ban on All the Extremes in Fashion.

New York, Feb. 1.—Extreme fashions in women's dress will be one of the most discussed topics to be considered at the general federation of women's clubs of America, to be held here next May, says Mrs. Wm. Grant Brown, chairman of the local board of the federation.

Ten thousand delegates will take back to their homes a concrete idea of dress reform that will be a blessing to the whole country, said Mrs. Brown. "We believe in the decollete gown so far as it is a mark of art, but it should be modest and never sensational. There has grown up a custom of dress for women that is simply frightful. The extreme split skirt that shocked us once, has given place to the extreme split waist. Evening gowns worn nowadays by women who probably mean well, but are foolish, are utterly disgraceful, being out in some cases almost to the waist line. These women do not do this to attract attention, but because they are possessed by the idea that to be partly draped is fashionable."

"General club women want to establish a general rule against indecent costumes in evening dress and a custom of making women's gowns conform to the following four rules. First, individuality, every woman trying to express her own ideas. Second, modesty, not puritanism, but a decent regard for what is proper. Third, good taste, a degree of restraint in the expression of individualism. Fourth, appropriateness. Young girls should not be dressed like matrons. Old women should not dress like girls."

The production is equivalent to about 115 gallons of milk per capita population. In the north Atlantic states the per capita production is put at 71 gallons; south Atlantic, 66; north central, 188; south central, 88; far west, 188.

After confessing to the police that they were guilty of robbing Mrs. Dora Fasnought, residing on the Taylor street road west of the city, Monday morning, Roy Potter, aged 13 years, and Clem Harshbarger, aged 14 years, were arraigned in the city court Tuesday morning on charges of petit larceny and were certified to the juvenile court. They were turned over to Probation Officer W. I. Work, who later surrendered the lads to the custody of their parents with orders that the boys should be presented in the juvenile court Saturday morning for hearing before Judge John W. Eggesman. The Potter and Harshbarger lads, with another boy of their age, saw Mrs. Fasnought driving into the city Monday morning and at the Jefferson school building asked her for a ride. She let them get into her wagon and ride down town. After they had left her she missed her pocketbook containing $12. She reported to the police and a few hours later, working on descriptions given of the boys, Detective Sergeant Peter Junk arrested Potter and Harshbarger. The boys confessed and took the officer to two different places where they had concealed the stolen money in allers down town. Both lads have been in trouble before for stealing.

Other City Court Cases.

Jim Moore, who flirts with trouble whenever he communes with booze, was in on a drunk charge and was continued until Wednesday under $100 bond. His wife asked the police to take him into custody because he had been drinking hard.

MOTORIST FLEES WITH FINE.

Report was made Monday afternoon to the police here by Miss Mary Kohne, of Decatur, that after she had dropped from an automobile her handbag containing $4, near the Butler brickyard on the Lincoln highway, another motorist who came along picked it up and drove rapidly away.

DEMENTED WOMAN USES KNIFE

Clara Burritt Slightly Injures Her Brother Following Quarrel.

Steps probably will be taken to have an inquiry legally made into the mental condition of Clara Burritt, aged 39, who stabbed her brother, George Burritt, in the shoulder with a knife following a quarrel at the family home, 1109 Erie street, at 7 o'clock Monday morning. An investigation by Police Captain Kelly disclosed that Burritt and his wife had been having trouble and that Miss Burritt, believing her brother's wife to be in peril, seized a butcher knife and attacked him. A gash several inches long was inflicted in Burritt's shoulder and the attention of a surgeon was necessary. Burritt, who is employed by the Fort Wayne Printing company, refused to have his sister arrested, owing to her mental state, but said he would confer with Prosecuting Attorney Frank A. Emrick concerning her.

HORSE CAUSES A WRECK.

After making an inquiry into the circumstances the police Monday night refused to arrest William Weissenburger, residing on rural route 13, when they learned it was a balky horse and not his own negligence that had been at fault for a collision between Weissenburger's rig and an automobile driven by Frank Oliver, 539 Montgomery street. The collision occurred on New Haven avenue when the Weissenburger animal balked in the center of the street and refused to move. Oliver failed to see that the horse and buggy obstructed the road and crashed into the outfit. Oliver reported the accident to police headquarters and wanted Weissenburger arrested, but this Sergeant Zwick and Blum, who investigated the affair, declined to do so, advising Oliver that his proper recourse was in civil action for damages. The combined efforts of half a dozen men were required to remove the refractory horse from the center of the street.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING

Proverbs 28:1-16.

- 1 The wicked flee when no man pursueth: but the righteous are bold as a lion.
- 2 For the transgression of a land many are the princes thereof: but by a man of understanding and knowledge the state thereof shall be prolonged.
- 3 A poor man that oppreseth the poor is like a sweeping rain which leaveth no food.
- 4 They that forsake the law praise the wicked: but such as keep the law contend with them.
- 5 Evil men understand not judgment: but they that seek the Lord understand all things.
- 6 Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich.
- 7 Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son: but he that is a companion of riotous men shameth his father.
- 8 He that by usury and unjust gain increaseth his substance, he shall gather it for him that will pity the poor.
- 9 He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.
- 10 Whoso causeth the righteous to go astray in an evil way, he shall fall himself into his own pit: but the upright shall have good things in possession.
- 11 The rich man is wise in his own conceit; but the poor that hath understanding searcheth him out.
- 12 When righteous men do rejoice, there is great glory: but when the wicked rise, a man is hidden.
- 13 He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.
- 14 Happy is the man that feareth always: but he that hardeneth his heart shall fall into mischief.
- 15 As a roaring lion, and a raging bear; so is a wicked ruler over the poor people.
- 16 The prince that wanteth understanding is also a great oppressor: but he that hateth covetousness shall prolong his days.

Indiana's Dependent Children.

An interesting glimpse into Indiana's work in caring for its dependent children is supplied in an extract from the forthcoming report of the board of state charities, and to those who have given the matter only casual attention it will be a revelation as to the magnitude of this branch of the public work.

It is now slightly more than eighteen years since the board adopted the plan of placing these children in suitable homes wherever such homes could be found. In that time 3,434 children have been placed, and of these 2,609, or 75.9 per cent., have remained off the public support, finding permanent homes until reaching the age where they were able to take up life's battle upon their own account. This is certainly ample justification for the painstaking endeavor and the expense attendant upon the work.

The duty of the state does not end with placing the children in these homes, however, for agents of the board visit them at frequent intervals and exercise a watchful supervision over the care they are being given and the treatment they are accorded. The agent of the state board, by way of example, spent a total of 1,672 3/4 days in the field during the year, visiting children, investigating applications, placing children in homes, inspecting orphan asylums and conferring with public officials. Four thousand and fifty-two children were visited, and of these, 3,895, or 96.1 per cent., were found to be doing well or fairly well. The remaining 157, or 3.9 per cent., were found in an unsatisfactory condition, and proper action was taken in each case looking to the return of the child to the agency responsible for it. Thirty-two other visits were made to addresses given, without finding the children reported.

During the twelve months homes were found for 215 children who had not previously been placed by the agents, and 183 children, formerly placed, were transferred to other homes, making a total of 398 placements and replacements. One hundred and eleven children were returned to counties. The applications investigated numbered 439, and all but ninety-three, or 21.1 per cent., were approved.

Visits to the various orphan asylums numbered 224, to the county poor asylums five, and to county officials 234. Special items of work not coming under any of the classifications given numbered 546. These included investigations into complaints, reports of alleged mistreatment and visits to interested citizens.

The cost of the field work of the department, including the salaries of the agents while engaged therein, amounted to $11,691.52. The traveling expense of the children placed by the agents amounted to $691.53, making the total cost of the agency field work $12,383.05. The total expenses of the state agency amounted to $15,679.41.

It is doubtful, too, if the state is anywhere engaged in a more worthy or beneficent work than it is doing in caring for these dependents and giving a chance to those who otherwise would not have it.

Sixty-seven members of the Ford peace party have returned to America, and declared that "autocratic leadership" was responsible for the failure of the expedition to carry out its original plans. It will be noted, however, that neither Mr. Ford himself nor the members of the permanent committee who yet remain abroad to continue negotiations have yet admitted that the expedition has failed. That being true, it should be considered that those who are admitting failure are doing so solely and only on their own account—which they perhaps suspect is the only portion of the endeavor that really amounts to much.

Senator Harding, of Ohio, in introducing Charles W. Fairbanks to a Washington audience, declared that Ohio would be greatly pleased if Mr. Fairbanks were chosen as the republican nominee for president. Mr. Burton, of Ohio, who also has aspirations in that direction, has either been too badly stunned to comment on the Harding utterance or his remarks have been placed under the ban by the censor.

Chairman Reiter is another who refuses to believe the progressive party in Allen county is defunct. Moreover, he has called a meeting of the party to prepare for the nomination of a full county ticket and other tangible evidence that, despite some rather rude jolts which have been sustained of late, the Cause still lives.

Of course, if those flood prevention petitions could be presented to you just at the time the high water is most threatening, you'd sign 'em. As is often the case, the fatal weakness of the psychological moment is that it isn't long enough.

THE NINETY AND NINE

(Detroit News)

One out of every hundred persons in the state of New York was convicted of crime during a year.

Justice, as embodied in statutes, necessarily depends largely on chance and circumstance for its administration, and to what extent the ninety and nine in New York or in Michigan, should congratulate themselves or their lucky stars for being free of the taint of discovered crime we cannot attempt to estimate.

Social position renders many immune to the temptations that lay others by the heels, or saves them from the penalties of wrongdoing. Getting caught, so far as the records indicate, should stand above every other offense, since there is a very considerable proportion of open crimes for which no one is punished. To the list of "accidental offenders" should be attached a list of those accidentally caught and convicted.

The police attitude of society toward the criminal is singularly inconsistent. He is studied as a sociological problem, or passed by with indifference and contempt. If he has fallen from a high altitude he is looked upon with interest, but still regarded as totally apart from law-abiding humanity.

It is a wholesome thing for the ninety and nine to recollect occasionally that the convict is simply a human being, not much coarser or more sinful than the run of free citizens. His weakness, his follies, his blunders have caught up with him—that's all.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.—Advertisement.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

When cross, feverish and sick give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advertisement.

EVERY NATION ITS OWN ENEMY

(San Francisco Bulletin)

It used to be estimated that one-third of the income of the English people was taken by one-thirtieth of the population. Careful investigations indicated that 30 per cent. of the city population did not regularly get enough to eat. In the years just preceding the war the country's internal affairs appeared to be moving toward a crisis. Lloyd George's reforms, hateful as they were to the landed aristocracy, were really an attempt to backfire against revolution.

There can be no doubt that England had within her own ocean-bordered boundaries the causes of her disease and the material for her cure. Her national wealth was sufficient, if it had been wisely expended; her people were still fundamentally sound, and her climate developed energy and endurance. She was her own worst enemy. The German menace, however dire and dour, was in comparison almost academic.

Events have now forced England to disregard her serious internal dangers in order to give all her strength to meet a far less serious external danger. The only hope of millions of her people is that war conditions will compel social readjustments which aristocratic greed would have been able to forestall in time of peace. But this is a roundabout and costly way of doing justice, and justice after the war may be as bitter in substance as injustice was before it.

What has been said of England is true in varying degrees of every country in Europe, not excepting Germany—the internal dangers faced by all these nations were more imminent than those against which their vast armies were directed.

If the United States will abstain from making the same mistake she should be, without force of arms or ruinous trade competition, pacemaker for the world civilization of this century. Americans need only put their own house in order to maintain a degree of national vitality which will make a small armament incidental, and a great armament superfluous.

IF BACKACHE OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coats and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

SEEK BURIED TREASURE

Some Lively Digging in Texas to Recover $2,000,000.

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 1.—A group of Dallas men have excavated an immense hole in the remains of an old cave near the Buzzard Spring road, near the Wahoo club lake, in the belief that they are about to find buried treasure. The amount has been estimated as high as $2,000,000. T. B. Stacey, organizer of the party, says that ten years ago a negro woman, then 104 years old, told him of the treasure. He leased the land and has often searched for the treasure. A traction engine and other machinery are now being used in the hunt.

The negro woman said that she had once been held captive and forced to cook for a band of highwaymen who made the cave their hiding place and the storehouse for their plunder. The loot was placed in kettles and chests and buried.

CREST OF THE FLOOD HAS BEEN REACHED

Rivers Go to Twenty-Foot Stage and Then Start to Recede.

After reaching a maximum stage of a few inches over the twenty-foot mark the high waters that for a time threatened to do much damage in Fort Wayne began to recede Tuesday morning and, according to Prognosticator Patrick McDonough, all further danger has passed.

Lowlands are inundated. Many basements and cellars of residences are full of water. Frantic efforts were made Monday by residents in threatened districts to stack furniture preparatory to a hasty exit should the stage of the river become more dangerous.

A temperature of ten above zero Tuesday morning came as a Godsend and probably prevented a flood similar to the high waters experienced in this section in 1913.

City officials have kept a vigil and have been prepared to take "radical measures" to ameliorate the dangers. Absolutely no damage was done to Lake side and so far as is known no cellars in that part of the city had any water in them. The pumps again did valiant service.

Hundreds of acres of land along the rivers are covered with water, doing considerable damage as a result. Many country roads are also impassable.

Tracks Completely Submerged.

The waters have completely submerged the tracks of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company at Wabash, necessitating the transferring of all passengers. Reports from Wabash Tuesday morning, however, were to the effect that the water is receding rapidly. The traction company's bridge over Wild Cat creek one mile east of Lafayette is not damaged in the least as was feared Monday.

A conductor on the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company reported that the water at Wabash was higher Tuesday morning than on Monday evening.

SUBMARINE K-5 IS REPORTED AS SAFE

Missing Undersea Boat is Steaming Ahead to Key West.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The submarine K-5 is safe and proceeding under her own steam for Key West, Fla., according to a naval wireless message received at the navy department today from Captain Simpson of the torpedo boat destroyer Sterrett. The message which came by way of Key West, said:

"At 3:55 a. m. K-5 five miles southeast of Fowey Rock steaming south at ten knots. No casualties and no assistance required."

Fowey Rock referred to in the message is a lighthouse and is located about ten miles from Miami. Navy department officials estimated that under the speed the K-5 is making she should reach Key West about 6 p. m. today. The Sterrett was one of the destroyers ordered by Secretary Daniels to search for the K-5.

The K-5 has been making good time on her southward voyage without escort. Anxiety was felt for her safety as she had become detached from the tender Tallahassee and her three sister ships Sunday morning in a dense fog off Cape Romaine, S. C. The Tallahassee and the other three submarines entered Charleston harbor yesterday and reported the K-5 had become separated from them during the fog and that efforts to locate her by wireless had failed. Several torpedo boat destroyers, two coast guard cutters, a lighthouse tender and a number of other vessels were sent on search. She carries a crew of 28 officers and men commanded by Lieut. R. K. Grady.

FLOOD MENACE NOW PASSING

Gold Wave Vastly Improves Conditions All Over Indiana.

THE WATERS HAVE BEGUN TO REcede

Levee at Lafayette is Carried Away--Part of City Inundated.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 1.—Flood conditions here and in most sections of the state were greatly improved today, due in a large measure, to the cold wave which arrived last night, bringing clear weather in its wake. Although the high waters had begun to recede here and in practically every other section of the state except the southwestern where the Wabash joins the Ohio river, it will be several days before conditions are normal, as a large number of bridges and culverts were washed out.

The Ohio river reached a stage of 33.7 feet at Evansville this morning but it was believed that it would do little damage on the Indiana side. Kentucky towns along Green river however, were said to be in grave danger.

The Wabash river is rising from Lafayette down and is spreading over the bottom lands in the lower stretch. It carried out a levee in Lafayette last night and spread over part of the city. Parts of Terre Haute and Taylorville just across the Wabash river from Terre Haute, were under water. It was believed the crest in the Wabash would be reached at Lafayette late today.

AT LAFAYETTE.

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 1.—With the Wabash at the 25 foot level the water continued to rise slowly today. The flood crossed the Brown street levee here during the night and destroyed a large section of it. The levee was destroyed during the flood of 1913. Several buildings in the lowlands are under water. The sudden drop in temperature last night tended to stop the rapid rise of the water and the crest of the flood is expected to be reached late this afternoon. The rise today was about one inch an hour.

AT TERRE HAUTE.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 1.—Many families in Taylorville, West Terre Haute and the northwestern section of this city were leaving their homes this morning as the Wabash river continued to rise. At 7 a. m. the river had reached the twenty-two foot stage, six feet above flood stage and the lowlands to the north, west and south of the city were inundated. Up to the present, however, the financial losses have not been heavy. Some live stock has been washed away and a few bridges washed out, but in most cases farmers were able to move the greater part of their live stock to higher ground.

The weather bureau predicts a twenty-five foot stage here, which will inundate the greater part of Taylorville and threaten the railroad grades west of the city.

ALONG THE OHIO.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 1.—Although the Ohio river today registered 33.7 feet at this point and was still rising at all points in the local district it is thought improbable inconvenience from flood water will be felt here. Alarming reports came today from the Wabash, White and Patoka river bottoms, all of which are rising and threatening serious floods. Serious conditions threaten Kentucky towns around which Green river is rising with its flood held back by high water in the Ohio river. Reports from Grayville, Ill., say farmers have been forced out of the bottoms and the Illinois Central railroad tracks near Bon Pas creek flooded. The Wabash river is tearing at the Big Four embankments near Grayville, Ill., where the Brevoort levee, twelve miles above the city, has gone out. At Hazelton the C. & E. I. railroad is still fighting to save the fill from the White river flood.

STEARNS ONCE MORE FAILS TO END LIFE

After having failed once more in an effort to close his earthly accounts by suicide, Charles Stearns, aged 67 years, and residing with his wife a short distance from the city on the Hicksville road, is in the county jail and closely watched. His latest essay to die, which was of a half dozen he has made within a year, was made Monday night at his home, after he had attempted a murderous assault on his wife, whom he had threatened to kill. Mrs. Stearns escaped through a kitchen window and when she returned to the house she found her husband avidly devouring a sandwich made of bread plentifully plastered with arsenic. She hastened to the homes of neighbors and Dr. E. H. Kruse was called. The physician forced an emetic into Stearns and relieved him of the poison. Later Sheriff A. C. Gladioux arrived and took Stearns to jail. Stearns is a retired painter.

James M. Barrett, president of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, Sam W. Greenland, general manager, and H. E. Vordermark, auditor, were in Indianapolis Tuesday, on business connected with the traction company.

"Judge me by what I have done," said the all-conquering Napoleon. Judge this great store by what it has accomplished in its half century of public service. Foster's.

Mr. Alden has a three months' holiday from his work as forester for the Canadian Pacific railway, the only railway company that employs a forester, so the visit here will be one of some weeks. Mrs. Alden's girlfriends will also be interested in knowing that she has been in New York city for three months taking a course in domestic science at Columbia university and will complete the course on Feb. 5.—Mrs. Alden taught in the public schools of this city prior to her marriage. This will be the first visit of any length of time of either Mr. or Mrs. Alden since their marriage to their old home and their many friends will give them a warm welcome. AT KEITH PALACE

A SLICKER WITH THE CARDS.

Leipzig, at the New Palace, Has a Wonderful Pair of Hands.

This is to be Elks' night at the New Palace, and the members of the anti-elk family tonight are going to see the most wonderful pair of hands that ever flicked a card out of a pack. These hands are attached to Leipzig, the European conjurer, whose mystifying and bewildering card tricks are so amazing that his audiences laugh at their own confusion, as he performs trick after trick, every one of them new to Fort Wayne.

The Randalls, a man and woman, are a team or rifle and revolver experts that do some of the greatest trick shooting you'll see in many a day. They do several difficult mirror tricks and close with a clever idea, playing a melody on a suspended xylophone, using bullets from magazine rifles to strike the keys. These two acts precede the musical hit, the Four Huskies, easily the best musical comedy of the season. Its sing-dance, girly and funny, with Ralph Whitehead in a congenial role, that of Jack Mortimer, the dissolute, but handsome young fellow who's too busy dodging the police to think of getting married, even to so pretty a trick as Phyllis Van Courtland (Betty Caldwell). The book is well above the average, while William Friedlander has given to the score some of his best lyrics.

AT THE TEMPLE.

The great western play, "Under Arizona Skies," which is being presented the first half of the week by the Temple players, is creating unusual interest among the theater-going public. "Under Arizona Skies" is a melodrama in four acts and is presented by Nelson Compton and a cast of characters composed of the well known Temple players, and in which Miss Ethel Hemerick, the leading lady, plays the part of the fat woman, known as Pepita.

The first act shows the ranch house and the Arrow ranch, the second act shows the shelter on the boundary of Arrow ranch and the third and fourth acts are the same as far as scenes are concerned as the first.

Thursday the Temple players will present "East Lynne," by request of Temple patrons, who have not had an opportunity of seeing the play in Fort Wayne for some time.

"Under Arizona Skies," being played tonight and tomorrow night, is being substituted for "The Vampire." Manager Bramer was unable to procure the skit he had intended and the change was necessary. "The Vampire" will appear later.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"LET KATY DO IT."

Thrilling Drama With Jane Grey as Star at Jefferson.

The attraction at the Jefferson today is an unusual one in name as well as theme, "Let Katy Do It." A thrilling tale of love and adventure that takes you from the quiet of a New England homestead to the dangers of a savage mining camp, with such a delightful plot that interest never falters. It will furnish an entertainment the equal of which you have seldom had the pleasure of witnessing. The bravery and daring of seven little youngsters, the charm of Jane Grey and the fine acting of fully magnificent form an unusually attractive production.

Sam Bernard.

In "The Great Pearl Tangle" Sam Bernard, the well known comedian, makes his first picture appearance and acquires himself in his usual humorous style, creating much merriment with his Bernadisms.

Pauline Frederick.

Tomorrow this famous beauty will make her appearance in "The Spider," a Paramount production of unusual quality. Miss Frederick plays a dual role in this play.

Today Helen Gibson, in "Tapped Wires," will be shown for the last time. In this one reel thriller Helen escapes death by leaping from an auto that plunges down a high embankment, carrying with it the three hold-up ruffians to their death many feet below. Tomorrow and Thursday is Bushman days at the Grand, featuring Francis N. Bushman in a three act drama, "In the Plum Tree." This is another prize mystery story, published in the Ladies' World, showing many thrilling incidences of love, romance and war, with a climax that is unique.

ITALY TURNING

High Price of Coal Now

Proving Serious Problem in Rome.

Rome, Jan. 15.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—With American coal scarce because of the ship shortage and selling here from $25 to $40 a ton, according to quality, the solution of the problem of securing coal in quantity and at reasonable prices has become one of the most pressing public and domestic questions in Italy.

While the situation will finally result in governmental measures for wider use of water power, popularly known as "white coal," to secure heat, light and motor power, pending such action various temporary measures are either being urged or adopted. In a current issue of the organ of the minister of public works, Italian cities are urged to save coal by burning fewer street lights at night, following the example of London, Paris and Venice, and force their citizens to go to bed early.

There is no doubt that the two gas companies of Rome would approve such a war measure. One of the curious results of high coal prices is that in Rome the losers are the gas companies, not the consumers.

It is estimated that the gas companies have already lost 3,000,000 lire, as a result of their contracts with the city, made in peace times, to furnish gas at 16 centimes the metric cube, where it is costing them 32 centimes to furnish it.

From the point of view of the poor people, Rome is thus the most fortunate of European capitals. London, Paris, Venice, may turn off their lights as a precaution against aeroplane attack, but in Rome, where no such fear is entertained by the military authorities, the streets are as brilliantly lighted as ever they were at the height of the tourist season and the Romans continue to find happiness and warmth in late street promenades and coffee drinking on the sidewalk cafes.

While coal may soon be famine prices, the cost of gas, which is made of coal, cannot increase, under the city contract, so the people, rich and poor alike, are installing gas heaters as fast as possible.

FIND BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN

Boys Make Discovery Near Bedford That Recalls Tragedy

Bedford, Ind., Feb. 1.—The nude body of a man was found by boys near White river at a point across the river from Ft. Riter. The body was in such a condition that identification is impossible. Some persons believe the body is that of Lafayette Squires, who supposedly was drowned in March, 1913, when hunting with Tilden Smith, a druggist. This theory is not generally believed, however. Squires lived in a hut near Ft. Riter and little was known about him. Smith's body was found, but that of Squires was never recovered, which caused some persons to believe that Squires had fled. The finding of the body has recalled the tragedy.

WHAT'S DOING IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

THE MINK IS A RISKY FELLOW

Runs Dangers to Get Food and is Easily Trapped.

(By Morris Ackerman.) One of the main fur hunters found practically all over the American continent is the mink. The animal is of the weasel family, but unlike the weasel, spends most of his time in water.

Being a good swimmer, the mink seeks food from water, eating fish, frogs, crawfish, mice and rats. Muskrats, rabbits and even banyard fowl are often his prey, too.

The home of the mink is generally burrowed in stream banks. As a rule the animal is not hard to trap. He takes chances with an untrapped trap in his anxiety to find food.

It is well to know something of his habits before placing traps.

The mink rambles up and down streams, investigating hollow logs, holes under roots of fallen trees, crevices in rocks. As a rule he almost always follows the same route. When a trapper finds the path he knows where to make a set.

Place a trap at the entrance of any of the places usually visited by mink or make an enclosure of sticks, covering it with brush and placing the bait inside.

Another way is to set a trap under water along a steep bank, or near a rock, placing the bait about eighteen inches above the set.

BLUFFTON AND ZANESVILLE MEET.

The Bluffton Maroons and the Zanesville five meet at the Concordia gym on next Thursday evening to decide the championship of Wells county. Zanesville is the best drawing card in basketball around these parts and the clean, snappy game put up by Everett Scott's delegation makes Bluffton a favorite too.

There ought to be a good crowd out as the teams will put up a terrific fight and it will be interesting. Zanesville discovered last week that it could put up a clean brand of basketball and get away with it, and there are rumors along the south county line that it will repeat.

The degree staff of Fort Wayne lodge, No. 14, I. O. O. F., will give a dance in the hall at Calhoun and Wayne streets Thursday evening.

WHICH PROVES THAT SOME WOMEN HAVE QUEER TASTES

Women of New York have become enthusiastic about wrestling since the game was revived there by an international tournament. Each night bouts are held at the Manhattan opera house, women, elegantly gowned, attend and streets in the vicinity are lined with limousines.

When Joe Stecher appeared in New York for the first time, meeting the Masked Marvel, there were 2,000 women among the 8,500 persons who saw the match.

PROSPECTS FOR INDUSTRIAL BASEBALL LEAGUE THIS SEASON BRIGHTEN

Following the suggestion on the sport page of the Saturday Sentinel that a shop league should be reorganized to play Saturday afternoon ball through the coming season, several enthusiasts have stepped forward to assist in the forming of the organization.

Among them is B. H. Hamm, for several years manager of the Pennsylvania shop team, an organization that continued successfully after the shop league had broken up, and has played regularly for the past six years.

Bowlers', Bass', Western Gas and Electric works are among the teams yet to be heard from, and it is hoped that some fan or fans in each of these shops will stir up enough interest to get a representative to a meeting to be called in the near future.

One hears that the shop league will not pay because it once broke up. But even in professional ball it is a good thing to give a town a rest now and then, and when the game is revived it starts with a renewed enthusiasm. This is the year of all years for shop league ball and a Saturday afternoon league should be a go from the start.

OVER 5,000,000 HAVE SEEN FILM

"Birth of a Nation" Sets a Record of 804 Consecutive Performances.

New York, Feb. 1.—D. W. Griffith's wonder spectacle "The Birth of a Nation" has just closed at the Library Theater the most remarkable run ever known in the history of the American drama and which also sets a new high record for long runs in New York city. The great production was presented in New York for 804 consecutive performances to a gross attendance of 872,000 people. James Metcalfe, the master critic of Life, estimates from these figures that one in every four of the available theatergoers of the metropolis saw Griffith's masterpiece before its New York run ended.

The former record of the New York stage was held by Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown," which ended a run of 670 performances in August, 1893. Prior to that Henry E. Dixey in "Adonis," held the record for 654 performances.

The nearest approach to this was the record of Laurette Taylor for 604 performances in 1912-14. The prices for the Griffith spectacle, which was the first combination of the photo-drama and musical spectacle ever shown to the world, ranged from 25 cents to $2.00. The average paid attendance was about 78 cents per capita, making a total gross receipt for the New York run of over $600,000. This is the greatest take for this space of time ever known by any theatrical offering in the world as these figures have been amplified by record breaking runs simultaneously in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Atlantic City, N. J. About this time and since, twelve companies have been touring the Griffith direction to enormous success, and gross weekly receipts often exceeding $125,000. In addition the spectacle has a run of 22 weeks in Los Angeles and 17 weeks in San Francisco to its credit and has turned its 100th performance in London, England. Over 5,000,000 people have seen the production.

F. Vance Veith holding little Cameron C. Coffey, champion swimmer, who picture gives an excellent idea of the size of the water prodigy. Veith is the child's coach.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 1.—Cameron C. Coffey, four years old, is a human fish. He began his career in aquatics at the age of two and has now mastered all of the difficult swimming strokes and most of the fancy dives. He is champion child swimmer of the world.

Here is his water repertoire: Back stroke. Breast stroke. American crawl. Overarm side stroke. Spiral crawl.

Master Coffey also holds the high diving record for kids. His highest dive was 25 feet. The boy's time for the 50 is 1 minute 23 seconds. He did this recently in the tank of the Los Angeles Athletic club, where he is an honorary member, swimming the American crawl for the entire distance. He won a silver medal.

"I got ten medals now," said the youngster, as he pulled himself out of the tank. "I got two silver cups, too, and nine bathing suits besides. And I can count to a hundred if I want, and I can count, too—if I want."

When he swam his fifty yard race against time, his daddy went out of the plunge so that the diminutive merman couldn't see him.

"He always does better when I don't watch him," explained the father.

Cameron Coffey does not require a bathing suit. He swims just as well in all his clothes as he does in no clothes at all.

He took part in a water carnival recently in which he was required to rescue a tiny girl of his own age, who had supposedly fallen in the water. He answered her by plunging into the tank with all his clothes on and pulling the little girl out to safety.

"Some swimmer, this boy; he's part duck and you simply can't drown him," says F. Vance Veith, swimming instructor at the Los Angeles Athletic club, who taught the child what he knows about watercraft.

ACTIVE TURNERS MEET CARDINALS TONIGHT

The Active Turners and the Cardinals meet tonight at the Turner gym on West Superior street, in what promises to be a mighty lively going. MAN AND DOLLAR EMIGRANT BASIS

Falling Off in Immigration Means Loss of Many Millions.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 1.—Speaking before the convention of the Society to Eliminate Economic Causes of War in Faneuil Hall, Walter Wood, a Philadelphia machinery manufacturer, said the United States is losing $349,000,000 a year, or, rather, failing to gain that amount, through the drop in immigration caused by the war.

He said, in part:

"The total excess of the incoming over the outgoing in the year, ending June 30, 1915, was but 122,600. This is but 17 per cent. of the smallest figures of any of the past nine years.

"It seems unnatural, and in some degree shocking, to place a value upon a human being as a machine for producing wealth, but so long as the welfare of the world is dependent upon the industry of its people, so long will this value be real.

"Some of us can recollect, how, but a little over 50 years ago, a likely colored woman—especially if two or three young children were thrown in—would bring on an auction block from $400 to $500. A stalwart male negro worker would fetch from $250 to $300, and when they were skillful in trades, from $800 to $1,000.

"But more to the point is the cost of raising the newcomer from his childhood to his productive age.

"For feeding, clothing, and the other necessities of life, even in a country where existence is the cheapest, we would hardly calculate such cost as less than $700 per unit.

"The country losing this emigrant loses this sum of money. The country receiving him gains that value without any payment.

"On the basis of this value, namely, $300 per head, the largest emigrant crop that this country has had in any one year, has been worth to the nation $385,000,000.

The General Electric interests several years ago.

He was a stockholder in the Gauntt Manufacturing company and held small blocks of stock in probably a dozen other local institutions.

First Home Builder.

Fort Wayne's first home building company was organized by Mr. Randall. It was the old Tri-State Building and Loan company, and he was the financial genius that organized and directed it until it got firmly on its feet. Then he remained on the board of directors until the company was absorbed and made a part of the Tri-State Trust company, at which time he sold out his interests.

Among his other local interests was the Randall hotel, which he owned and conducted for many years. For nearly twenty years Mr. Randall was interested in wholesale lumber concerns, and for a number of years conducted a hardwood sawmill along the Wabash tracks in the west end of the city.

The Randall Lumber company, conducted by Mrs. Randall in the past few years, was one of the greatest producers of oak ship timbers in the country. Practically every piece of oak ribbing used in the construction of wooden boats on the Great Lakes came from the Randall Lumber Co., and the steamers of the Mississippi river are being built of Randall material.

His Western Interests.

In company with the late Becks Erick, Mr. Randall went west several years ago and made extensive investments in Oklahoma property. Recently he organized the Tulsa Oil and Brick and Cement company, which has completed the erection of a brick factory at Tulsa, and only a few weeks ago started the manufacture of brick. The making of cement has not yet been started.

Mr. Randall was interested, too, in several other business enterprises in Oklahoma and was a director in the Fort Wayne California Oil company.

Organized Commercial Club.

It was Mr. Randall who first conceived the idea of a local commercial club, and it was through his efforts that the club came into existence. He was made president and after his term in the presidency served on the board of directors for a number of years. At the time of his death he was chairman of the waterways committee of the club.

Father of Canal Movement.

For years the building of a deep waterway connecting Lake Michigan with Lake Erie and passing through Fort Wayne had been the dream of Mr. Randall's life. Long before the city and state first awakened to the possibilities of the waterway Mr. Randall worked toward its building. It was wholly through his efforts and the educational plan he instituted that the city and the state, and finally the government became interested, and made the preliminary surveys. Ever since his organization he had been president of the Michigan and Erie Deep Waterway association.

Backed Centennial Celebration.

On the desk in his office for the past twenty years Mr. Randall had kept a small round glass paper weight, with the lettering "Perry A. Randall, Centennial 1895" printed on it. He often used to show it to his friends and tell them that it cost him $7,000.

for years was an officer in the company and was the financial backer of it during the first few struggling years of its existence.

Backed Airship Inventor.

Twenty-five years ago a man named Pennington, a manufacturer of pulleys and wooden articles and machines, invented an airship which held much of promise. But as he was wholly unable to finance it he went to P. A. Randall with the idea, and Mr. Randall lost thousands of dollars on it. At last the Pennington pulley works became so badly involved that Mr. Randall took over the company, and moved the concern to Eaton, Ind., where it started the manufacture of bicycle rims.

Helped Young Attorneys.

"I may safely say," said a Fort Wayne attorney, Tuesday afternoon, "that no man in Fort Wayne has done more for young lawyers than Perry Randall. His office and help and advice always were open to the young attorney, and he established many a young lawyer in practice here. The people of Fort Wayne have no idea how much time and money he devoted toward helping others. I can name over $250,000 that he has lost in signing notes for his friends."

Director in Rivers Congress.

The deceased had been a director in the National Rivers and Harbors congress for a number of years and had always taken an active part in its deliberations. At the last meeting of the congress held in Washington, D. C., he was re-elected a director for the ensuing year.

By reason of his connection with the National Rivers and Harbors congress and the part he had taken in the waterways, Mr. Randall became well known among the men of affairs throughout the country and was especially well known among the members of congress.

Came to Consult With Deceased.

C. L. Huonker, of Tulsa, Okla., manager of the Tulsa-Portland Cement company, in which Mr. Randall was the heaviest stockholder, arrived in Fort Wayne Tuesday morning to consult with his partner on matters pertaining to the business. He had been summoned here by Mr. Randall.

Mr. Randall was a man of unusual grit. He never gave up and though he had been warned by his attending physician to relinquish some of his business activities until he had fully recovered from a severe attack of indigestion, from which he had been suffering for the past two months, he was confined to his home for over a week the forepart of January and ventured out much too soon, only to be taken ill again in his office and had to be taken home. During the past few weeks he suffered several similar attacks, but he was determined not to give up and was apparently recovering.

Politically a Democrat.

Politically Mr. Randall was a democrat in his affiliations, but he never held public office, although frequently taking an active interest in politics. In 1886 he was a candidate for nomination as judge of the superior court, but was defeated by Judge S. J. P. McArdle in his opinion that was due to a weakened heart condition, brought on by over-exertion and as a result of the attack of la grippe from which he had been suffering.

Mason of High Rank.

Mr. Randall was a Mason of high rank. He was a member of Wayne lodge F. and A. M., a 32d degree Scottish Rite Mason and a member of the Mystic Shrine.

He was twice married, and is survived by his widow, who was Miss Winnifred Johnston of Union, besides three children—Ray P. Randall, of Miami, Fla., and Mrs. Harry Culbertson and Mrs. Frank Sawyer of Mt. Claire, N. J. There is also a brother and a sister, S. K. Randall, of Kendallville, and Mrs. Amy R. Seavey.

Bar Association to Meet.

A meeting of the Allen County Bar association has been called for 10 o'clock Wednesday morning in the circuit court room to take suitable action on the death of Mr. Randall. The deceased was one of the oldest members of the association.

There are about 2,500 establishments under the control of David Lloyd George minister of munitions, and although the locations of these plants are not known in detail undoubtedly there is a large number in the vicinity of such a manufacturing center as Manchester.

ZEPPELIN TURNS BACK.

Paris, Feb. 1.—A Zeppelin started in the direction of Paris last night at 9:45 p. m. A warning was sent out from Compiegne that a German airship had been sighted in movement. The military governor of Paris gave orders that preparations be made to give the alarm if necessary. When the Zeppelin however got into the field of the search lights on the French front it turned back and is supposed to have abandoned a projected raid.

FRENCH LOSE MORE GROUND.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—The official statement of today from army headquarters states that in the region south of the Somme the French have lost more ground in hand grenade encounters.

Chief of Records for Seventeen Years

William A. Aiken

William A. Aiken, residing at 1027 Lake avenue, has served as chief of records of Mechemanochqua tribe, No. 106, Independent Order of Red Men, continuously for seventeen years, a record that perhaps cannot be duplicated in the Red Men's order in Indiana.

Mr. Aiken was adopted into Mechemanochqua tribe on October 31, 1894. He served as Sachem from July 1, 1898, to January 1, 1899. He was elected chief of records in June, 1899, and has held this position ever since.

Mr. Aiken has never missed a meeting except on account of illness or being absent from the city. He is also a prominent Haymaker.

of the Turkish forces at Erzerum and that there are 80,000 men locked up in the city with provisions for only a fortnight. The Black sea fleet is supporting the operations of the Russian forces on the land. The Russian right wing is now marching on Trebizond, according to the same information.

FEAR WORST FLOOD IN PAST 25 YEARS

Residents in Eastern Arkansas in Much Peril from High Waters.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 1.—With Newport flooded and the McClelland levee broken, today's developments added to the seriousness of the Arkansas flood situation. Eight hundred negro convicts, marooned at the Cummins state farm, remain helpless, although a steamer has been chartered to remove them to a place of safety. Residents in the area of eastern Arkansas are threatened by the worst flood in 25 years. Cotton Plant, Watson, Newville, Pine Bluff, Dumas, Lakeville and Arkansas City people cast anxious eyes at their levees.

Refugees from the poorly protected points are flocking to the larger cities near the inundated area. Train and wire service in the affected district is impaired. No loss of life has been reported although property damage it is estimated will be great.

Between 300 and 400 persons, men, women and children, on a levee at Orchard Ferry, across the Arkansas river from Redfield, were rescued today according to a telephone message from Redfield.

TARIFF COMMISSION BILL IN THE HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 1.—The administration tariff commission bill was introduced in the house today by Representative Rainey of Illinois, ranking democrat member of the ways and means committee, who will have charge of it.

It provides for a commission of five members with the widest authority to investigate tariff conditions in the United States and abroad but without the power of recommending rates or schedules. The commission would be required to report to the president, the senate finance committee or the house ways and means committee and also from time to time voluntarily to congress when new conditions arise affecting tariffs.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 1.—The police were notified today of the arrest in Schenectady, in connection with the search of the mysterious gunmen who shot four persons here last Friday, of a man calling himself George Beverly, and who claimed to belong to a theatrical troupe. According to police information a 22-calibre rifle equipped with a scope was found in his room.

WISH INDIANA MAPLE SYRUP

Chicago Jobbers Say Vermont Production This Year Is Not Promising

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Chicago is formulating a big call on Indiana for maple syrup this year. Word comes that there will be no production in other states where usually the output is large. It is said by South Water street jobbers that the crop of Vermont holds out no promise at all, and in other years New England has been Indiana's chief rival in providing sugar and syrup.

Both Michigan and Indiana, however, expect to supply the demand. Along the Wolverine-Hoosier line sap is running, notably in Cass county, where one of the earliest seasons on record has started. The bushes across in Indiana are expected to give the same early yield, and some of the old-time sugar boilers claim that there will be a second run last of March.

The Jolly Ten will meet Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Martin Huse, 725 Kinnaird avenue.

WIFE A DESERTER; WANTS A DIVORCE

Henry L. Carryot Says His Spouse Quit Him and He is Through.

Henry L. Carryot in a complaint for divorce relates to the superior court that his wife, Eva L. Carryot, became his helpmeet Sept. 21, 1911, and that on a date not given she left him without cause and went to parts unknown to him. He says he does not know her whereabouts. The plaintiff avers that there is no hope whatever of a reconciliation and that they never will live together as man and wife. A. L. Sharp is the plaintiff's attorney.

Deserted Wife Seeks Divorce.

Mary Kulczyk begins action in the superior court for divorce from Peter Kulczyk, who is represented as a non-resident of Indiana and living in Chicago. They were married in 1900 and separated in 1905, when she says her husband wholly abandoned her and has since entirely failed to contribute anything to her support. Heaton & Heaton appear for the plaintiff.

Lose Case Before Industrial Board.

In the law offices of Ryan, Ryan & Aldrich, the Indiana industrial board gave a hearing in the suit of Andrew Cutter vs. Nicholas Crittmore and wife for damages. The board found for the defendant. The plaintiff alleged that while employed by the defendant baling hay he had lost an eye. The board decided that the injury came under the agricultural classification and, moreover, that there was question if the plaintiff did not come by his injury baling his own hay.

Special Findings Asked.

In the superior court Monday Judge Carl Yaple heard the testimony in the case of August C. Penningroth vs. the Fort Wayne Rescue Home mission for damages. The defendant had filed a written request for special findings of fact and conclusions of law, and the court took the case under advisement. Penningroth occupied a ground floor room in the old Arlington hotel with a liquor store and his lease had until next July to run, according to a ruling in the courts on a former suit. He says the defendant compelled him to vacate, depriving him of water and electric lighting service, greatly to the damage of his business. The old Arlington hotel was purchased by the Rescue mission and has been fitted up as its quarters and is now fully occupied by that institution.

Notes of the Courts.

John C. Capron has begun suit in the superior court against Minnie Morse, James F. Morse and others on note and for foreclosure of mortgage, demanding $2,900. O'Rourke & Lucke are the plaintiffs' attorneys.

In the superior court Louise Hoerner got leave to amend her suit against Frederick Hoerner for limited separation and she was then granted an absolute divorce and $100 alimony, the decree also restoring her maiden name of Louise Bohannon.

In the suit of the state of Indiana ex rel. John A. Getty vs. the American Steel Dredge company, the superior court has fixed Feb. 12 as the date of trial. The suit of the state ex rel. George I. Sauer against the same defendants has been consolidated with the Getty action and they will be heard together, the causes being similar.

The hearing of the suit of Val Rochoff vs. Jessie W. H. Wickersham et al. has been postponed in the superior court by agreement of the parties from March 6 to April 25. A jury will try the case.

BIDS ON DRAIN TILE.

The county commissioners on Tuesday received three bids for furnishing 4,300 rods of tile for underground drainage at the new county farm and awarded the contract to the Sheldon Tile company. The bids were as follows: Sheldon Tile company, $1,132.80, f. o. b. Pfeiffer's switch; Fort Wayne tile company, $1,246.20, f. o. b. Huntstown; Krick Tyndall company, Decatur, Ind., $1,106.23 f. o. b. Wallen or Huntstown. While the Decatur firm's bid was the lowest in figures the Sheldon company's bid was considered the best because it will deliver the tile near the farm and save the county a long wagon haul.

There were four bids for the laying of a foot per rod which would average about 30 cents a lineal rod: M. Sorg bid 27 cents per rod; Allen Martin bid 48 cents per rod and Joseph B. Gustin 9 cents a foot per rod and 50 cents a rod for hand work.

The bids for trenching were awarded to Sprang, Sorg and Gustin, the work to be divided equally, at Gustin's bid of 9 cents for each foot of depth per lineal rod. There will be work enough for all three to do within the time the commissioners want the job completed.

APPELLATE COURT DECISION.

The Indiana appellate court has handed down a decision, whereof the opinion was written by Justice Hotel, affirming the decision of the Allen superior court in the case of the P. H. Arnold company vs. Clarice J. Buchanan. In the trial court the appellee had sued the appellant for damages for personal injuries which it was alleged she had received by the fault and negligence of the appellant.

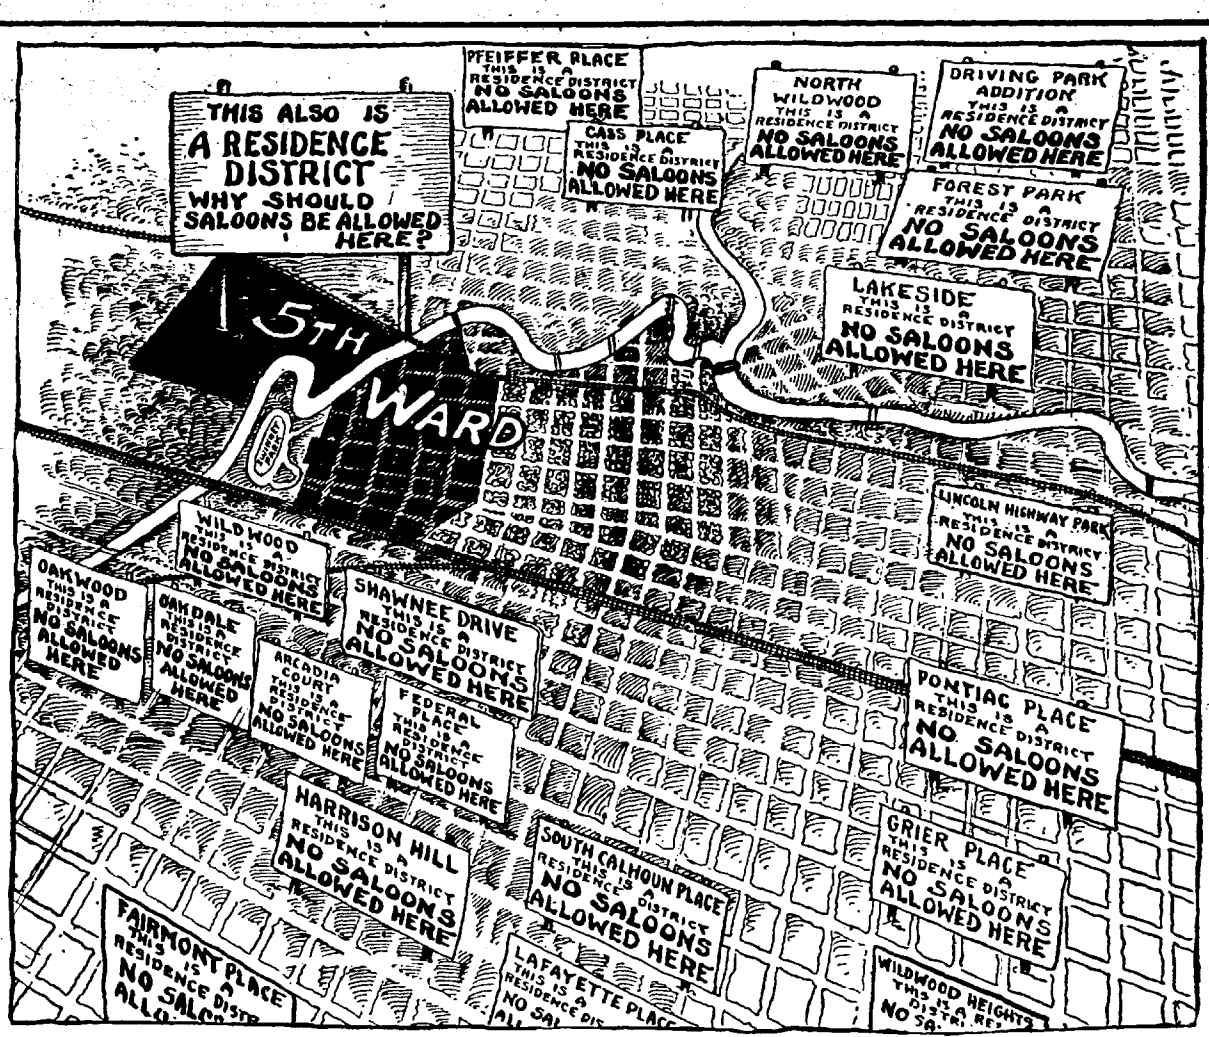

PUMP BID IS HELD UP.

The county commissioners received but one bid Tuesday morning, for furnishing and installing an electric deep well pump with a capacity to deliver 700 gallons of water an hour at the county jail. John E. O'Rourke proposed to install the pump for $843.85, but the commissioners regard the figures as too high and want it explained. The specifications provided for a 2-inch supply line and a 2½-inch discharge line to the tank in the attic of the jail.

ARE STILL HOPEFUL.

While prospects of settling the street car strike are not very encouraging those instrumental in bringing together the executive committee of the Federation of Labor and the officials of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, have not given up hope. They still believe that an agreement will be reached.

THE FIFTH WARD AND THE SALOON QUESTION

—Advertisement.

TERRE HAUTE FLOOD GROWS MORE SERIOUS

Hundreds of Residents Are Forced to Move and Industries Are Hit.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 1.—With the flood waters of the Wabash river forcing more than two hundred families in Taylorville and West Terre Haute from their homes and creeping steadily around the mines and big clay and tile plants across the river from this city the flood situation here assumed a threatening aspect today. Already a number of the mines have been closed because of the inability of workmen to get to the mines because of the high waters and it was said that three feet more water would cause the clay and tile plants to close. The river had reached a stage of 22.6 feet at noon today, six and one-half feet above flood stage, and a 26 foot stage was predicted at the United States weather bureau here.

Eight hundred feet of track on the E. & I. railroad, between Springhill and Riley, small stations south of here, has been washed out and train service suspended. Interruption service to the west and north is only being maintained by transferring passengers around the flooded zones. In West Terre Haute the water is now running through the streets and hundreds of residents have been forced to move. The water has crept over the levee around Taylorville and it is practically inundated.

Schools are closed in West Terre Haute and lodge room halls and churches are being used to store household goods saved by persons forced to flee from their homes before the rising waters. Residents on the northwest section of this city also have left their homes. At noon the water was seeping over and through the levee and threatening to flood this section.

Roads. When the Appam passed in the Virginia capes early today and took on a pilot, she was asked by the Fort Monroe wireless station who she was. The reply was, it is stated, that she was the German cruiser "Buffalo." When she arrived at Old Point, Health Officer McCaffrey went aboard and asher inspection brought Lieut. Berge ashore.

The Appam got a clean bill of health. The four wounded sailors were the only cases of sickness. The German consul, L. Marshall von Schilling, took charge of the situation and Lieut. Berge placed himself under the consul's orders. They went to the office of Col. Ira Haynes, commandant of Fort Monroe, where the German officer paid his respects and explained why he had given the wireless station the name of the German cruiser "Buffalo."

Notify German Embassy.

Lieut. Berge and Consul von Schilling sent messages to the German embassy at Washington and later had conversations over the telephone with the embassy and with Customs Collector Hamilton.

Pending the receipt of instructions from Collector Hamilton, no one is allowed on or near the Appam.

The Appam has one three inch gun mounted on her bow, but whether it was on board before her capture or was mounted by the Germans is not known. She was brought in under the German man of war flag, instead of the German merchant flag and her name was given to the quarantine officer as H. M. S. Appam, meaning the German warship Appam.

When seen on his way to visit Col. Haynes, Lieut. Berge refused to talk. Asked for information he merely shook his head, and replied "Nothing to say." He is a small man of slight build, with a small mustache and is very pleasant, though non-committal. A conference with Collector Hamilton will take place in Norfolk this afternoon after a conference between Lieut. Berge and Consul von Schilling. The lieutenant went back aboard the Appam. Within a few minutes he returned to Old Point dressed in his civilian clothes and with the consul left for Norfolk to lunch with Collector Hamilton.

While Lieut. Berge refused to pay his respects to Col. Haynes, commandant at Fort Monroe, quarantining officers boarded the ship. Meanwhile no one was permitted to come ashore.

Flew German War Flag.

The vessel came into port under the name "H. M. S. Appam" meaning His Majesty's ship Appam, thereby indicating that the Germans may contend the vessel is a German auxiliary cruiser. This theory is also strengthened by the fact that the Appam flew the German man of war flag and not the flag of the German merchant marine or the British flag as she entered port. It is said there are 155 of the original British crew aboard and 168 of the passengers. In addition to that there are 22 Germans said to have been transferred from the submarine to the steamer and 138 sailors, prisoners of the Germans captured in sea raids. Lieut. Berge conferred with L. Marshall von Schilling, German consul here, and also communicated with the German authorities at Washington.

The Appam has one 3-inch gun mounted aboard. When the submarine sent a shot across the Appam's bows she immediately halted on account of the large number of passengers she carried, according to Captain Harrison, of the liner.

GIVEN UP FOR LOST.

New York, Feb. 1.—The Appam sailed from Dakar in the French Colony of Senegal, West Africa, for Plymouth, England, on January 11. When about four days out wireless communication with the vessel suddenly ceased and as the days passed without further word of her she was virtually given up for lost.

A dispatch from Hull, Eng., to London Lloyd's on Jan. 28 said that the British steamship Tregentia had reported having passed at sea on January 10 a lifeboat with the name Appam painted on the stern and with the bows knocked down. She was supposed to have gone down in a severe storm which occurred in the waters through which she was passing or possibly had encountered a German submarine operating off the African coast. The Appam under ordinary conditions would have reached Plymouth on January 21.

The Appam sailed with 168 passengers and with a crew of 134. Among the passengers were British colonial officials. After leaving Dakar she called at ports on the west coast of Africa, picking up officials who intended to return to England on furlough. These men formed a considerable portion of her passenger list.

Among the passengers who were booked to sail on the Appam were Sir Edward and Lady Merewether and their wife; Frederick Seton James, former acting colonial secretary, and closely identified with colonial administration.

affairs in Africa: Francis Charles Fuller who was appointed chief commissioner of Askani in 1905 and Mrs. Fuller.

The Appam is 425 feet long, 57 feet beam, of 7,781 tons gross. She was built in 1913 at Belfast, Ireland, and is owned by the British and African Steam Navigation company, which is under the management of the Elder Dempster line.

MAY BRING A NEW TANGLE.

Case Offers Perplexing Questions of International Law.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Perplexing questions of international law may arise from the arrival of the Appam at Hampton Roads. First, the United States must determine whether the ship simply is a prize of war, or whether she has been supplied with any armament which would give her the character of an auxiliary cruiser. So far as naval authorities here know no case exactly like this has arisen to concern the United States since the beginning of the war. The German Emperor, Prince Wilhelm and Prince Eitel Friedrich, which took refuge in Hampton Roads early in the war, were auxiliary cruisers, and now are interned as such. The Hague convention provides: "A prize may only be brought into a neutral port on account of unseaworthiness, stress of weather or want of fuel or provisions."

"It may leave as soon as the circumstances which justify its entry are at an end. If it does not the neutral power must order it to leave at once; should it fail to obey, the neutral power must employ the means at its disposal to release it with its officers and crew and intern the prize crew."

In case the Appam can be considered as an auxiliary cruiser she is entitled under international law to a certain length of time to make necessary repairs and load enough coal and provisions to carry her to the nearest home port.

In any event officials here regard it as a foregone conclusion that the Appam will remain in Hampton Roads until the end of the war. British cruisers, patrolling the Atlantic lanes of commerce, probably already advised of the arrival of the Appam, will be steaming for the Virginia capes to guard the entrance outside the three mile limit. As a merchant ship she could remain voluntarily in port and the only question for the United States to determine would be the disposition of the German prize crew and the prisoners of war which the ship carries. The probabilities are that if the Appam still has the character of a merchant ship and the prize crew does not elect to take the risk of running the gauntlet of British cruisers outside the customs collector will take charge of the vessel and after probably intern her prize crew would return the ship to her owners.

The exploit of the German command in placing a new crew on a submarine aboard a merchant ship and sailing her into port without loss of life of passengers or crew may have a bearing on the submarine controversy between the United States and Germany. Some officials were inclined to regard the feat as added evidence to support the contention of the United States that even under modern conditions of naval warfare a submarine can capture a ship without loss of life.

EMBASSY MYSTIFIED.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The German embassy has no record of Lieut. Berge and officials suppose he may be an officer of the German merchant marine in the auxiliary service. Embassy officials as well as American naval officers are puzzled and do not understand how a submarine could spare such a large prize crew on the Appam. There is the possibility that the crew might have been taken from some unreported German raider or that the twenty German prisoners of war on the Appam might have been taken into service as the prize crew. None of the officials could understand why an officer with the rank of lieutenant would leave a submarine to take command of a prize. Prince Heinrich of the German embassy, is leaving for Norfolk late today to take charge of the situation. The embassy officials said they had practically nothing but what is contained in the news dispatches and that they were mystified.

WILSON MAKES NO COMMENT.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—President Wilson was informed of the arrival of the British steamship Appam at Newport News under a German flag and commanded by a prize crew from a German submarine. The president made no comment.

ROBBERY AT NEW HAVEN CLEARED UP

Sheriff Gladioux and His Deputies Arrest Four Men for Job.

Jack Smith, Curt Speer, Howard Criswell and Jess Smith are under arrest and will probably be charged with highway robbery for holding up and stealing $130 cash and a note of $100 from John Roussey, a well known Jefferson township farmer.

The robbery occurred the night of January 24 in the rear of Dr. Brudi's stable in New Haven. Sheriff A. C. Gladioux and Deputies Herman Pranger and D. A. Mills worked up the case, made the arrests and with the aid of Prosecutor Frank A. Emrick is said to have secured confessions from the men.

The actual robbery was committed by Jack Smith and Speer, who took Roussey's money away from him and then divided it with the other two, giving them small sums.

Jack Smith was put in the sweat-box at the sheriff's office Tuesday afternoon and after a while "came clean" with the story of the crime. Robert B. Garmire took the confessions of Smith and the other men.

Sheriff Gladioux has been working diligently on the case for a week and Tuesday had secured enough evidence to justify arrests and the four men were brought in.

CALLS AMERICAN DEALERS HONEST

Tell Exactly What They're Going to Deliver, Says French Financier.

Paris, Jan. 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—"You Americans are selling us immense quantities of supplies—some good, some inferior—at high war prices, but you do it honestly; you tell us what you're going to deliver," said Monsieur E. Aimond, head of the senate finance committee, reviewing the present condition of exchange for The Associated Press.

"We are buying perhaps more than $800,000,000 worth of goods a year from you now, while, aside from silks and satins, we are selling you little of anything," he added. "That tremendous balance of trade, with the war still going on, explains why the $250,000,000 you loaned us was insufficient to equalize exchange."

"The balance of trade was always in your favor, but you, yourselves, maintained the parity of the franc by spending your dollars in travel through France."

"A billion francs—two hundred million dollars—is what we are losing annually since Americans are spending at home the money they formerly spent here, making a difference against us of some five or six billion francs, which, of course, a billion and a quarter loan cannot offset."

"Exchange between London and New York is easier because English investors hold American securities to a far greater amount than we. The payments of interest and dividends on those investments relieve the situation. If France had placed in America the fifteen billion francs she loaned Russia, the interest payments would go far to equalize exchange."

"Exchange between Berlin and New York suffers from different causes. The franc is at a discount in New York because the money is continually going that way. Germany has no big payments to make; she is unable to assure trans-Atlantic transportation and can buy in only limited quantities of her adjoining neutral neighbors. She produces her own steel, coal, and chemical products, while we buy most of them in America. With us the depreciation may be considered a material and accidental circumstance. After the war, or as soon as we have bought all the steel and other war supplies we need from you, the franc will go back to par."

"The war is now costing us two and a half billion francs ($500,000,000) a month, of which one billion 800 million francs are spent in France," said Monsieur Aimond, leading up the question of France's financial requirements.

"At that rate we shall have to issue another loan in the near future. The six and a half billion francs in cash produced by the loan issued in December will be spent by the month of April. By that time nearly five billion francs of the money distributed throughout the country will be available for another loan that will be floated under far more favorable conditions. The Saloniki situation, which was acute at the time of our five per cent. loan, unquestionably frightened big capital. This is well known in financial circles and is borne out by many facts connected with the loan. For instance, the number of subscribers was greater in proportion to the total amount subscribed than of any government loan issued in France."

FARM BRINGS $135 ACRE.
J. F. Blauser Sells 100 Acres to H. A. Alger, of Virginia.

J. F. Blauser has sold his farm of one hundred acres in Lafayette township to H. A. Alger, of Broadway, Virginia, for $13,500 or $135 an acre. Possession will be given on or before March 10. Mr. Blauser is undecided as to what he will do. Mr. Alger expects to move to his new farm and will make his future home there. The deal was made through Anderson and Robison.

BRINGING JAPANESE GOLD.
Warships Convoys Big Shipment for London and United States.
Honolulu, Feb. 1.—The Japanese cruisers Chitose and Tokiwa are enroute from Vladivostok to San Francisco conveying a gold shipment half of which is destined for London and the other half for Russian credit in the United States according to mail advices from Tokyo received here today. The amount of the gold shipment is not stated.

Arab-Boy Ended War; Then Started Another

M. S. SAPHIR.

London, England, Jan. 31.—The Arab tribes of Sinai peninsula, who were pro-British, are now fighting for the Germans. And the trick was turned for the kaiser by a 20-year-old boy.

Saphir Effendi, an Arabian Jew, who acted as interpreter for correspondents in the Balkan war, started on a study tour of Europe after that war. In Berlin he was "discovered"—and sent to Sinai.

PLANNED BIG TRADE IN COUNTERFEITS

Small Boys Steal 10,000 Coupons from Printing Company.

With visions of a flourishing trade in green goods and no end of movie tickets and things to eat, Toby Attella and Benny Lickack, aged about 11 years each, and other lads whose names are unknown, made a raid Monday on the warehouses of the Fort Wayne Printing company, Washington boulevard west, and stole 10,000 5-cent coupons, that were a part of a large order just completed for the Hub-No-More company, manufacturers of washing preparations and soap, in this city. Detective Sergeant Peter Junk, who is working on the case and took the two boys into custody and got their confession, recovered one package containing 1,000 coupons.

Nine thousand coupons are yet missing and if they are not recovered the Fort Wayne Printing company will probably have to stand the loss on the face value of them, which amounts altogether on face value to $400.

Young Attella, who is a Syrian, says they thought from the greenish shade on which the coupons were printed that the bundles contained counterfeit money and they believed they could "do a big business" with it. The coupons are used by the Hub-No-More company for advertising purposes and are good for 5 cents each when purchasing the company's manufactured products. The police have the names of other boys concerned in the raid. The boys got into the Printing company's shipping room from the alley.

DECLINES TO FURNISH IT.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Secretary Daniels in a report on a resolution introduced by Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, asking for information regarding Atlantic fleet target practice, told the house today that the data sought was exactly the kind of military secrets that foreign governments want to learn and declined to furnish the information.

IF TOO FAT GET MORE FRESH AIR

Be Moderate in Your Diet and Reduce Your Weight With Oil of Kora. Lack of fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Put not on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, a serious case of obesity may result. When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply and get from any druggist a box of oil of kora capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself, every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of kora is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. There is nothing better.—Advertisement.

THIRTEEN MONTHS; NOTHING DOING YET

Supreme Court is Reported Deadlocked on Oregon Wage Case.

By Gilson Gardner
Washington, Jan. 31.—It has been thirteen months since the United States supreme court heard arguments by Louis D. Brandeis on the Oregon minimum wage case. There is a rumor that the court is deadlocked four to four.

While the urgent deficiency bill was under consideration Representative Gillette, of Massachusetts, and Moore, of Pennsylvania, moved to strike out the appropriation of $2,000,000 recommended by Secretary Lane for carrying on the work of the Alaska railroad. It fell to the lot of Fitzgerald, of New York, who had originally opposed the railway, to defend this item in the bill, which he did vigorously and successfully.

In the "Greatest Nation," a new play tried out here the other night an effort has been made to dramatize the proposition that peace is more statesmanlike than war. The play is by the son-in-law of David Belasco, and while it is not much as a drama, it is interesting as a sincere effort to do what President Wilson said, must ultimately be done, namely, to make peace as dramatic as war.

DANGEROUS VARICOSE VEINS CAN BE REDUCED

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunches of swollen, enlarged veins, soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that it dissolves goitre and wens and causes them to disappear. It can always be secured at Meyer's Drug Store.—Advertisement.

has written his name high in the hall of fame. Although representing a southern cotton mill state he has dared in the house openly and vigorously to champion federal regulation of child labor. His position has brought out in violent contrast that of Webb, of North Carolina, chairman of the judiciary committee and Brynes, of South Carolina, both of whom have urged the inalienable right of mill owners to exploit little children and the equally inalienable right of little children to drudge in ignorance and poverty.

At a recent session of the civic federation, Mrs. Archibald Hopkins reported that $6,000 has been raised for the Ellen Wilson memorial homes, and that a paid solicitor has been engaged to carry on the work. The ultimate purpose is to raise approximately $300,000, to provide decent homes for present alley dwellers. The project is the outgrowth of the great interest taken by President Wilson's first wife in the allev and slum problem in the nation's capital.

The movement to secure a tariff commission recalls the fact that there was a tariff board in 1911 and 1912, created by the Payne-Aldrich law, which made certain investigations and recommendations to congress during its existence.

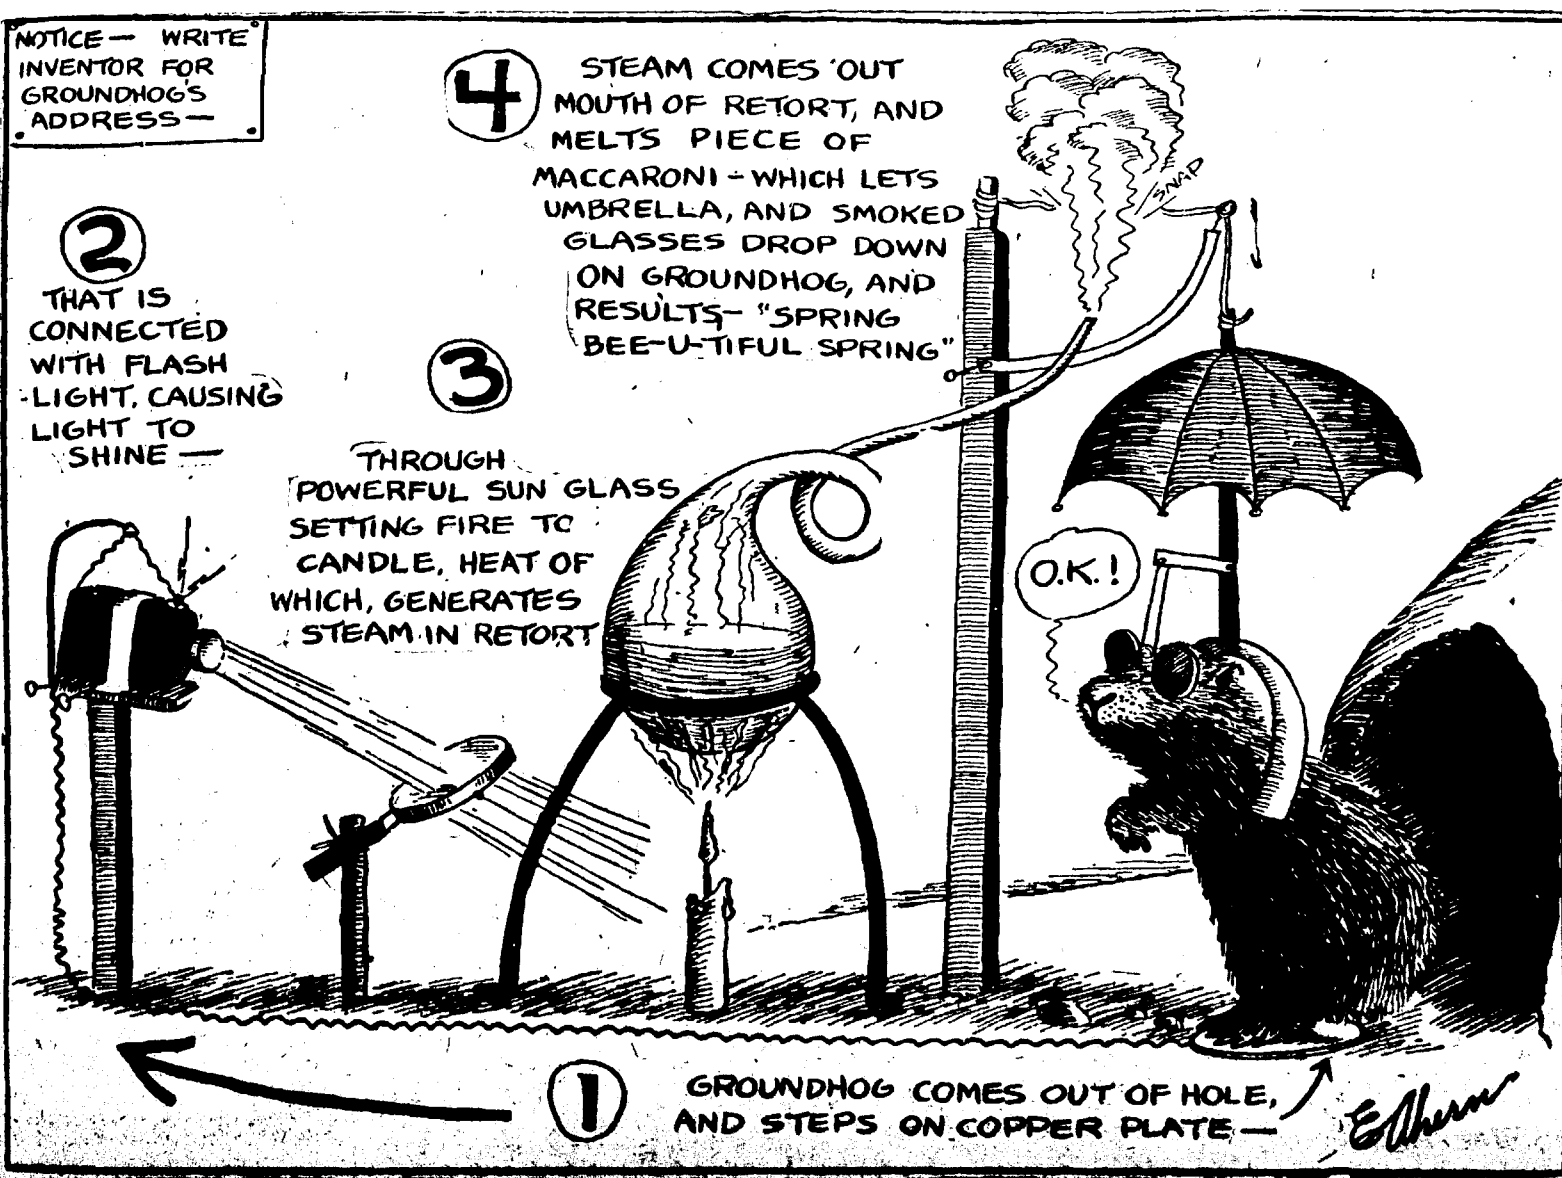

These recommendations were for the most part studiously disregarded by congress in the bills passed and vetoed by President Taft. Congress never has been willing to surrender to any tariff board authority to determine tariff schedules.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Advertisement.

PROPER SELECTION AND BREEDING OF POTATOES

By J. H. SHEPPERD.

It is a common belief that potatoes run out or degenerate when grown in any locality for several years. There is no doubt of the truth of this statement under ordinary methods of growing and selecting the seed. Only three reasons can exist for "running out" or degenerating of any crop. (1) Degeneration resulting from prolonged and possibly unnatural propagation by means of tubers. (2) Deterioration caused by change to an unfavorable condition. (3) Loss of vigor due to lack of selection of tubers. The last two factors we know are operative under the usual manner of handling the crop. However, it is not always true and should never be where conditions are favorable. With experimental data on hand and similar data secured from other investigators the following statement may be safely made. That in localities having soil and climatic conditions favorable for the highest development of a crop, there will be no degeneration other than variations, and variations are as apt to be beneficial as harmful. By changing seed once in a great while varieties will be developed in other localities having similar conditions, which will be of value for introduction, but the indiscriminate change of seed merely for the sake of changing is a poor practice.

Many potato growers seem to think it necessary to change seed every few years. They do not consider the productivity of the variety they are growing, nor do they endeavor to improve its yielding capacity. It has been the custom to change seed potatoes every few years and the practice has been followed without asking the reason for it.

The potato is practically a new crop and the development of good new varieties has been rather rapid, yet new varieties now seldom surpass the standard ones in yield or quality. New varieties should not be grown until they have been well advertised and a market demand created.

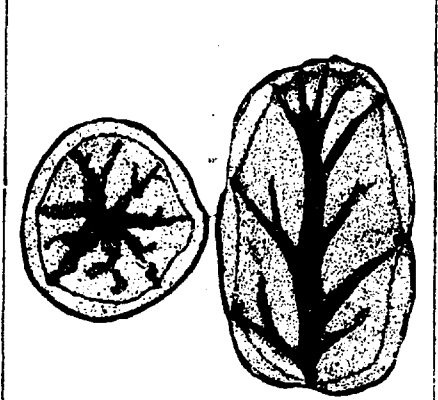

The potato breeder and the expert-plantist can better afford to determine the value of new varieties and exploit their superiority. In cases where the crop runs out it is the result of poor selection, poor soil or the presence of disease and not degeneration.

Another common fallacious belief is that potatoes mix in the hill. The tubers of most varieties vary greatly as to size, color and shape and this has led many to believe that different varieties mix or cross when planted closely together. Selection should be made for uniformity every year to overcome this character. Potatoes of white and blue varieties have been planted together in hills at the North Dakota and other experiment stations and no mixed or blended color appeared.

Hill selection should be followed on all potato farms. The manner of reproduction is different than of most farm crops. This has led to some confusion as to inheritance of characters. The tuber grows at the end of a short underground stem of which it is an enlarged portion. Our commonly cultivated varieties seldom blossom and produce seed, and this method of reproduction is not employed except by potato breeding specialists. The proper method for the potato grower is to select tubers from the best plants always starting with the best variety possible to secure.

Selection for disease resistance may and should be practiced. This cannot be done with entire satisfaction unless the soil is badly infested with diseases, a condition which the practical grower should avoid. Blights and rots may be overcome to a certain extent in this manner. Some varieties show greater resistance than others and should be grown when any disease is prevalent. Treatment of the seed and spraying of the vines are more effective if the work is well done. It would be desirable, however, for the potato specialist to develop resistant varieties. There is at present, no such thing as potatoes immune to the common diseases.

The time of planting should be regulated in accordance with the soil, climate and market conditions. Early planting usually gives the best results. Good judgment alone will determine the time to plant.

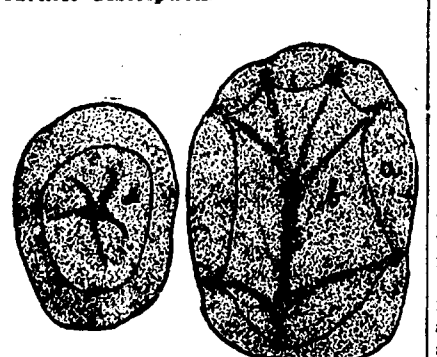

The method of planting varies to some extent, but where large areas are to be grown the machine planter is the only practical way. If a good planter is used and care is taken to regulate it good work can be done.

Depth of planting is another practice which should be regulated by several conditions, soil, climate, time of planting, moisture and cultural methods. In dry seasons deep planting is best, when everything is considered, three to four inches will prove to be the best depth to plant. Less than three inches would be considered shallow and more than four inches deep planting. Four inch planting gave 4 1/2 per cent heavier yield than three inch planting and 8 per cent more than any greater depth of planting, in experiments in planting 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 inches, respectively. Deep planting produced the best quality and the larger per cent of merchantable tubers. Deep planting will be found advisable on weedy land as the harrow may then be used freely without endangering what is meant by quality in potatoes. In some countries a heavy, soggy cooking potato is thought to possess the highest quality. In the United States most people prefer a potato which will become mealy when cooked. The potato should not, however, be so starchy that it will break the skin or fall to pieces before becoming cooked. For slicing and frying a soggy potato is desirable. From these statements it will be seen that quality in potatoes is dependent upon one's taste.

Mealiness is dependent upon the variety and the soil, climate and maturity. A dry sandy soil produces the mealier potatoes. An immature potato seldom cooks well and from our standard is of very poor quality. If the tubers are so green that the skin is easily bruised they will be inferior in keeping quality. Maturity is indicated by a corky surface and the presence of lentils. When the vines are badly injured by insects or diseases, the tubers do not mature and such a crop will have a poor quality.

There are many characters which indicate quality, percentage of dry matter, size, specific gravity, appearance, flavor, surface smoothness, color of skin and flesh, depth of eyes and texture. These characters need no further description.

Only one variety of potatoes should be grown in any locality, especially if for market. Where this custom prevails, a reputation is soon established, and buyers are always anxious to visit such places. This is an easy and effective way to advertise the crop.

Practically all potato damage done by diseases and insect enemies may be prevented by a good system of farming and proper treatment of seed and vines. The work should be begun before or as soon as any disease makes its appearance. Prevention is the only remedy, there is no cure for the infected growing plant.

A Hardy House Plant

One of the most satisfactory of house plants on account of its extreme hardiness, is commonly called the "Iron Plant." Its real name is Aspidistra variegata. This plant can stand a great deal of neglect, although one should not purchase a plant with that particular end in view. The iron plant is naturally a long-lived plant, sending up new leaves from the root even though not well taken care of.

The "Iron Plant."

The leaves are glossy and of a bright dark, rich green, with lines of white or very light green running through them. They are sometimes compared to the leaves of growing corn, so healthy and hardy are they.

A good fertilizer for house plants is made of two ounces of ammonium phosphate, one and three-fourths ounces sodium nitrate, and one and one-half ounces ammonium sulphate. Mix and dissolve in five pints of water. Four ounces of this solution should be mixed in five gallons of water for feeding plants.

BLOODY MILK.

Bloody milk is caused by a derangement of the glands of the udder. The trouble is not contagious and the milk from the teats that do not give bloody milk is fit for use. Bathe the udder for fifteen minutes with cold water after each milking, then inject a teaspoonful of the following into the teat or teats that the bloody milk comes from after each milking. Mix 20 grains of tannic acid, 2 ounces of glycerine, 2 ounces of water. Shake up before using. Continue this treatment for several weeks if needed.

RESULTS OF SPRAYING.

The writer visited an orchard in Pennsylvania late in the fall just as the apples were being stored as gathered from the trees and it was a genuine pleasure to see the bins of the fruit house filled with the splendid fruit. The owner of the orchard believed in spraying and his apples showed it. The most pleasing feature of all was to find the annual sprayings had cleared the trees of scale, not a trace of the pest being visible on any of the fruit, while the trees appeared entirely free from it.

GOOD PROFITS FROM WINTER TOMATO GROWING

able conditions the returns are very satisfactory, and the product meets a ready demand at good prices.

The most important conditions for forcing tomatoes are: A warm, light house—one having a two-thirds span facing the south being preferable—strong bottom heat, rich soil, careful training, uniform temperature, care in watering and pollinating, and, as before suggested, good judgment and constant watchfulness on the part of the grower. Bottom heat is not absolutely essential to success, but the crop matures more quickly if given this condition.

To make the best use of the house two crops should be grown during the season. This will bring each crop on at a season when the expense of heatloam and one part well-rotted stable manure, is filled in to within 2 or 3 inches of the top. Each box will hold 4 plants, and the check caused by the partial confinement of the roots seems to be of value in hastening maturity. If the solid bed is used instead of the boxes, the plants are set about 16 inches apart each way, thus occupying a little more than 1 1/2 square feet of floor space for each plant.

Best returns usually follow where the plants are trained to a single stem. Flax cords, about the size of wool twine, are fastened to the corners of the boxes or to wires placed parallel to each row, for that purpose, and attached above to wires running lengthwise of the building, on the rafters or sashbars. The plants are secured loosely to this support by means of short pieces of raffia. All side shoots should be pinched out as soon as they appear, and when the plants are about 5 feet high, or when 4 clusters of fruit have set, the terminal buds should be pinched out. The vitality of the plant will then be expended in the development of fruit. If the plants are not headed back, other fruit clusters will form, but these scattering later clusters will unduly prolong the fruiting season without giving sufficient financial return to warrant delaying the removal of the old plants.

As the fruit sets the clusters should be supported by means of a small cord or piece of raffia passing around the main stem above the leaf, thus forming a sling. At this time, too, it is well to stir the surface of the soil and work in a quantity of well-rotted manure or to give frequent applications of liquid manure.

The temperature of the house should be as nearly uniform as possible—about 60 degrees F. at night and 70 degrees in dark weather, but 80 degrees or even higher on bright sunny days. All cold drafts and sudden changes of temperature should be rigidly avoided.

As regards profits from forcing tomatoes, Professor Munson states that his experience is limited to New York and New England, where, owing to the low temperatures and the excessive number of dark, cloudy days, the yields were not large.

In Maine the yield per plant with the best forcing varieties was 2 1/2 to 3 pounds. In New Jersey the average yield reported is somewhat larger. On the basis of 3 pounds per plant, however, the return at 20 cents per pound, or 25 cents at wholesale, are very profitable, being about 50 cents per square foot of bench space for each crop. Of course these figures can not always be relied upon, for unforeseen conditions frequently arise; but, on the other hand, the experienced gardener will by the use of other crops, as lettuce, radishes, and cucumbers, utilize the space in the house so as to provide against these unforeseen factors. The opinion is expressed that "as a simple business proposition," tomato growing offers excellent opportunities.

During a part of the time will be slight. Plants for the first crop should be started as early as the 1st of August. If two or more houses are available, a second sowing should be made in about three weeks, to give a succession. For the second crop seed should be sown during the latter part of October.

The plants are treated in every way as for outdoor culture till handled the last time. For fruiting some prefer benches, with about 6 inches of soil; but, in the writer's experience, the best results have been obtained from the use of boxes 18 inches square and 12 inches deep. In the bottom of the boxes is placed a layer of charcoal, broken pots, or "clinkers" from the furnace, after which soil, consisting of three parts good garden

Eternal vigilance and the exercise of good judgment on the part of the grower are more essential than strict adherence to set rules. BETTER LEAF WILL BRING BETTER PRICES

By E. P. SANDSTEIN.

The improvement of Wisconsin tobacco began in 1903 with the selection of a good type of home-grown Connecticut-Havana seed, which was pronounced by leading buyers and growers as the most desirable type for Wisconsin. The work was taken up as a result of numerous complaints of tobacco manufacturers concerning the quality and size of leaf produced. Careful selection of seed has been practiced for several years with the result that a pure type of tobacco with good leaves, fine texture and large yielding qualities, is being grown. The seed of this type has been distributed to growers, who have taken the highest prizes at contests with the leaf produced therefrom. Over 700 pounds of this seed was distributed during one year.

The basis of seed selection for the grower is to choose the best variety now grown in his locality and by carefully inspecting the crop, mark the superior plants and preserve them for seed. The selection of individual plants should be based upon the following points: vigor, spread and shape of leaves, number and arrangement, prominence of midrib, texture and thickness, liability to produce suckers, color, attachment of leaves to stem.

ROTATION PREVENTS DISEASES AND INSECT PESTS

The successive crops in any rotation should be so selected and arranged that no two upon which the same pest may thrive will be grown in succession. The principles of disease control by means of crop rotation are based upon the fact that certain pests can thrive only on certain kinds of plants. Therefore, when the crops are changed and the food supply thereby cut off, the pests must perish or be greatly reduced in number.

If farmers kept books there would be a great many better notes than there are today.

Frequent inspection of the field should be practiced to cull out all except the very best plants.

The best practice in raising seeds is to carefully remove side shoots and suckers from selected plants and to top the main crop before the flowers expand, to prevent cross fertilization with the seed plants. Stripping the seed plants should be avoided since the leaves are of little value and are needed by the seed plants to fully develop the seed.

The harvesting and testing of tobacco seed requires special attention on the part of growers if the best results from selection of seed plants are to be obtained. The seed stalk should be cut off when the seed pods are thoroughly ripe, before frost appears, and hung in a dry place to cure for about two months. The seed can then be beaten out of the pods. To clean a small supply of seed an ordinary hand sieve will suffice. All light, small seeds and dirt should be removed. For cleaning a large quantity of seed a special device, which cleans the seed by forcing a current of air through it will save much labor. It is very important to thoroughly test the seed to be sown and this may be done in an ordinary saucer with two pieces of blotting paper between which the seeds are placed, moistened and kept in a warm place until the viable seeds germinate. A low germination test indicates weak seeds from which strong plants cannot be expected. Growers should select their own seed from the best plants or some one grower in the neighborhood may become the seed grower for that district.

Basis for seed selection: The selection of individual plants should be based on the following points:

1. Vigor of the plant.
2. Spread and shape of the leaves.
3. Number and arrangement of the leaves on the stalk.
4. Prominence of the midrib.
5. Texture and thickness of the leaves.
6. Liability to produce suckers.
7. Color of the leaves.
8. Attachment of the leaves to the stem.

COST OF RAISING A HEIFER

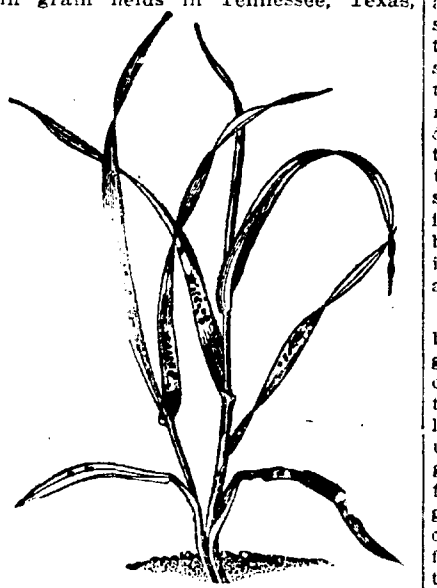

Investigations made by the Department of Agriculture indicate that the average cost of raising a heifer on a dairy farm in the northern and eastern sections is about $61 at the end of her second year; this includes an allowance of $7.51 for labor. The heifer is given a credit of $8 for the manure she produces. Thus it appears that the dairy farmer in the sections mentioned can not afford to raise a heifer that is not worth more than $69 when two years old.

Not too late to put in a bath-tub. It will at once become the most popular thing in the house.

THE DESTRUCTIVE GREEN BUG HAS APPEARED

Reports Show That Many Southwestern Grain Fields Are Infested—Serious Spread May Follow Favorable Weather Conditions.

The spring grain aphids, popularly known as the green bug, has appeared in grain fields in Tennessee, Texas,

The Spring Grain Aphid on Wheat Plant.

Oklahoma, Kansas, and in northern New Mexico, and it is probable that it is also in southern Missouri and Arkansas. The danger of this pest doing serious damage in the spring depends to a great extent upon the weather between now and the middle of April. If the temperature during this period is sufficiently high to enable the green bug to breed throughout the winter, and at the same time sufficiently low to prevent its principal natural enemy—a minute black, four-winged fly—from developing, a serious visitation over large areas may be expected.

In all the States where the green bug has made its appearance grain growers should watch their fields carefully. If any spots appear where the grain changes from green to yellow in color, these should be plowed under as deeply as possible and the ground harrowed and rolled. It is from spots of this character that the green bug spreads over the remainder of the fields. If straw can be spared for the purpose, it may be spread over the infested patches and burned. This destroys the pest as effectively as the plowing under of the ground.

Ordinarily, the green bug is kept in check by the minute fly already mentioned. This parasite lays its eggs in the body of the green bug, and the young, hatching from the eggs within the body, ultimately cause the death of the bug. These parasites are found in a considerable number of insects which are closely related to the green bug. Under favorable temperature conditions they will probably increase until their numbers are sufficient to overcome any material increase in the numbers of the green bug. They are not, however, able to withstand as severe weather as the green bug itself, and it is important, therefore, that the farmers in the regions likely to be affected by the latter take the necessary steps immediately for their own protection.

GOOD BUTTER ALWAYS IN DEMAND.

There is plenty of room today for the private dairyman who wants to market his cream in the form of butter. Because the creameries have nearly monopolized the retail city trade is no reason why butter made on the farm should not compete successfully with the best of the creamery butter. The class of butter which is made from but one herd of well-bred cows and from separated sweet milk, should form one of the most delicious articles of food, and can always command fancy prices when it reaches the right people. It requires some business ability to work up a select trade for any home product, yet it is not at all difficult to create a demand for a certain brand of butter among those who know a good article when they see or taste it, and are willing to pay a little extra for what suits them.

KEEP UP STEAM IN COLD WEATHER.

In our own homes our fires are replenished according to our feelings; but the farmer's fires must be kept burning all the time. It will be able to realize more out of them. She will be in shape to get the orders for fine table water; and once her name is established she will have more orders for them than she can fill.

It is a sad mistake for a man to make a good mistle of grass into poor hay.

PROTECT THE FRUIT TREES.

If your young trees were mulched and not properly protected from mice and rabbits, you will probably be surprised when you visit the orchard to find that many of them have been ruined. Mulch is a good thing for the trees, but it is also a good thing for mice, as it affords them the best protection during the winter and they gather in large numbers around the foot of the trees and eat away the bark.

Protection is easy. The best material is wire screening, although some use tarred paper and veneer from wood. Some orchardists practice trapping snow under the base of their trees, but oftentimes this is neglected and the trees are injured before the work is accomplished. The protectors should be pressed into the ground deep enough to prevent the mice from crawling under. Personally I prefer wire screening, but in case tarred paper is used it should be promptly removed in the spring to prevent injury from scalding.

By putting some care into the fattening of water fowls the farmer's wife will be able to realize more out of them. She will be in shape to get the orders for fine table water; and once her name is established she will have more orders for them than she can fill.

It is a sad mistake for a man to make a good mistle of grass into poor hay.

DOGS AS CARRIERS OF DISEASE TO STOCK

By M. C. HALL, Ph. D.

The dog in the country is a useful and pleasant adjunct to the farm if he is properly controlled and cared for, but when neglected, may readily become a carrier of disease to stock, in addition to gaining opportunity to kill sheep and destroy gardens and other property. Dog ordinances, as a general rule, have been intended chiefly to curb the dog's power of doing harm by attacking, biting, killing or running sheep or stock. The part that he plays as a carrier of diseases to animals only recently has been recognized, according to the Department of Agriculture, which has issued a bulletin (No. 260) on the subject, "The Dog as a Carrier of Parasites and Diseases."

Of the diseases carried to stock by dogs, the foot-and-mouth disease is probably of the greatest interest at this time. In this case the dog acts as a mechanical carrier of infection. The bottom of the tongue is placed a layer of charcoal, broken pots, or "clinkers" from the furnace, after which soil, consisting of three parts good garden

There are, however, many other maladies in the spread of which the dog takes an active part—rabies, hydatid, ringworm, favus, double-headed tapeworm, roundworm, and tongue-worm are often conveyed to human beings in this way. It occasionally happens also that the dog helps fleas and ticks in transmitting bubonic plague or the deadly spotted fever.

Hydatid disease is caused by the presence in the liver, kidneys, brain, lungs, and other organs, of a bladder worm or larval tapeworm. Bladder worms are often as large as an orange and may be larger. A dog which is allowed to feed on carrion or the raw viscera of slaughtered animals may eat all or part of a bladder worm containing numerous tapeworm heads. These tapeworm heads develop into small segmented tapeworms in the intestines of the dog. The tapeworms in turn develop eggs which are passed out in the excrement of the dog. They are spread broadcast on grass and in drinking water where animals can very well eat them and thus become infected. The hog is particularly liable to this disease because of its rooting habits. The eggs may get into human food, and persons who allow dogs to lick their hands and face also run the risk of getting the eggs of the tapeworm in their systems. Prevention on the farm consists in so restraining the dog that he can not get at carrion or raw viscera. Viscera should be boiled before being fed to dogs and should never be thrown on the field. If not cooked and fed, viscera and carcasses should be burned, buried with lime, or so disposed of as not to be accessible to dogs. Proper feeding of the dog is essential, and the owner who does not feed a dog properly has no right to keep one.

The parasite which causes gid in sheep somewhat resembles the hydatid worm. A dog allowed to swallow the brain of a giddy sheep may swallow this parasite and later distribute the eggs of the resulting tapeworm over the pasture. Sheep while grazing swallow the eggs with the grass which they eat. In the case of sheep dogs it is important to administer vermifuges often enough to keep them free of these worms. In the case of sheep measles, the bladder worm in the meat, typical of this disease, is swallowed by the dog and again the tapeworm eggs are passed by the dog to grass or water, and there are eaten by sheep.

Of the external parasites which dogs may carry to animals fleas and the various kinds of ticks are both troublesome and dangerous. The remedy is clear. The owner must keep his dog clean, not merely for the comfort and happiness of the dog, but to prevent it from becoming a carrier of disagreeable and dangerous vermin.

These reasonable measures, important to the stock on the farm, have a direct connection with the health of the family. Where ringworm or other skin diseases break out among the children, the worm parasites develop, it is well to determine whether a dirty or uncared-for dog may not be carrying infection on his skin or hair, or be conveying disease from carrion directly to the food and persons of his friends. Even if no one is infected with disease, the folly of allowing a dog to remain dirty and have the freedom of a home where personal cleanliness and hygiene are respected, is apparent.

The land that is properly cultivated does not need rest, and therefore "fallowing" is a waste of time.

Straw and hay make good nesting material.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Wheat showed fresh weakness today, the result largely of estimates that the world's visible supply exceeds by 45,000,000 bushels all previous records. Opening prices, which ranged from 1/4c off to 1/2c up, with May at $1.31 1/2 to $1.32 1/2 and July at $1.23 1/2 to $1.24, were followed by a sharp general setback, but then something of a rally.
The close was strong, 2c to 3c higher, with May $1.34 1/2 to $1.35 and July at $1.25 1/2. Corn declined with wheat. After opening a shade lower to 1/4¢ to 1/2¢ up the market underwent a moderate sag all around. The close was strong at 10 to 1 1/4¢ net advance.
Oats reflected the heaviness of other cereals.
Packers unloading made provisions have a downward slant.

New York, Feb. 1.—A marked change for the better, the first in over a fortnight, came over the stock market in today's early dealings. Gains ranging from material fractions to several points were registered with practically no recessions.
U. S. Steel opened at 3 1/2¢, to 3 3/4¢, soon advancing to 4 1/4¢, a maximum gain of 1 1/4¢. War shares and metals were one to two points higher. Keweenaw oils and higher priced specialties. Crucible Steel rose 3/4¢ to 7 1/2¢ and Bethlehem Steel five to 45¢. Ralls made moderate improvement.
Prices reacted irregularly from their early rise before the end of the first hour, the market undergoing a process of assimilation. Anaconda's heaviness also contributed to the setback, that stock declining 1/4¢ to 3/4¢. The rise was resumed with greater vigor later, however.
U. S. Steel again leading the movement on its advance to 5 1/4¢, with continued strength. P. M. in Crucible. Canadian Pacific led the rally, gaining over three points, with two for New Haven. Closely held specialties scored spectacular gains. Industrial Alcohol rising 14 to 15¢ and Cuban American Sugar 10 to 92¢. Bonds were firm.

PLUNGES TO DEATH AT WILSON'S HOTEL

Chicagoan's Body Hurtles
Through Glass Canopy
as President Eats.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—While President Wilson, his wife, and members of the industrial club's executive committee were at supper on the third floor of the Blackstone hotel at about 11:30 o'clock last night the body of a man suddenly plunged out from a window in the hotel and dashed to the sidewalk.

The body struck the glass canopy over the south side (Seventh street) entrance with a crash that could be heard for blocks and landed on the sidewalk in front of the hotel door.

The man was Edward Ford Johnson, of 743 Lincoln Park boulevard, Chicago. He registered at the hotel at 6 o'clock last night and was given a room on the tenth floor. He was an insurance man, with offices in the Insurance Exchange building.

The sound of the fall created excitement in all parts of the hotel. Within a minute secret service men "rained" into the street.

Although the sound of the tragedy must have penetrated to the president's apartments, where a merry party had gathered, the first thought of the secret

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Snyder and little son Donald, of Huntington, Ind., came Sunday to this place, hurriedly called here by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Geo. Mann.

The old opera house is now a scene of activity, a large showing of Poland China hogs are now occupying the auditorium. These aristocratic roosters will make their initial bow to the public today.

A large entrance is being cut into the C. Sullivan building, now occupied by the Smith hardware company with a large stock of huggies.

Mrs. Howard Shockey, of Woodburn, was hurriedly called to this place Sunday by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Geo. Mann.

Henry Birkhold, of Payne, who owned a store at Shawton, O., has traded the same to Ira King of this place, for his grocery, located in the building at the corner of Main and Daggett streets. Mr. King moved his household goods to his new location Friday. Earl Birkhold, a son of the owner of the Antwerp store, will have charge of the business.

J. L. Johnson, one of our south Main street business men, was a Fort Wayne visitor the latter part of the week, where he went to take a course of Turkish baths.

The many friends of Elias Kigar, who formerly lived here, are pleased to notice that the Fort Wayne newspapers have recognized him and have mentioned his steady habits. Elias is hard to shoe away from a job even for a few hours. A steady worker he is, and his friends here were aware of it, but when a fellow goes without sleep 1,400 nights he becomes a champion long distance worker, and is deserving of mention by the newspapers of his city.

Mrs. Geo. Reeb was among the passengers from this place that visited Fort Wayne Saturday, where she spent the day with friends.

Mrs. J. P. Harris, of West Unity, O., was a visitor here a few days the past

GIRL AGAIN LAPSES INTO STATE OF COMA

Hope That She Might Tell of Buffalo Tragedy is Dispelled.

Buffalo, Feb. 1.—The hope that Miss Grace J. Teiper, one of the injured victims of Monday morning's tragedy on the Orchard Park road, would revive to tell of the murder of her mother and brother was dispelled today when surgeons reported that she had again lapsed into a state of coma after a brief period of semi-consciousness. In one of these moments a doctor asked her who struck her and she replied: "I don't know."

There were other mumbled words from her lips, but whether or not they gave any clue to the murderer the doctors and detectives refused to say. The condition of John Edward Teiper, the second survivor of the tragedy, who was under guard of a deputy sheriff at his home in Orchard Park last night continued to improve. District Attorney Wesley C. Dudley reiterated today that Teiper would be brought to Buffalo as a material witness as soon as the doctors consented to his removal.

PERRY A. RANDALL A VICTIM OF APOPLEXY

Leading Citizen, Suddenly Stricken, Expires Aboard Trolley Car While Coming from Suburban Home.

WAS LONG A FORCEFUL AND PROMINENT FIGURE

Perry A. Randall, aged sixty-nine, and for more than a quarter of a century a leading figure in Fort Wayne business and political circles, was stricken with apoplexy as he waited for a car at Taylor and Freeman streets at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning and died while he was being rushed to the city on the car three minutes later.

As lawyer, home-builder, civic patriot, the father of the lake-to-lake canal enterprise and as tireless worker for everything that was for the advancement of Fort Wayne's interests, Mr. Randall has long played a prominent and useful part in Fort Wayne's affairs.

He had walked from his country place at Sprinkle station, one and a half miles from the end of the Taylor street line, in company with Attorney Harry Kennerk, who also resides in the Country club district. It has been the habit of Mr. Randall, Mr. Kennerk and Ernest W. Cook to come to the city together in the morning and often they walked to the city car line.

Tuesday morning Mr. Randall seemed to be feeling particularly well and walked fairly fast. Mr. Kennerk started behind him, but hurried to catch up with him. When they arrived at Freeman street the car was nearby, and just as it drew up beside them Mr. Randall fell against his friend.

Turning to see what had happened Mr. Kennerk saw him fall on his face. Picking him up, and with the aid of the car crew, he carried the unconscious man to the car and placed him on a seat, ordering the motorman to hurry to town. As the car started an automobile passed and Mr. Kennerk shouted to the driver to get a doctor.

Although Mr. Randall gasped several times after he was placed aboard the car, it was readily seen that he was dying, and when the car reached Broadway there was no sign of life, and the Klachka & Melching undertaking firm was notified.

Life Reaches Scene.

Shortly after Mr. Randall had started for the city Mrs. Randall followed in a carriage and while the ambulance with his body waited at the corner of Broadway and Taylor streets she drove up and stopped. She was told of his death, and ordered the body removed to the Klachka & Melching establishment.

Mr. Randall had been in ill health for fully a year, and had suffered several severe heart attacks last fall and early in the winter. Just recently he was the victim of an attack of grip, and had been recovered only about two weeks. However, his condition when he left home Tuesday morning seemed to be better than it had been in months.

Native of Indiana.

Perry A. Randall was born at Avilla, Noble county, Indiana, on July 24, 1847. He was the second of the three children of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Randall, pioneers in the Indiana wilderness.

Mr. Randall came to Fort Wayne to attend the high school, and was graduated with the class of 1867, and four years later was graduated from the University of Michigan, after which he entered the law department and received his diploma in 1873.

Here Forty-Three Years.

Shortly after leaving the law school Mr. Randall moved to Fort Wayne, and was admitted to the bar, and soon opened an office and began a general practice. He was one of the most successful young attorneys of the time, and in 1881 he entered a partnership with Will J. Vesey, the firm becoming one of the most prominent legal firms in northern Indiana.

At various times in his legal career Mr. Randall was affiliated with Judge Fay, Gideon W. Seavey, Charles Niezer and Newton D. Doughman. For years he had offices on South street, then in the Bank block, then moved to the Bass block, and finally after the erection of the Shoff building removed his office to that structure.

Had Many Interests.

Probably no man in Fort Wayne had as many varieties of business interests as did Perry A. Randall. For twenty-five years he had been prominent in the upbuilding of this city as a manufacturing and business center, and in the later years of his life he had devoted himself almost exclusively to the development of civic affairs.

Even when he was a young man he was active in the business and financial world, and invested in new enterprises. He was a stockholder and later a director in the old Fort Wayne Electric works, and held a large block of stock in the corporation until it sold out to

WATSON SUPPORTERS TO ENJOY A SMOKER

At Same Time New Manager Will Hold Conference at Anthony Hotel.

Supporters of James E. Watson for the republican senatorial nomination, will give a smoker Tuesday evening in the Watson headquarters on the second floor of the Arcade building, to which all those favoring Watson's candidacy are invited.

While the Watson smoker is in progress Edward Schmidt, former United States marshal for Indiana, will confer with local supporters of Harry S. New, who is also seeking the republican senatorial nomination, at the Anthony hotel. A conference of New men from different parts of the district, was also held at the Anthony Tuesday afternoon.

Much interest is being taken in the race for the county recorder's nomination on the democratic ticket. Four candidates are seeking the nomination, as follows: Chris Vonderau, St. Joe township; Allen Hursh, the present incumbent; Charles W. Dittor, ex-commissioner from the First ward, and Edward J. Schrader, of Adams township.

Came to Fort Wayne Just Fifty Years Ago

HENRY C. SCHRADER.

It was on Feb. 1, 1866—just fifty years ago Tuesday—that Henry C. Schrader, pioneer Fort Wayne insurance man, came to this city from Warsaw to make his home. "It was an extremely cold day, I remember very well," said Mr. Schrader in recalling the occasion.

His first business undertaking in Fort Wayne was as a boot and shoe merchant, but a few years later embarked in the insurance business, with which he is still actively identified as the head of the firm of Schrader & Wilson.

54 DIE IN AIR RAID

London, Feb. 1.—Fifty-four persons were killed and 67 injured in last night's Zeppelin raid.

The official statement says bombs were dropped at several towns and in rural districts in Derbyshire, Leicestershire, Lincolnshire and Staffordshire. Some damage to property was caused.

The Manchester Guardian says that city was a center of discussion of the Zeppelins last night.

The Evening News points out that last night's raid was the largest which has yet occurred so far as the number of Zeppelins is concerned.

With one exception last night's raid caused the greatest number of casualties of any since the beginning of the war. On the occasion of the last attack on London made on the night of Oct. 13, fifty-five persons were killed and 114 were injured according to an official statement. Unofficial reports add the total was much greater, it being estimated by returning travelers that between 150 and 300 persons were killed.

NEW YORK CENTRAL MERGER HOLDS GOOD

Columbus, Ohio, Feb. 1.—The New York Central Railroad company, formed in 1914 by a merger of eleven minor companies, today in the supreme court, won its fight against the opposition to the combination. The merger was opposed by Clarence H. Verner and James Pollitz, of New York, minority stockholders in one of the subsidiary companies. Verner and Pollitz had asked the supreme court to reverse the order of the Ohio public utilities commission, authorizing the issuance of $100,000,000 worth of twenty-six year debenture bonds, by which the merger was to be perfected. The court decided that the question involved was moot, inasmuch as the bonds should be issued and the merger effected.

APPAM, GIVEN UP AS LOST, IS WAR PRIZE

CASE MAY RAISE NEW QUESTION TO PERPLEX

Newport News, Va., Feb. 1.—With the German naval ensign fluttering boldly from her stern and in charge of a German prize crew the British South African liner Appam, given up for lost, took refuge in Hampton Roads today with the story of seven vessels destroyed by German sea raiders off the African coast.

The Appam was captured off the Canary islands on January 15 by a German raider four days after she had sailed from Dakar, British West Africa, for Plymouth, England.

Whether the captor was a German U boat or a hitherto unreported German auxiliary cruiser is undetermined. From what was learned by some of the officials who boarded the Appam it is believed that some steamer acting as a German auxiliary off the African coast took the British liner and put the prize crew aboard. This view is supported by the fact that a submarine could hardly have spared a lieutenant and such a large crew to a prize.

Notable as Sea Exploit.

Lieut. Berge, of the German navy, placed on the Appam when she was captured, brought in the prize, eluding the cordon of British cruisers across the Atlantic and adding to the historic chapter of German exploits at sea a chapter to rank with the adventures of the Emden, the Prince Eitel Friedrich and the Kron Prinz Wilhelm.

There are 450 persons aboard the ship including 130 survivors of seven ships sunk by the raider which captured the Appam, 20 German civilians being transported from Africa to England to be placed in detention camps; 115 members of the Appam's crew, 155 original passengers on the Appam and the prize crew of 22.

Notables Among Them.

Many of the passengers on the Appam are women and children. There are also several high British officials who were returning to England from Africa. There are also four wounded soldiers, taken from one of the sunken ships, which resisted capture and was shelled.

According to the information gleaned from those who talked with Lieut. Berge the Appam was captured without any show of resistance on January 15, the day that British news reports said wireless communication with the vessel suddenly ceased. A prize crew was placed on board and the same day the submarine which captured the Appam gave chase to another British steamer bound for Australia with a cargo of meat. The meat ship gave battle, was captured and sunk, after a large portion of her cargo had been taken off.

The names of the steamers sunk by the raider which captured the Appam are given as the Traudner, Arthur, Corbridge, Atiabena, Brommumdy, Farrington-Ford and Clan McFarlane. It is also reported now that the raider was the German cruiser Mowe, instead of a submarine, although this is not confirmed.

Six More Taken Rapidly.

Six more vessels then were taken in rapid succession. The crew were taken on board the Appam, which ran the west across the Atlantic for Hampton Roads.

WILSON ADDS MORE STOPS TO HIS TRIPS

Four Illinois Cities Hear Him on His Run Across State.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—President Wilson left Chicago at 10:01 o'clock this morning to continue his speaking tour of the middle west. He said he felt full of energy and much invigorated. The trip to the station was made in a closed automobile on his physician's advice. An escort of mounted police and a detachment of motorcycle police accompanied the president to the station. Only a small crowd witnessed the departure of the president. Mr. Wilson stopped to the rear platform as the train pulled out and raised his hat in response to the cheers.

TELLS OF RELIEF OF WIFE AND SELF

J. H. Young, Garrett Man, Says Their Improvement is Due to Tanlac.

J. H. Young, a carbuilder, who lives at 490 Walsh street, Garrett, Ind., eighteen miles from Fort Wayne, has added his testimony to that of hundreds of others regarding the merits of Tanlac, the Master Medicine, that is now being taken with beneficial results by a good percent of the residents of Fort Wayne and vicinity. Both Mr. Young and his wife have been taking Tanlac and are greatly relieved. Mr. Young recently said:

"I suffered from stomach trouble, headaches and pains in my back. My stomach was sour, most of the time and after eating I frequently belched food. Gas often accumulated on my stomach. I frequently had pains in my back and often suffered from severe headaches. My wife was annoyed by pains in her back.

"Mrs. Young and myself have altogether used less than one bottle of Tanlac, but we both feel greatly relieved. The pain in my back has left, and the sour stomach is a thing of the past. My wife also has been relieved of the pains in the back.

"I can recommend Tanlac because it has given me greater relief than any medicine I ever used."

Tanlac, the Master Medicine, is especially beneficial for stomach, liver and kidney trouble, catarrhal complaints, rheumatism and the like.

Tanlac is being introduced at the Wayne and Calhoun streets store of the Meyer Bros. Drug Co. It also may be obtained at the other Meyer stores, Calhoun and Columbia, 1429 Calhoun and Broadway and Taylor.—Advertisement.

PRESIDENT IS OFF TO IOWA

Wilson Leaves Chicago to Continue Addresses on Preparedness.

IS MUCH PLEASED

AT HIS GREETINGS

Says Response to His Plea

Expectations.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—The fourth day of President Wilson's tour of the middle-west in his campaign for military preparedness today will carry him west of the Mississippi through Iowa which program calls for the first address of the day at Des Moines in the evening. Four brief talks from the rear platform of his car at Davenport, Iowa City, Grinnell and Newton are on the program for the afternoon. Before the special left Chicago the members of his party expressed their pleasure at the welcome accorded him there. He said the local response to his plea for support in preparing for an adequate defense had fully met their expectations.

Yesterday's somewhat strenuous activities including an address before a large audience at Milwaukee in which the president declared that those who sought at first to divide domestic sentiments in the issue of war "had shot their bolt" and the long speech here last night are to be succeeded by a relaxation of activity today.

The first of the five minute talks en route to Des Moines is not to be delivered until 2:30 p. m. This is at Davenport. The president's speech of last night was in large measure a reiteration of his previous pleas for speedy upbuilding of the army and navy and his endorsement of the continental army plan. His assertion that so far as the navy is concerned the country is prepared for immediate war caused a momentary flutter in the audience but was softened by his declaration that the navy was inadequate in size though not in quality.

A stop of four hours and a half is on the program for Des Moines. Reaching there at 6:50 p. m. he expects to address the meeting at the coliseum at 8 o'clock and leave at 11 p. m. for Topeka and Kansas where he will deliver addresses tomorrow.

SAYS WE MEAN BUSINESS.

President's Message on Preparedness at Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—The United States has made preparations for immediate war as far as the navy is concerned, although the present naval force is inadequate in size, President Wilson declared last night in an address before several thousand persons in the Auditorium here. "We mean business," he said in speaking of the preparedness plans of the administration.

"We have given to the present fleet of the United States an organization such as it never had before, I am told by Admiral Fletcher," the president said. "And we have made preparation for immediate war, so far as the navy is concerned."

The army, the president said, as at present constituted, "is not large enough even for the ordinary duties of peace."

The president repeated his warnings that no time must be lost in strengthening the defenses of the nation.

He declared the government was doing everything it could for preparedness.

"When I see some of my fellow citizens spread tender where the sparks are falling I wonder what their ideal of Americanism is," the president said. "America, the president said, had been cruelly misjudged by the nations now at war."

"I know that on the other side of the water there has been a great deal of cruel misjudgment with regard to the reasons why America has remained neutral. Those looking at us from a distance do not feel the strong pulses of ideals and principles that are in us."

"They do not feel the conviction of America that our mission is a mission of peace and that righteousness cannot be maintained as a standard in the midst of arms. They do not realize that back of all our energy we are a body of idealists, much more ready to lay down our lives for a thought than for a dollar."

"They suppose, some of them, that we are holding off because we can make money while others are dying, the most cruel misunderstanding that any nation has ever had to face—so wrong that it seems almost useless to try to correct it, because it shows that the very fundamentals of our life are not comprehended or understood."

Rules, not public opinion, brought about the present war, Mr. Wilson declared.

"I thank God there is no man in the United States who has the authority to bring on war without the consent of the nation," he said.

The task of the United States, he said, has been to assert the principles of law in a world in which the principles of a law have broken down.

SAYS HYPHEN IS GONE.

Every Man's Heart First for America, Declares Wilson at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, Feb. 1.—That the danger of hyphenated Americanism is a thing of the past and that "when the test comes every man's heart will be first for America" was the declaration of President Wilson in a stirring address in Milwaukee yesterday.

Speaking to 9,000 people who packed the great auditorium, he said:

"Wherever they came from, it was the principle of affection and ambition and hope that drew men to these shores and they are not going to forget the errand upon which they came. The America which they have made their refuge and hope will not suffer by any forgetfulness on their part.

"America has drawn her blood and her energy out of almost all the nations of the world," he began. "It is true of a great many of us that there lies deep in our hearts the recollection of an origin which is not American. We know that our roots, our traditions, run back into other national soils. There are some historical recollections which engage our affections and stir our memories. We cannot forget our forebears.

"We can't altogether ignore the facts of essential blood relationships and, at the outset of this war, it did look as if there were a division of domestic sentiment which might lead us to some error of judgment and some errors of action. But, I for one, believe that that danger is passed. (Applause.)

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago in the classical city of Boston, thirty earnest women met to consider the needs of girls who came to that city to seek employment. The needs of these girls led to the organization of the first Young Women's Christian association in this country, which was effected March 3, 1866.

Down-town rooms were opened. Miss Mary Foster was called as the first general secretary and the work was launched! The work at that time was largely that of an employment bureau, but educational classes, both vocational and cultural, and religious meetings were also held.

Hartford, Connecticut; Providence, R. I.; Pittsburgh and Allegheny, Pa., in 1867, and Cincinnati and Cleveland, Ohio, and St. Louis, Missouri, in 1868, followed by forming similar societies, called Women's Christian Associations. Others in the Mississippi valley took the name of Young Woman's Christian Associations.

On October 9th and 10th, 1871, delegates from nine Women's Christian Associations met at Hartford and formed what later bore the name of the International Conference of Women's Christian associations.

ROMANCES OF KIDNAPING.

Preble Led of 13 Tells Wild Tale to Ex-tremate His Running Away.

Bluffton, Ind., Feb. 1.—Delmer Sheets, 13, a son of S. P. Sheets, of Preble, ran away from home and walking along the C. & E. railroad, passed through Tocsin and reached Kingsland, and then having satisfied his desire to see the world, started back home. When he reached the Elmer Bryan home, near Tocsin, in the afternoon, he stopped and asked for something to eat. He was recognized and a telephone message summoned his father, who took him home. His parents and the neighbors had become alarmed and were organizing to search the woods. Fearful of admitting the truth at first, the boy told a story of having been kidnapped by men in a buggy, and he described minutely the imaginary outfit. The Bluffton officers were called to help search for the supposed kidnapers, and they suggested questioning the boy more closely, and he admitted the kidnapping story was fiction. He had gone to the woods with timber cutters and had wandered away and had reached the railroad and kept walking until he became afraid to go farther.

CLUB WOMEN WILL REGULATE DRESS

Federation to Put Ban on All the Extremes in Fashion.

New York, Feb. 1.—Extreme fashions in women's dress will be one of the most discussed topics to be considered at the general federation of women's clubs of America, to be held here next May, says Mrs. Wm. Grant Brown, chairman of the local board of the federation.

"Ten thousand delegates will take back to their homes a concrete idea of dress reform that will be a blessing to the whole country," said Mrs. Brown. "We believe in the décolleté gown so far as it is a mark of art, but it should be modest and never sensational. There has grown up a custom of dress for women that is simply frightful. The extreme split skirt that shocked us once, has given place to the extreme split waist. Evening gowns worn nowadays by women who probably mean well, but are foolish, are utterly disgracing, being cut in some cases almost to the waist line. These women do not do this to attract attention, but because they are possessed by the idea that to be partly draped is fashionable."

"Most club women want to establish a general rule against indecent costumes in evening dress and a custom of making women's gowns conform to the following four rules. First, individuality, every woman trying to express her own ideas. Second, modesty, not puritanism, but a decent regard for what is proper. Third, good taste, a degree of art in the expression of individualism. Fourth, appropriateness. Young girls should not be dressed like matrons. Old women should not dress like girls."

"Many women suggest that if the present custom of sensational dressing continues, an established hall room censorship should be established."

TWO MOUNTED GUNS ABOARD.

Another Italian Steamer Carries Weapons for Defense.

New York, Feb. 1.—Two 3.5 inch naval guns were mounted on the after deck of the Italian steamship Caserta when it arrived here today from Genoa and Naples. This is the fourth Italian steamer carrying mounted guns to arrive at this port within the past few weeks.

The guns were covered with canvas when the steamship reached quarantine as a heavy rain was then falling. Passengers said, however, that during the first portion of the voyage the guns had not been covered and sailors were constantly on duty about them.

YOUNG THIEVES GO TO JUVENILE COURT

Roy Potter and Clem Harshbarger Robbed Lady Who Was Kind to Them.

After confessing to the police that they were guilty of robbing Mrs. Dora Fasnought, residing on the Taylor street road west of the city, Monday morning, Roy Potter, aged 13 years, and Clem Harshbarger, aged 14 years, were arraigned in the city court Tuesday morning on charges of petit larceny and were committed to the juvenile court. They were turned over to Probation Officer W. I. Work, who later surrendered the lads to the custody of their parents with orders that the boys should be presented in the juvenile court Saturday morning for hearing before Judge John W. Eggeeman. The Potter and Harshbarger lads, with another boy of their age, saw Mrs. Fasnought driving into the city Monday morning and at the Jefferson school building asked her for a ride. She let them get into her wagon and ride down town. After they had left her she missed her pocketbook containing $12. She reported to the police and a few hours later, working on descriptions given of the boys, Detective Sergeant Peter Junk arrested Potter and Harshbarger. The boys confessed and took the officer to two different places where they had concealed the stolen money in alleys down town. Both lads have been in trouble before for stealing.

Other City Court Cases.

Jim Moore, who flirts with trouble whenever he communes with booze, was in on a drunk charge and was continued until Wednesday under $100 bond. His wife asked the police to take him into custody because he had been drinking hard.

John Gallagher, a vag who was begging on the streets, was arrested by Officer Harris and Judge Kerr tagged the cadger $5 and costs.

Weldon Shutt, of Garrett, Ind., was before the city court on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, was continued until the 5th inst., and released on his own recognizance. His 32-caliber revolver was taken from him. The youth, who is but 18 years old, was arrested at Calhoun.

DEMENTED WOMAN USES KNIFE

Clara Burritt Slightly Injures Her Brother Following Quarrel.

Steps probably will be taken to have an inquiry legally made into the mental condition of Clara Burritt, aged 30, who stabbed her brother, George Burritt, in the shoulder with a knife following a quarrel at the family home, 1109 Erie street, at 7 o'clock Monday morning. An investigation by Police Captain Kelly disclosed that Burritt and his wife had been having trouble and that Miss Burritt, believing her brother's wife to be in peril, seized a butcher knife and attacked her. A gash several inches long was inflicted in Burritt's shoulder and the attention of a surgeon was necessary. Burritt, who is employed by the Fort Wayne Printing company, refused to have his sister arrested, owing to her mental state, but said he would confer with Prosecuting Attorney Frank A. Emrick concerning her.

HORSE CAUSES A WRECK.

After making an inquiry into the circumstances the police Monday night refused to arrest William Welsensburger, residing on rural route 13, when they learned it was a balky horse and not his own negligence that had been at fault for a collision between Welsensburger's rig and an automobile driven by Frank Oliver, 320 Montgomery street. The collision occurred on New Haven avenue when the Welsensburger animal balked in the center of the street and refused to move. Oliver failed to see that the horse and buggy obstructed the road and crashed into the outfit. Oliver reported the accident to police headquarters and wanted Welsensburger arrested, but this Sergeant Zwick and Blum, who investigated the affair, declined to do, advising Oliver that his proper recourse was in civil action for damages. The combined efforts of half a dozen men were required to remove the refractory horse from the center of the street.

MOTORIST FLEES WITH FIND.

Report was made Monday afternoon to the police here by Miss Mary Kohne, of Decatur, that after she had dropped from an automobile her handbag containing $4, near the Buster brickyard on the Lincoln highway, another motorist who came along picked it up and drove rapidly away.

Miss Kohne gave a description of the man, and said he had a Ford car bearing Indiana license number 19761, 1916. Miss Kohne had started back to pick up her handbag, but before she could reach it the driver of the other auto seized it and made off.

As a result of the conditions of the roads Agricultural Agent Clarence Henry has been compelled to cancel all his dates till Wednesday.

Clothing for the poor of Fort Wayne will be received at 1029 Fairfield avenue, and distributed to worthy people through the Fort Wayne Mother's club and the various charitable organizations. 11-15-15

Household Economy

How to Have the Best Cough Remedy and Save $2 by Making It at Home

Cough medicines, as a rule contain a large quantity of plain syrup. A pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, stirred for 3 minutes, gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

Then get from your druggist 2 1/2 ounces Pinex (50 cents worth), pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 64 cents, a full pint of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50—a clear saving of nearly $2. Full directions with Pinex. It keeps perfectly and tastes good.

It takes hold of the usual cough or chest cold at once and conquers it in 24 hours. Splendid for whooping cough, bronchitis and winter coughs.

It's truly astonishing how quickly it loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals and soothes the inflamed membranes in the case of a painful cough. It also stops the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiaacal, and has been used for generations to heal inflamed membranes of the throat and chest.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex," and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING

Proverbs 28:1-15.

- 1 The wicked flee when no man pursueth: but the righteous are bold as a lion.
- 2 For the transgression of a land many are the princes thereof: but by a man of understanding and knowledge the state thereof shall be prolonged.
- 3 A poor man that oppresseth the poor is like a sweeping rain which leaveth no food.
- 4 They that forsake the law praise the wicked: but such as keep the law contend with them.
- 5 Evil men understand not judgment: but they that seek the Lord understand all things.
- 6 Better is the poor that walketh in his uprightness, than he that is perverse in his ways, though he be rich.
- 7 Whoso keepeth the law is a wise son: but he that is a companion of riotous men shameth his father.
- 8 He that by usury and unjust gain increaseth his substance, he shall gather it for him that will pity the poor.
- 9 He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination.
- 10 Whoso causeth the righteous to go astray in an evil way he shall fall himself into his own pit: but the upright shall have good things in possession.
- 11 The rich man is wise in his own conceit; but the poor that hath understanding searcheth him out.
- 12 When righteous men do rejoice, there is great glory: but when the wicked rise, a man is hidden.
- 13 He that covereth his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them shall have mercy.
- 14 Happy is the man that feareth always: but he that hardeneth his heart shall fall into mischief.
- 15 As a roaring lion, and raging bear; so is a wicked ruler over the poor people.
- 16 The prince that wanteth understanding is also a great oppressor: but he that hateth covetousness shall prolong his days.

Indiana's Dependent Children.

An interesting glimpse into Indiana's work in caring for its dependent children is supplied in an extract from the forthcoming report of the board of state charities, and to those who have given the matter only casual attention it will be a revelation as to the magnitude of this branch of the public work.

It is now slightly more than eighteen years since the board adopted the plan of placing these children in suitable homes wherever such homes could be found. In that time 3,434 children have been placed, and of these 2,609, or 75.9 per cent., have remained off the public support, finding permanent homes until reaching the age where they were able to take up life's battle upon their own account. This is certainly ample justification for the painstaking endeavor and the expense attendant upon the work.

The duty of the state does not end with placing the children in this homes, however; for agents of the board visit them at frequent intervals and exercise a watchful supervision over the care they are being given and the treatment they are accorded. The agent of the state board, by way of example, spent a total of 1,672 1/2 days in the field during the year, visiting children, investigating applications, placing children in homes, inspecting orphan asylums and conferring with public officials. Four thousand and fifty-two children were visited, and of these, 3,895, or 96.1 per cent., were found to be doing well or fairly well. The remaining 157, or 3.9 per cent., were found in an unsatisfactory condition, and proper action was taken in each case looking to the return of the child to the agency responsible for it. Thirty-two other visits were made to addresses given, without finding the children reported.

During the twelve months homes were found for 215 children who had not previously been placed by the agents, and 183 children, formerly placed, were transferred to other homes, making a total of 898 placements and replacements. One hundred and eleven children were returned to counties. The applications investigated numbered 439, and all but ninety-three, or 21.1 per cent., were approved.

Visits to the various orphan asylums numbered 224, to the county poor asylums five, and to county officials 234. Special items of work not coming under any of the classifications given numbered 546. These included investigations into complaints, reports of alleged mistreatment and visits to interested citizens.

The cost of the field work of the department, including the salaries of the agents while engaged therein, amounted to $11,691.52. The traveling expense of the children placed by the agents amounted to $691.53, making the total cost of the agency field work $12,383.05. The total expenses of the state agency amounted to $15,679.41.

It is doubtful, too, if the state is anywhere engaged in a more worthy or beneficent work than it is doing in caring for these dependents and giving a chance to those who otherwise would not have it.

Sixty-seven members of the Ford peace party have returned to America, and declared that "autocratic leadership" was responsible for the failure of the expedition to carry out its original plans. It will be noted, however, that neither Mr. Ford himself nor the members of the permanent committee who yet remain abroad to continue negotiations have yet admitted that the expedition has failed. That being true, it should be considered that those who are admitting failure are doing so solely and only on their own account—which they perhaps suspect is the only portion of the endeavor that really amounts to much.

Senator Harding, of Ohio, in introducing Charles W. Fairbanks to a Washington audience, declared that Ohio would be greatly pleased if Mr. Fairbanks were chosen as the republican nominee for president. Mr. Burton, of Ohio, who also has aspirations in that direction, has either been too badly stunned to comment on the Harding utterance or his remarks have been placed under the ban by the censor.

Chairman Reiter is another who refuses to believe the progressive party in Allen county is defunct. Moreover, he has called a meeting of the party to prepare for the nomination of a full county ticket and other tangible evidence that, despite some rather rude jolts which have been sustained of late, the Cause still lives.

Of course, if those flood prevention petitions could be presented to you just at the time the high water is most threatening, you'd sign 'em. As is often the case, the fatal weakness of the psychological moment is that it isn't long enough.

THE NINETY AND NINE

(Detroit News)

One out of every hundred persons in the state of New York was convicted of crime during a year.

Justice, as embodied in statutes, necessarily depends largely on chance and circumstance for its administration, and to what extent the ninety and nine, in New York or in Michigan, should congratulate themselves or their lucky stars for being free of the taint of discovered crime we cannot attempt to estimate.

Social position renders many immune to the temptations that lay others by the heels, or saves them from the penalties of wrongdoing. Getting caught, so far as the records indicate, should stand above every other offense, since there is a very considerable proportion of open crimes for which no one is punished. To the list of accidental offenders' should be attached a list of those accidentally caught and convicted.

The police attitude of society toward the criminal is singularly inconsistent. He is studied as a sociological problem, or passed by with indifference and contempt. If he has fallen from a high altitude he is looked upon with interest, but still regarded as totally apart from law-abiding humanity.

It is a wholesome thing for the ninety and nine to recollect occasionally that the convict is simply a human being, not much coarser or more sinful than the run of free citizens. His weaknesses, his follies, his blunders have caught up to him—that's all.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderrin at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.—Advertisement.

CHILD'S TONGUE BECOMES COATED IF CONSTIPATED

When cross, feverish and sick give "California Syrup of Figs."

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again. Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Advertisement.

EVERY NATION ITS OWN ENEMY

(San Francisco Bulletin)

It used to be estimated that one-third of the income of the English people was taken by one-third of the population. Careful investigations indicated that 30 per cent. of the city population did not regularly get enough to eat. In the years just preceding the war the country's internal affairs appeared to be moving toward a crisis. Lloyd George's reforms, hateful as they were to the landed aristocracy, were really an attempt to backfire against revolution.

There can be no doubt that England had within her own ocean-bordered boundaries the causes of her disease and the material for her cure. If national wealth was sufficient, if it had been wisely expended; her people were still fundamentally sound, and her climate developed energy and endurance. She was her own worst enemy. The German menace, however dire and dour, was in comparison almost academic.

Events have now forced England to disregard her serious internal dangers in order to give all her strength to meet a far less serious external danger. The only hope of millions of her people is that war conditions will compel social readjustments which aristocratic greed would have been able to forestall in time of peace. But this is a roundabout and costly way of doing justice, and justice after the war may be as bitter in substance as injustice was before it.

What has been said of England is true in varying degrees of every country in Europe, not excepting Germany—the internal dangers faced by all these nations were more imminent than those against which their vast armies were directed.

If the United States will abstain from making the same mistake she should be, without force of arms or ruinous trade competition, peacemaker for the world civilization of this century. Americans need only put their own house in order to maintain a degree of national vitality which will make a small armament incidental, and a great armament superfluous.

IF BACKACHE OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coats and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Advertisement.

SEEK BURIED TREASURE

Some Lively Digging in Texas to Recover $2,000,000.

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 1.—A group of Dallas men have excavated an immense hole in the remains of an old cave near the Buzzard Spring road, near the Washoo club lake, in the belief that they are about to find buried treasure. The amount has been estimated as high as $2,000,000. T. B. Stacey, organizer of the party, says that ten years ago a negro woman, then 104 years old, told him of the treasure. He leased the land and has often searched for the treasure. A traction engine and other machinery are now being used in the hunt.

The negro woman said that she had once been held captive and forced to cook for a band of highwaymen who made the cave their hiding place and the storehouse for their plunder. The loot was placed in kettles and chests and buried.

FLOOD MENACE NOW PASSING

Cold Wave Vastly Improves Conditions All Over Indiana.

THE WATERS HAVE BEGUN TO REcede
Levee at Lafayette is Carried Away—Part of City Inundated.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 1.—Flood conditions here and in most sections of the state were greatly improved today, due to a large measure, to the cold wave which arrived last night, bringing clear weather in its wake. Although the high waters had begun to recede here and in practically every other section of the state except the southwestern where the Wabash joins the Ohio river, it will be several days before conditions are normal, as a large number of bridges and culverts were washed out.

The Ohio river reached a stage of 38.7 feet at Evansville this morning but it was believed that it would do little damage on the Indiana side. Kentucky towns along Green river however, were said to be in grave danger. The Wabash river is rising from Lafayette down and is spreading over the bottom lands in the lower stretch. It carried out a levee in Lafayette last night and spread over part of the city. Parts of Terre Haute and Taylorville just across the Wabash river from Terre Haute, were under water. It was believed the crest in the Wabash would be reached at Lafayette late today.

AT LAFAYETTE.

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 1.—With the Wabash at the 25 foot level the water continued to rise slowly today. The flood crossed the Brown street levee here during the night and destroyed a large section of it. The levee was destroyed during the flood of 1913. Several buildings in the lowlands are under water. The sudden drop in temperature last night tended to stop the rapid rise of the water and the crest of the flood is expected to be reached late this afternoon. The rise today was about one inch an hour.

AT TERRE HAUTE.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 1.—Many families in Taylorville, West Terre Haute and the northwestern section of this city were leaving their homes this morning as the Wabash river continued to rise. At 7 a. m. the river had reached the twenty-two foot stage, six feet above flood stage and the lowlands to the north, west and south of the city were inundated. Up to the present, however, the financial losses have not been heavy. Some live stock has been washed away and a few bridges washed out, but in most cases farmers were able to move the greater part of their live stock to higher ground. The weather bureau predicts a twenty-five foot stage here, which will inundate the greater part of Taylorville and threaten the railroad grades west of the city.

ALONG THE OHIO.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 1.—Although the Ohio river today registered 38.7 feet at this point and was still rising at all points in the local district it is thought improbable inconvenience from flood water will be felt here. Alarming reports came today from the Wabash. White and Patoka river bottoms, all of which are rising and threatening serious floods. Serious conditions threaten Kentucky towns around which Green river is rising with its flood held back by high water in the Ohio river. Reports from Grayville, Ill., say farmers have been forced out of the bottoms and the Illinois Central railroad tracks near Bon Pas creek flooded. The Wabash river is tearing at the Big Four embankments near Grayville, Ill., where the Evansville levee, twelve miles above the city, has gone out. At Hazelton the C. & E. I. railroad is still fighting to save the fill from the White river flood.

STEARNS ONCE MORE FAILS TO END LIFE

After having failed once more in an effort to close his earthly accounts by suicide, Charles Stearns, aged 67 years, and residing with his wife a short distance from the city on the Hicksville road, in the county jail and closely watched. His latest essay to die, which is one of a half dozen he has made within a year, was made Monday night at his home, after he had attempted a murderous assault on his wife, whom he had threatened to kill. Mrs. Stearns escaped through a kitchen window and when she returned to the house she found her husband availing himself of a sandwich made of bread plentifully plastered with arsenic. She hastened to the homes of neighbors and Dr. E. H. Kruse was called. The physician forced an emetic into Stearns and relieved him of the poison. Later Sheriff A. C. Gladioux arrived and took Stearns to jail. Stearns is a retired painter.

James M. Barrett, president of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, Sam W. Greenland, general manager, and H. E. Vordornmark, auditor, were in Indianapolis Tuesday, on business connected with the traction company.

"Judge me by what I have done," said the all-conquering Napoleon. Judge this great store by what it has accomplished in its half century of public service. Foster's.

will be one of some weeks. Mrs. Alden's terested in knowing that she has been in New York city for three months taking a course in domestic science at Columbia university and will complete in course on Feb. 8.—Mrs. Alden's visit to the public schools of this city prior to of the club is often called upon to substitute in absence of regular members.

The club spent a delightful time.

A pleasant surprise was given Miss Mary Shivers when Miss Carrie Beard of Webster street, entertained the Queen

AT KEITH PALACE

A SUCKER WITH THE CARDS.

Leipzig, at the New Palace, Has a Wonderful Pair of Hands.

This is to be Elks' night at the New Palace, and the members of the antlered family tonight are going to see the most wonderful pair of hands that ever flicked a card out of a pack. These hands are attached to Leipzig, the European conjurer, whose mystifying and bewildering card tricks are so amazing that his audiences laugh at their own confusion, as he performs trick after trick, every one of them new to Fort Wayne.

The Bandalls, a man and woman, are a team of rifle and revolver experts that do some of the greatest trick shooting you'll see in many a day. They do several difficult mirror tricks and close with a clever idea, playing a melody on a suspended xylophone, using bullets from magazine rifles to strike the keys.
These two acts precede the musical hit, the Four Husbands, easily the best musical comedy of the season. Its singing, dancing, gaily and funny, with Ralph Whitehead in a conical role, that of Jack Mortimer, the disolute, but handsome young fellow whose too busy dodging the police to think of getting married, even to so pretty a trick as Phyllis Van Courtland (Betty Caldwell). The book is well above the average, while William Friedlander has given to the score some of his best lyrics.

AT THE TEMPLE.

The great western play, "Under Arizona Skies," which is being presented the first half of the week by the Temple players, is creating unusual interest among the theater-going public. "Under Arizona Skies" is a melodrama in four acts and is presented by Nelson Compton and a cast of characters composed of the well known Temple players, and in which Miss Ethel Hemmer, the leading lady, plays the part of the fat woman, known as Peppa.

The first act shows the ranch house and the Arrow ranch, the second act shows the shelter on the boundary of Arrow ranch and the third and fourth acts are the same as far as scenes are concerned as the first.

Thursday the Temple players will present "East Lynne" by request of Temple patrons, who have not had an opportunity of seeing the play in Fort Wayne for some time.

"Under Arizona Skies" being played tonight and tomorrow night, is being substituted for "The Vampire." Manager Deamer was unable to procure the skit he had intended and the change was necessary. "The Vampire" will appear later.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"LET KATY DO IT."

Thrilling Drama With Jane Grey as Star at Jefferson.

The attraction at the Jefferson today is an unusual one in name as well as theme, "Let Katy Do It." A thrilling tale of love and adventure that takes you from the quiet of a New England homestead to the dangers of a savage mining camp, with such a delightful plot that interest never falters. It will furnish an entertainment the equal of which you have seldom had the pleasure of witnessing. The bravery and daring of seven little youngsters, the charm of Jane Grey and the fine acting of Tully Marshall form an unusually attractive production.

Sam Bernard.

In "The Great Pearl Tangle" Sam Bernard, the well known comedian, makes his first picture appearance and acquires himself in his usual humorous style, creating much merriment with his Ber-nardisms.

Pauline Frederick.

Tomorrow this famous beauty will make her appearance in "The Spider," a Paramount production of unusual quality.
Miss Frederick plays a dual role in this

AT THE GRAND.

Today Helen Gibson, in "Tapped
Wires," will be shown for the last time.
In this one reel thriller Helen escapes death by leaping from an auto that plunges down a high embankment, carrying with it the three hold-up ruffians to their death many feet below. Tomorrow and Thursday is Bushman days at the Grand, featuring Francis X.
Bushman in a three act drama, "In the Plum Tree." This is another prize mystery story, published in the Ladies' World, showing many thrilling incidences of love, romance and war, with a climax that is unique.

High Price of Coal Now

Proving Serious Problem in Rome.

Rome, Jan. 15.--(Correspondence of The Associated Press).--With American coal scarce because of the ship shortage and selling here from $25 to $40 a ton, according to quality, the solution of the problem of securing coal in quantity and at reasonable prices has become one of the most pressing public and domestic questions in Italy.

While the situation will finally result in governmental measures for wider use of water power, popularly known as "white coal," to secure heat, light and motor power, pending such action various temporary measures are either being urged or adopted. In a current issue of the organ of the minister of public works, Italian cities are urged to save coal by burning fewer street lights at night, following the example of London, Paris and Venice, and force their citizens to go to bed early.

There is no doubt that the two gas companies of Rome would approve such a war measure. One of the curious results of high coal prices is that in Rome the users are the gas companies, not the consumers.

It is estimated that the gas companies have already lost 3,000,000 lire, as a result of their contracts with the city, made in peace times, to furnish gas at 18 centimes the metric cube, where it is costing them 32 centimes to furnish it.

From the point of view of the poor people, Rome is thus the most fortunate of European capitals. London, Paris, Venice, may turn off their lights as a precaution against aeroplane attack, but in Rome, where no such fear is entertained by the military authorities, the streets are as brilliantly lighted as ever, they were at the height of the tourist season and the Romans continue to find happiness and warmth in late street promenades and coffee drinking on the sidewalk cafes.

While coal may soar to famine prices, the rest of 1916 will be made of coal.

cannot increase, under the city contract, so the people, rich and poor alike, are installing gas heaters as fast as possible.

FIND BODY OF UNKNOWN MAN

Boys Make Discovery Near Bedford That Recalls Tragedy

Bedford, Ind., Feb. 1.--The nude body of a man was found by boys near Whit-to river at a point across the river from P. R. R. The body was in such a condition that identification is impossible. Some persons believe the body is that of Lafayette Squires, who appeared was drowned in March, 1913, when hunting with Tilden Smith, a druggist. This theory is not generally believed, however. Squires lived in a hut near Ft. Riter, and little was known about him. Smith's body was found, but that of Squires was never recovered, which caused some persons to believe that Squires had died. To finding of the body has recalled the tragedy.

THE MINK IS A RISKY FELLOW

(By Morris Ackerman.)
One of the main fur hunters found practically all over the American continent is the mink. The animal is of the weasel family, but unlike the weasel, spends most of his time in water. Being a good swimmer, the mink seeks food from water, eating fish, frogs, crayfish, mice and rats. Muskrats, rabbits and even barnyard fowl are often his prey, too.

The home of the mink is generally burrowed in stream banks. As a rule, the animal is not hard to trap. He takes chances with an uncovered trap in his anxiety to find food.

It is well to know something of his habits before placing traps. The mink rubs up and down stream, investigating hollow logs, holes under roots of fallen trees, cracks in rocks. As a rule he almost always follows the same route. When a trapper finds the path he knows where to make a set.

Place a trap at the entrance of any of the places usually visited by mink or make an enclosure of sticks, covering it with brush and placing the bait inside. Another way is to set a trap under water along a steep bank, or near a rock, placing the bait about sixteen inches above the set.

Bait with fresh fish, frogs, pieces of rabbit meat or heads of birds. Use No. 1 or 1½ traps.

BLUFFTON AND ZANESVILLE MEET.

The Bluffton Maroons and the Zanesville five meet at the Concordia gym on next Thursday evening to decide the championship of Wells county. Zanesville is the best drawing card in basketball around these parts and the clean, snappy game put up by Everett Scott's delegation makes Bluffton a favorite, too. There ought to be a good crowd out as the teams will put up a terrific fight and it will be interesting. Zanesville discovered last week that it could put up a clean brand of basketball and get away with it, and there are rumors along the south county line that it will repeat.

The degree staff of Fort Wayne lodge, No. 14, I. O. O. F., will give a dance in the hall at Calhoun and Wayne streets Thursday evening.

WHICH PROVES THAT SOME WOMEN HAVE QUEER TASTES

Women of New York have become enthusiastic about wrestling since the game was revived there by an international tournament. Each night bouts are held at the Manhattan opera house, women, elegantly gowned, attend and streets in the vicinity are lined with thousands.

When Joe Stecher appeared in New York for the first time, meeting the Masked Marvel, there were 2,000 women among the $500 persons who saw the match.

PROSPECTS FOR INDUSTRIAL BASEBALL LEAGUE THIS SEASON BRIGHTEN

Following the suggestion on the sport page of the Saturday Sentinel that a shop league should be organized to play Saturday afternoon ball through the coming season, several enthusiasts have stepped forward to assist in the forming of the organization.

Among them is R. H. Hannum, for several years manager of the Pennsylvania shop team, an organization that continued successfully after the shop league had broken up, and has played regularly for the past six years.

(Bowers, Ross, Western Gas and Elec.

trick works are among the teams yet to be heard from, and it is hoped that some fan or fans in each of these shops will stir up enough interest to get a representative to a meeting to be called in the near future.

One hears that the shop league will not pay because it once broke up. But even in professional ball it is a good thing to give a town a rest now and then, and when the game is revived it starts with a renewed enthusiasm. This is the year of all years for shop league ball and a Saturday afternoon league should be a go from the start.

The former record of the New York stage was held by Hoyt's "A Trip to Chinatown," which ended a run of 670 performances in August, 1909. Prior to that Henry E. Dixey in "Adonis," held the record for 634 performances. The nearest approach to this was the record of Laurette Taylor in "The Girl of the Year," which ran for 604 performances in 1912-13.

The prices for the Griffith spectacle, which was the first combination of the photo-drama and musical spectacle ever given to the world, ranged from 25 cents to $2.00. The average paid attendance was about 75 cents per capita, making a total gross receipt for the New York run of over $600,000. This is the greatest take for this space of time ever known by any theatrical offering in the world as these figures have been amplified by record breaking runs simultaneously in Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Atlantic City, N. J. About this time and since, twelve companies have been touring the central and eastern states under the Griffith direction to enormous business, and gross weekly receipts often exceeding $125,000. In addition the spectacle has a run of 22 weeks in Los Angeles and 17 weeks in San Francisco to its credit and has turned its 100th performance in London, England. Over 5,000,000 people have seen the production.

MAN AND DOLLAR EMIGRANT BASIS

Falling Off in Immigration Means Loss of Many Millions.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 1.—Speaking before the convention of the Society to Eliminate Economic Causes of War in Faneuil Hall, Walter Wood, a Philadelphia machinery manufacturer, said the United States is losing $349,000,000 a year, or, rather, failing to gain that amount, through the drop in immigration caused by the war.

He said, in part:

"The total excess of the incoming over the outgoing in the year, ending June 30, 1915, was but 122,400. This is but 17 per cent. of the smallest figures of any of the past nine years.

"It seems unnatural, and in some degree shocking, to place a value upon a human being as a machine for producing wealth, but so long as the welfare of the world is dependent upon the industry of its people, so long will this value be real.

"Some of us can recollect, how, but a little over 50 years ago, a likely colored woman—especially if two or three young children were thrown in—would bring on an auction block from $400 to $500. A stalwart male negro worker would fetch from $500 to $800, and when they were skillful in trades, from $800 to $1,000.

"But more to the point is the cost of raising the newcomer from his childhood to his productive age.

"For feeding, clothing, and the other necessities of life, even in a country where existence is the cheapest, we would hardly calculate such cost as less than $700 per unit.

"The country losing this emigrant loses this sum of money. The country receiving him gains that value without any payment.

"On the basis of this value, namely, $300 per head, the largest emigrant crop that this country has had in any one year, has been worth to the nation $355,000,000.

"The emigrant crop of last year was worth but a little over $36,000,000. Total, $349,000,000.

"This loss to the country is as great as the value of any of the leading crops except corn, and equals practically 80 per cent. of that crop."

Sagadahoc county, Maine, for what is said to be the first time in its history, closed the business of the year 1915 with every bill paid and $336 in the treasury.

F. Vance, Veith holding little Cameron C. Coffey, champion swimmer. This picture gives an excellent idea of the size of the water prodigy. Veith is the child's coach.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 1.—Cameron C. Coffey, four years old, is a human fish. He began his career in aquatics at the age of two and has now mastered all of the difficult swimming strokes and most of the fancy dives. He is champion child swimmer of the world.

Master Coffey also holds the high diving record for kids. His highest dive was 25 feet.

The boy's time for the 50 is 1 minute 29 seconds. He did this recently in the tank of the Los Angeles Athletic club, where he is an honorary member, swimming the American crawl for the entire distance. He won a silver medal.

"I got ten medals now," said the youngster, as he pulled himself out of the tank. "I got two silver cups, too, an' nine bathing suits besides. An' I can count to a hundred if I want, an' to a thousand, too—if I want."

When he swam his fifty yard race against time, his daddy went out of the plunge so that the diminutive merman couldn't see him.

"He always does better when I don't watch him," explained the father.

Cameron Coffey does not require a bathing suit. He swims just as well in all his clothes as he does in no clothes at all.

He took part in a water carnival recently in which he was required to rescue a tiny girl of his own age, who had supposedly fallen in the water. He answered his cue by plunging into the tank with all his clothes on and pulling the little girl out to safety.

"Some swimmer, this boy; he's part duck, and you simply can't drown him," says F. Vance Veith, swimming instructor at the Los Angeles Athletic club, who taught the child what he knows about watercraft.

Charley Lee Finds First-Rate Substitute for the Rum Shop

Four Years Ago Spokane Man Started Lodging House for Down-and-Outs

—Not Fastidious, But Good Place to Sleep and Enjoy Free Bath.

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 1.—Charlie Lee, of Spokane, has found the real substitute for the saloon.

He found it so many years ago he forgets when the idea first came to him. But he has had it in practical use here for many years in his 10- and 15-cent "Owl" rooming house.

In all of the states which went dry on Jan. 1, there is anxiety over what's to become of the man who made the saloon his club and his home.

Numerous substitutes have been suggested, among them coffee houses, reading rooms, lodging houses with motion pictures in connection, and dozens of others.

Meantime Charlie Lee has been demonstrating the success and efficiency of his substitute. He handles an average of 200 men daily, and he is known from here to New York.

Here are the rules by which Charlie Lee has made his rooming house successful and famous:

Give the common laboring man a place where he can congregate with his kind and feel at home.

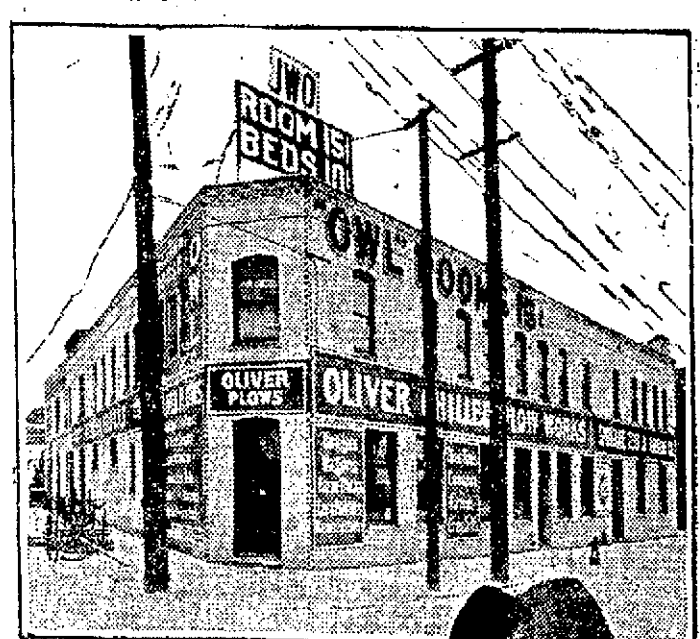

Give him a home where no one will interfere with him, with his ideas or his way of living, where he can do as he pleases.

Give him a place he can come in drunk if he wants to—though Charlie Lee looks for few drunks from now on—where he can come early or late, and can go when he "leaves."

The Owl is no place for the fastidious. It is just a place to sleep and get warm and wash and patch up and mingle with your kind—if you're of the sort that's found there.

All day and most of the night there are a dozen or more men sitting around the huge stove in the lounging room. They smoke and dry their socks and shirts and shoes. They discuss the war and socialism; cabbages and kings.

periodicals and the men have them free. He also gives them:

Free shower baths.

Free shaving utensils.

Free soap and free washbasins, with water at 100 degrees, where they can boil the "suspicion" out of their clothes. Free storage for all baggage.

Free needles and thread, free medicines—and everything for their comfort and conveniences," as Charley puts it.

The charge for all this is 10 cents a night for a bed in the dormitory, or 15 cents a night for a "room." The room is nothing more than a wooden cell, six by seven feet, just large enough for a half-size iron bed and a chair. You may have a room two nights for 25 cents, or a bed in the dormitory a week for 60 cents. It is all payable in advance.

Lee runs an informal free employment office in connection. He has placed thousands of men. He says he has handled a million men at the Owl, which he founded four years ago.

It's no use to try to raise the wandering worker above his lot, for he will become suspicious and won't patronize you, in Lee's opinion, so he tries to give the down-and-outer what he wants.

Smoked Cigarettes For 22 Years

Habit Was Ruining Him, But He Conquered It in Three Days, Easily

The portrait is that of Mr. J. J. Elzarsky, a well known citizen of Elkhart, Indiana, who knew that his life was being ruined through the pernicious habit of cigarette smoking, yet could not find anything to stop it and sold the habit until he got the remarkable book that can now be obtained free.

A clergyman, Rev. M. Ross, Dayton, Ohio, testifies that after having been a slave to tobacco 41 years, he got rid of the habit entirely in a few days, greatly improving his health.

QUIT TOBACCO, GAINED 35 LBS.
Everybody in Marietta, Ohio, is talking about the big change in Mr. Elzarsky, he put on 35 lbs. in healthy flesh since getting rid of tobacco habit through the information gained in the free book which you may also easily obtain.

That he could never quit was the fear of George Ambush, Port Street, Philadelphia, who was a slave of tobacco for many years, but after getting the book, he learned how the habit could be conquered in three days. Now he writes that he is forever free from the craving and is in much improved health.

BOOK GIVEN FREE.
A valuable, interesting book on how to overcome the tobacco habit in any form has been written by Edw. J. Woods, 1212 D, Station E, New York, N. Y., and he will send it free to anyone who writes asking for it, as he is very anxious that all who are victims of the craving for tobacco, snuff, cigars, or cigarettes may save themselves easily, quickly, gently and lastingly. Eyes, heart, kidneys and stomach improved, nerve tranquillized, memory improved, vigor gained and numerous other benefits often reported.

ROBBERY AT NEW HAVEN CLEARED UP

Sheriff Gladioux and His Deputies Arrest Four Men for Job.

Jack Smith, Curt Speer, Howard Criswell and Jess Smith are under arrest and will probably be charged with highway robbery for holding up and stealing $130 cash and a note of $100 from John Roussey, a well known Jefferson township farmer.

The robbery occurred the night of January 24 in the rear of Dr. Brudi's stable in New Haven. Sheriff A. C. Gladioux and Deputies Herman Praeger and D. A. Mills, worked up the case, made the arrests and with the aid of Prosecutor Frank A. Enrick is said to have secured confessions from the men.

The actual robbery was committed by Jack Smith and Speer, who took Roussey's money away from him and then divided it with the other two, giving them small sums.

Jack Smith was put in the sweat-box at the sheriff's office Tuesday afternoon and after a while "came clean" with the story of the crime. Robert B. Garuire took the confessions of Smith and the other men.

Sheriff Gladioux has been working diligently on the case for a week and Tuesday had secured enough evidence to justify arrests and the four men were brought in.

CALLS AMERICAN DEALERS HONEST

Tell Exactly What They're Going to Deliver, Says French Financier.

Paris, Jan. 30. (Correspondence of The Associated Press).—You Americans are selling us immense quantities of supplies, some good, some inferior—at high war prices, but you do it honestly; you tell us what you're going to deliver," said Monsieur E. Almond, head of the senate finance committee, reviewing the present condition of exchange for The Associated Press.

"We are buying perhaps more than $500,000,000 worth of goods a year from you now, while, aside from silks and satins, we are selling you little of anything," he added. "That tremendous balance of trade, with the war still going on, explains why the $250,000,000 you loaned us was insufficient to equalize exchange.

"The balance of trade was always in your favor, but you, yourselves, maintained the parity of the franc by spending your dollars in travel through France.

"A billion francs—two hundred million dollars—is what we are losing annually since Americans are spending at home the money they formerly spent here, making a difference against us of something like four billion francs, which, of course, a billion and a quarter loan cannot offset.

"Exchange between London and New York is easier because English investors hold American securities to a far greater amount than we. The payments of interest and dividends on those investments relieves the situation. If France had placed in America the fifteen billion francs she loaned Russia, the interest payments would go far to equalize exchange.

"Exchange between Berlin and New York suffers from different causes. The franc is at a discount in New York because the money is continually going that way. Germany has no big payments to make; she is unable to assure trans-Atlantic transportation and can buy in only limited quantities of her adjoining neutral neighbors. She produces her own steel, coal, and chemical products, while we buy most of them in America. With us the depreciation may be considered a material and accidental circumstance. After the war, or as soon as we have bought all the steel and other war supplies we need from you, the franc will go back to par.

"The war is now costing us two and a half billion francs ($500,000,000) a month, of which one billion 800 million francs are spent in France," said Monsieur Almond, leading up the question of France's financial requirements.

"At that rate we shall have to issue another loan in the near future. The six and a half billion francs in cash produced by the loan issued in December will be spent by the month of April. By that time nearly five billion francs of the money distributed throughout the country will be available for another loan that will be floated under far more favorable conditions. The Saloniki situation, which was acute at the time of our five per cent. loan, unquestionably frightened big capital. This is well known in financial circles and is borne out by many facts connected with the loan. For instance, the number of subscribers was greater in proportion to the total amount subscribed than of any government loan issued in France."

Arab Boy Ended War; Then Started Another

M. S. SAPHIR.

London, England, Jan. 31.—The Arab tribes of Sinai peninsula, who were pro-British, are now fighting for the Germans. And the trick was turned for the Kaiser by a 20-year-old boy.

Saphir Effendi, an Arabian Jew, who acted as interpreter for correspondents in the Balkan war, started on a study tour of Europe after that war. In Berlin he was "discovered"—and sent to Sinai.

PLANNED BIG TRADE IN COUNTERFEITS

Small Boys Steal 10,000 Coupons from Printing Company.

With visions of a flourishing trade in green goods and no end of movie tickets and things to get, Toby Attwell and Benny Dickza, aged about 11 years each, and other lads whose names are unknown, made a raid Monday on the warerooms of the Fort Wayne Printing company, Washington boulevard west, and stole 10,000 5-cent coupons that were a part of a large order just completed for the No-More company, manufacturers of washing preparations and soap, in this city. Detective Sergeant Peter Junk, who is working on the case and took the two boys into custody and got their confession, recovered one package containing 1,000 coupons.

Nine thousand coupons are yet missing and if they are not recovered the Fort Wayne Printing company will probably have to stand the loss on the face value of them, which amounts altogether on face value to $400.

Young Attella, who is a Syrian, says they thought from the greenish shade on which the coupons were printed that the bundles contained counterfeit money and they believed they could "do a big business" with it.

The coupons are used by the Rub-No-More company for advertising purposes and are good for 5 cents each when purchasing the company's manufactured products. The police have the names of other boys concerned in the raid. The boys got into the Printing company's shipping room from the alley.

DECLINES TO FURNISH IT.

IF TOO FAT GET MORE FRESH AIR

Be Moderate in Your Diet and Reduce Your Weight With Oil of Kerein. Lack of fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, a serious case of obesity may result.

When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply and get from any drugist a box of oil of kerein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of kerein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood.

Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. There is nothing better.—Advertisement.

Supreme Court is Reported Deadlocked on Oregon Wage Case.

By Gilson Gardner.

Washington, Jan. 31.—It has been thirteen months since the United States supreme court heard arguments by Louis D. Brandeis on the Oregon minimum wage case. There is a rumor that the court is deadlocked four to four.

While the urgent deficiency bill was under consideration Representative Gillette, of Massachusetts, and Moore, of Pennsylvania, moved to strike out the appropriation of $2,000,000 recommended by Secretary Lane for carrying on the work of the Alaska railroad. It fell to the lot of Fitzgerald, of New York, who had originally opposed the railway, to defend this item in the bill, which he did vigorously and successfully.

In the "Greatest Nation," a new play tried out here the other night an effort has been made to dramatize the proposition that peace is more statesmanlike than war. The play is by the son-in-law of David Belasco, and while it is not much as a drama, it is interesting as a sincere effort to do what President Wilson said must ultimately be done, namely, to make peace as dramatic as war.

Representative Howard, of Georgia,

DANGEROUS VARICOSE VEINS CAN BE REDUCED

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or punches the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing. Ask your drugist for an original two-ounce bottle of Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that it dissolves clotting and wens and causes them to disappear. It can always be secured at Meyer's Drug Store.—Advertisement.

has written his name high in the hall of fame. Although representing a southern cotton mill state he has dared in the house openly and vigorously to champion federal regulation of child labor. His position has brought out in violent contrast that of Webb, of North Carolina, chairman of the judiciary committee and Brynes, of South Carolina, both of whom have urged the inalienable right of mill owners to exploit little children and the equally inalienable right of little children to drudge in ignorance and poverty.

At a recent session of the civic federation, Mrs. Archibald Hopkins reported that $6,000 has been raised for the Ellen Wilson memorial homes, and that a paid solicitor has been engaged to carry on the work. The ultimate purpose is to raise approximately $300,000, to provide decent homes for present alley dwellers. The project is the outgrowth of the great interest taken by President Wilson's first wife in the alley and slum problem in the nation's capital.

The movement to secure a tariff commission recalls the fact that there was a tariff board in 1911 and 1912, created by the Payne-Aldrich law, which made certain investigations and recommendations to congress during its existence.

These recommendations were for the most part studiously disregarded by congress in the bills passed and vetoed by President Taft. Congress never has been willing to surrender to any tariff board authority to determine tariff schedules.

OLD-TIME COLD CURE—DRINK TEA!

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Tee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Advertisement.

GOOD TIMES AHEAD

Western Gas Works Will Soon be Bustling in History.

"Come out here in a week or two and you will find this plant busier than it ever was in its history," said Supt. W. G. Kaiser, of the Western Gas Works last evening. "Our foundry is finishing and I am now looking for forty-five moulders and fifteen coremakers," continued Mr. Kaiser, "and as soon as some material now on the road reaches us, we will commence doing things in the boiler shop, which is already quite busy," he continued. The foundry is particularly busy, and Supt. Kaiser said that enough work was now on hand to keep the plant going nine months with no more orders to come in. The new machinery for the manufacture of aniline black, a dye stuff, and fuel, used in the manufacture of bulbo acid and explosives, is on the market, and the demand for the apparatus is making much business at the works that would not be there otherwise. Aniline and carbolic acid by-products of gas, which heretofore were allowed to waste.

SMOKE NUISANCE IS GETTING ITS JOLT

Inspector O'Connor's Campaign Has Produced Results.

The smoke nuisance is now taking a rough jolt as the result of a campaign inaugurated a few weeks ago by Chief Engineer Jerry S. O'Connor, of the waterworks department, who is ex-officio smoke inspector for Fort Wayne under the provisions of the ordinance passed some time ago. The twenty-four persons, firms and corporations, who were given the fifteen-day notice required by the ordinance to abate black smoke, thirteen have already complied with the law by installing devices to prevent heavy black smoke and Inspector O'Connor has been notified by thirteen that they have either had devices installed or will have them installed during the present week.

The following have devices for preventing smoke now in operation: Hoyt, Miller, Lau company, Maunee Dairy company, St. Joseph hospital, Engine laundry, Perfection Biscuit company, Baites hotel, Alt Heidelberg hotel, Evans flats.

During the week devices will be installed by the Fort Wayne Corrugated Paper company, the Anthony hotel, the Wayne hotel and the Allen county power house.

The Nickel Plate railroad has acknowledged notice of the ordinance by issuing the following instructions:

"Stony Island, Ill., Jan. 25.—To all engineers running in the city limits of Fort Wayne: Your attention is called to the Fort Wayne city smoke ordinance. An earnest effort must be put forth by all engine crews to eliminate black smoke. Free use of blower, light firing, proper handling of engine and full co-operation on the parts of engineer and fireman must be made at all times to comply with the city smoke ordinance.

"W. G. BLACK, "Master Mechanic."

Those in the city who have been notified to abate the smoke nuisance and have taken no steps to that end, will be liable to prosecution under the ordinance, which provides that every day a violation is committed may be deemed to constitute a separate offense.

TUBERCULIN TEST SHOWS WELL.

City Veterinarian Fry Gratified by Results of Work.

City Veterinarian George Fry says that the work of tuberculinizing the dairy cattle by the city health department in the region that supplies milk to Fort Wayne has been highly satisfactory so far. All dairy cattle that reacted to the tuberculin test and were slaughtered at the abattoirs were subjected to rigid post mortem examinations, being found to have tubercular lesions of various degrees. Dr. Fry states that these post mortem results further confirm the value of tuberculin as an aid in diagnosis. He also says that owing to the number of dairy herds within his jurisdiction and the shortness of the period allotted for the tests, it will be impossible to reach all herds this winter, but that it is the intention of the city health department to test every cow that furnishes milk for Fort Wayne in conjunction with the regular inspection of dairy plants and methods, feed and general condition of all persons in and around dairy premises. It is the purpose of the department to educate the producer and consumer alike in the nature of conditions that safeguard human life in relation to the milk supply and especially that protect the lives of infants in summer.

The board was informed that the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company has agreed to furnish earth to make the fills of the approaches. The board agreed to construct the approaches this year, but said construction of a bridge would have to be deferred until a later date.

The Greatest Time and Money Saver

We think of railroads, telephones, the telegraph, the wireless—but how about want ads?

They are in the same class. It used to be when a man wanted help he had to ask among his friends where he could get a good stenographer, bookkeeper, etc. TODAY he puts in a want ad and tomorrow he has only to choose from a dozen or more.

He has furniture to sell—a want ad brings many buyers.

He has a house to rent—a want ad rents it—he has a house to sell—a want ad sells it.

They ARE a great convenience, aren't they?

By J. H. SHEPHERD.

It is a common belief that potatoes run out or degenerate when grown in any locality for several years. There is no doubt of the truth of this statement under ordinary methods of growing and selecting the seed. Only three reasons can exist for "running out" or degenerating of any crop. (1) Degeneration resulting from prolonged and possibly unnatural propagation by means of tubers. (2) Deterioration caused by change to an unfavorable condition. (3) Loss of vigor due to lack of selection of tubers. The last two factors we know are operative under the usual manner of handling the crop. However, it is not always true and should never be where conditions are favorable. With experimental data on hand and similar data secured from other investigators the following statement may be safely made. That in localities having soil and climatic conditions favorable for the highest development of a crop, there will be no degeneration other than variations, and variations are as apt to be beneficial as harmful. By changing seed once in a great while varieties will be developed in other localities having similar conditions, which will be of value for introduction, but the indiscriminate change of seed merely for the sake of changing is a poor practice.

Many potato growers seem to think it necessary to change seed every few years. They do not consider the productivity of the variety they are growing, nor do they endeavor to improve its yielding capacity. It has been the custom to change seed potatoes every few years and the practice has been followed without asking the reason for it.

The potato is practically a new crop and the development of good new varieties has been rather rapid, yet new varieties now seldom surpass the standard ones in yield or quality. New varieties should not be grown until they have been well advertised and a market demand created.

The potato breeder and the expert station can better afford to determine the value of new varieties and exploit their superiority. In cases where the crop runs out, it is the result of poor selection, poor soil or the presence of disease and not degeneration.

Another common fallacious belief is that potatoes mix in the hill. The tubers of most varieties vary greatly as to size, color and shape and this has led many to believe that different varieties mix or cross when planted closely together. Selection should be made for uniformity every year to overcome this character. Potatoes of white and blue varieties have been planted together in hills at the North Dakota and other experiment stations and no mixed or blended color appeared.

Hill selection should be followed on all potato farms. The manner of reproduction is different than of most farm crops. This has led to some confusion as to inheritance of characters. The tuber grows at the end of a short underground stem of which it is an enlarged portion. Our commonly cultivated varieties seldom blossom and produce seed, and this method of reproduction is not employed except by potato breeding specialists. The proper method for the potato grower is to select tubers from the best plants always starting with the best variety possible to secure.

Selection for disease resistance may and should be practiced. This cannot be done with entire satisfaction unless the soil is badly infested with diseases, a condition which the practical grower should avoid. Blights and rots may be overcome to a certain extent in this manner. Some varieties show greater resistance than others and should be grown when any disease is prevalent. Treatment of the seed and spraying of the vines are more effective if the work is well done. It would be desirable, however, for the potato specialist to develop resistant varieties. There is at present, no such thing as potatoes immune to the common diseases.

The time of planting should be regulated in accordance with the soil, climate and market conditions. Early planting usually gives the best results. Good judgment alone will determine the time to plant.

The method of planting varies to some extent, but where large areas are to be grown the machine planter is the only practical way. If a good planter is used and care is taken to regulate it good work can be done.

Depth of planting is another practice which should be regulated by general conditions, soil, climate, time of planting, moisture and cultural methods. In dry seasons deep planting is best, when everything is considered, three to four inches will prove to be the best depth to plant. Less than three inches would be considered shallow and more than four inches deep planting. Four inch planting gave 4 1/2 per cent heavier yield than three inch planting and 8 per cent more than any greater depth of planting, in experiments in planting 3, 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 inches, respectively. Deep planting produced the best quality and the larger per cent of merchantable tubers. Deep planting will be found advisable on weedy land as the narrow row then be used freely without endangering what is meant by quality in potatoes. In some countries a heavy, soggy cooking potato is thought to possess the highest quality. In the United States most people prefer a potato which will become mealy when cooked. The potato should not, however, be so starchy that it will break the skin or fall to pieces before becoming cooked. For slicing and frying a soggy potato is desirable. From these statements it will be seen that quality in potatoes is dependent upon one's taste.

Meatiness is dependent upon the variety and the soil, climate and maturity. A dry sandy soil produces the meatiest potatoes. An immature potato seldom cooks well and from our standard is of very poor quality. If the tubers are so green that the skin is easily bruised they will be inferior in keeping quality. Maturity is indicated by a corky surface and the presence of lenticles. When the vines are badly injured by insects or diseases, the tubers do not mature and such a crop will have a poor quality.

There are many characters which indicate quality, percentage of dry matter, size, specific gravity, appearance, flavor, surface, smoothness, color of skin and flesh, depth of eyes and texture. These characters need no further description.

Only one variety of potatoes should be grown in any locality, especially if for market. Where this custom prevails, a reputation is soon established, and buyers are always anxious to visit such places. This is an easy and effective way to advertise the crop.

Practically all potato damage done by diseases and insect enemies may be prevented by a good system of farming and proper treatment of seed and vines. The work should be begun before or as soon as any disease makes its appearance. Prevention is the only remedy, there is no cure for the infected growing plant.

est prices at contests with the leaf produced therefrom. Over 700 pounds of this seed was distributed during one year.

The basis of seed selection for the grower is to choose the best variety now grown in his locality and by carefully inspecting the crop, mark the superior plants and preserve them for seed. The selection of individual plants should be based upon the following points: vigor, spread and shape of leaves, number and arrangement, prominence of midrib, texture and thickness, liability to produce suckers, color, attachment of leaves to stem.

ROTATION PREVENTS DISEASES AND INSEST PESTS

The successive crops in any rotation should be so selected and arranged that no two upon which the same pest may thrive will be grown in succession. The principles of disease control by means of crop rotation are based upon the fact that certain pests can thrive only on certain kinds of plants. Therefore, when the crops are changed and the food supply thereby cut off, the pests must perish or be greatly reduced in number.

If farmers kept books there would be a great many better ones than there are today.

A Hardy House Plant

One of the most satisfactory of house plants on account of its extreme hardiness, is commonly called the "Iron Plant." Its real name is aspidistra variegata. This plant can stand a great deal of neglect, although one should not purchase a plant with that particular end in view. The iron plant is naturally a long-lived plant, sending up new leaves from the root even though not well taken care of.

The leaves are glossy and of a bright dark, rich green, with lines of white or very light green running through them. They are sometimes compared to the leaves of growing corn, so healthy and hardy are they.

A good fertilizer for house plants is made of two ounces of ammonium phosphate, one and three-fourths ounces sodium nitrate, and one and one-half ounces ammonium sulphate. Mix and dissolve in five pints of water. Four ounces of this solution should be mixed in five gallons of water for feeding plants.

BLOODY MILK.

Bloody milk is caused by a derangement of the glands of the udder. The trouble is not contagious and the milk from the teats that do not give bloody milk is fit for use. Bathe the udder for fifteen minutes with cold water after each milking, then inject a teaspoonful of the following into the teats or teats that the bloody milk comes from after each milking: Mils. 50 grains of tannic acid, 2 ounces of glycerine, 2 ounces of water. Shake up before using. Continue this treatment for several weeks if needed.

RESULTS OF SPRAYING.

The writer visited an orchard in Pennsylvania late in the fall just as the apples were being stored as gathered from the trees and it was a genuine pleasure to see the bins of the fruit house filled with the splendid fruit. The owner of the orchard benefited in spraying and his apples showed it. The most pleasing feature of all was to find the annual sprayings had cleared the trees of scale, not a trace of the pest being visible on any of the fruit, while the trees appeared entirely free from it.

GOOD PROFITS FROM WINTER TOMATO GROWING

Next to the potato, the tomato stands, perhaps, at the head of the list of garden vegetables in commercial importance. In Maryland, New Jersey, Delaware, Ohio, Indiana, and to a rapidly increasing extent in West Virginia, the crop is of special importance, while the greenhouses of New York and New England and the newly developed truck fields of Florida endeavor to supply the demand for this fruit in winter.

By far the larger portion of the area devoted to this crop is employed in supplying fruit for the canning factories, and it is the demand of the canneries which more than any other has given the great impetus to tomato culture.

It is shown that the canning industry has increased from a pack of about 3,000,000 cases of 24 cans each to 13,000,000 cases in ten years. Professor Munson, of West Virginia Experiment Station, states that the average yield per acre in this country, as grown for the canneries, is 125 to 150 bushels, but that the man who makes a specialty of tomatoes will not be content with less than twice the amount named. "It is better to cultivate fewer acres and cultivate them well than to attempt to cover too much ground. Even at 200 bushels per acre, however, the returns will be far greater than can be derived from wheat, corn, or other farm products."

In field culture one of the most important problems in tomato culture is that of earliness. As a rule, plants purchased of the local dealers are drawn and "leggy," being crowded together in small boxes. When set in the fields too often the soil is hard and dry and the shock is such that several weeks are required for the plants to recover, and no fruit sets until late in the season. In general, the weak plants are not worth setting.

The notion that tomatoes do better upon relatively poor soil is erroneous. While it is doubtful if an excessively heavy application of stable manure would be profitable, a liberal application, such as would be given for a good crop of corn, may nearly always be used with advantage. Some of the best tomato soils are the newly cleared areas designed for orchard planting. On these soils an application of 500 pounds of a good high grade complete fertilizer will usually be found advantageous. Trimming the vines in mid-summer as a means of hastening maturity and increasing the yield of fruit is frequently recommended, but seldom practiced, even by amateurs. In the writer's experience the results obtained justify greater emphasis of this point.

Tomato Growing in Winter.

Successful tomato culture under glass depends as much upon the man in charge as upon conditions. Eternal vigilance and the exercise of good judgment on the part of the grower are more essential than strict adherence to set rules. The crop is one which demands constant care and intelligent management, but under suitable conditions the returns are very satisfactory, and the product meets a ready demand at good prices.

The most important conditions for forcing tomatoes are: A warm, light house—one having a two-thirds span facing the south being preferable—strong bottom heat, rich soil, careful training, uniform temperature, care in watering and pollinating, and, as before suggested, good judgment and constant watchfulness on the part of the grower. Bottom heat is not absolutely essential to success, but the crop matures more quickly if given this condition.

To make the best use of the house two crops should be grown during the season. This will bring each crop on at a season when the expense of heating during a part of the time will be slight. Plants for the first crop should be started as early as the 1st of August. If two or more houses are available, a second sowing should be made in about three weeks, to give a succession. For the second crop seed should be sown during the latter part of October.

The plants are treated in every way as for outdoor culture till handled the last time. For fruiting some prefer benches, with about 6 inches of soil; but, in the writer's experience, the best results have been obtained from the use of boxes 13 inches square and 12 inches deep. In the bottom of the boxes is placed a layer of charcoal, broken pots, or "clinkers" from the furnace, after which soil, consisting of three parts good garden manure, is filled in to within 2 or 3 inches of the top. Each box will hold 4 plants, and the check caused by the partial confinement of the roots seems to be of value in hastening maturity. If the solid bed fused instead of the boxes, the plants are set about 16 inches apart each way, thus occupying a little more than 1 square foot of floor space for each plant.

Best returns usually follow where the plants are trained to a single stem. Flax cords about the size of wool twine, are fastened to the corners of the boxes & to wires placed parallel to each row for that purpose, and attached above a wire running lengthwise of the building, on the rafters or sashbars. The plants are secured loosely to its support by means of short pieces of raffia. All side shoots should be pinched out as soon as they appear and when the plants are about 5 feet high, or when 4 clusters of fruit have set, the terminal buds should be pinched off. The vitality of the plant will then be expended in the development of fruit. If the plants are not eared back, other fruit clusters will form, but these scattering later waters will unduly prolong the fruiting season without giving sufficient financial return to warrant delaying the removal of the old plants.

As the fruit sets the clusters should be supported by means of small cord or piece of raffia passing around the main stem above a leaf, thus forming a sling. At this time, too, it is well to stir the surface of the soil and work in a quantity of well-rotted manure or to give frequent applications of liquid manure.

The temperature of the house should be as nearly uniform as possible—about 60 degrees F. at night and 70 degrees in dark weather, & 80 degrees or even higher on bright sunny days. All cold drafts and sudden changes of temperature should be rigidly avoided.

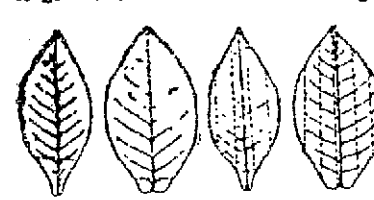

As regards profits from forcing tomatoes, Professor Munson states that his experience is limited to New York and New England, where, owing to the low temperatures and the excessive number of dark, cloudy days the yields were not large.

In Maine the yield per plant of the best forcing varieties was 2 1/2 pounds. In New Jersey the average yield reported is somewhat larger. On the basis of 3 pounds per plant, however, the returns at 30 cents per pound, or 25 cents at wholesale, are very profitable, being about 50 cents per square foot of bench space for each crop. Of course these figures can not always be relied upon, for unforeseen conditions frequently arise; but, on the other hand, the experienced gardener will by the use of other crops, as lettuce, radishes, and cucumbers, utilize the space in the house so as to provide against these unforeseen factors. The opinion is expressed that "as a simple business proposition," tomato growing offers excellent opportunities.

BETTER LEAF WILL BRING BETTER PRICES

By E. P. SANDSTEN.

The improvement of Wisconsin tobacco began in 1903 with the selection of a good type of home-grown Connecticut-Havana seed, which was pronounced by leading buyers and growers as the most desirable type for Wisconsin. The work was taken up as a result of numerous complaints of tobacco manufacturers concerning the quality and size of leaf produced. Careful selection of seed has been practiced for several years with the result that a pure type of tobacco with good leaves, fine texture and large yielding qualities, is being grown. The seed of this type has been distributed to growers, who have taken the highest prices at contests with the leaf produced therefrom. Over 700 pounds of this seed was distributed during one year.

The basis of seed selection for the grower is to choose the best variety now grown in his locality and by carefully inspecting the crop, mark the superior plants and preserve them for seed. The selection of individual plants should be based upon the following points: vigor, spread and shape of leaves, number and arrangement, prominence of midrib, texture and thickness, liability to produce suckers, color, attachment of leaves to stem.

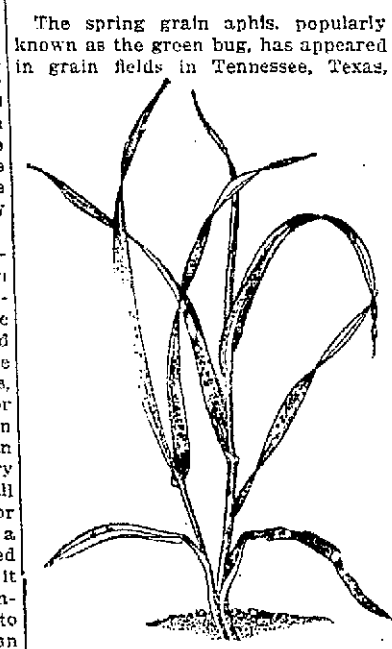

ROTATION PREVENTS DISEASES AND INSEST PESTS

The successive crops in any rotation should be so selected and arranged that no two upon which the same pest may thrive will be grown in succession. The principles of disease control by means of crop rotation are based upon the fact that certain pests can thrive only on certain kinds of plants. Therefore, when the crops are changed and the food supply thereby cut off, the pests must perish or be greatly reduced in number.

If farmers kept books there would be a great many better ones than there are today.

THE DESTRUCTIVE GREEN BUG HAS APPEARED

The Spring Grain Aphid on Wheat Plant.

The spring grain aphid, popularly known as the green bug, has appeared in grain fields in Tennessee, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, and in northern New Mexico, and it is probable that it is also in southern Missouri and Arkansas. The danger of this pest doing serious damage in the spring depends to a great extent upon the weather between now and the middle of April. If the temperature during this period is sufficiently high to enable the green bug to breed throughout the winter, and at the same time sufficiently low to prevent its principal natural enemy—a minute black, four-winged fly—from developing, a serious visitation over large areas may be expected.

In all the States where the green bug has made its appearance grain growers should watch their fields carefully. If any spots appear where the grain changes from green to yellow in color, these should be plowed under as deeply as possible and the ground harrowed and rolled. It is from spots of this character that the green bug spreads over the remainder of the fields. If straw can be spared for the purpose, it may be spread over the infested patches and burned. This destroys the pest as effectively as the plowing under of the ground.

Ordinarily, the green bug is kept in check by the minute fly already mentioned. This parasite lays its eggs in the body of the green bug, and the young, hatching from the eggs within the body, ultimately cause the death of the bug. These parasites are found in a considerable number of insects which are closely related to the green bug. Under favorable temperature conditions they will probably increase until their numbers are sufficient to overcome any material increase in the numbers of the green bug. They are not, however, able to withstand a severe weather as the green bug itself, and it is important, therefore, that the farmers in the regions likely to be affected by the latter take the necessary steps immediately for their own protection.

GOOD BUTTER ALWAYS IN DEMAND.

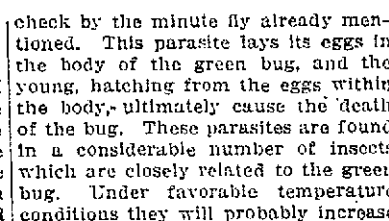

There is plenty of room today for the private dairyman who wants to market his cream in the form of butter. Because the creameries have nearly monopolized the retail city trade is no reason why butter made on the farm should not compete successfully with the best of the creamery butter. This class of butter, which is made from but one herd of well-bred cows and from separated sweet milk, should form one of the most delicious articles of food, and can always command fancy prices when it reaches the right people. It requires some business ability to work up a select trade for any home product, but it is not at all difficult to create a demand for a certain brand of butter among those who know a good article when they see or taste it, and are willing to pay a little extra for what suits them.

KEEP UP STEAM IN COLD WEATHER.

In our own homes our fires are rekindled according to our feelings; as the cold becomes intense we make larger fires, using more fuel to heat each apartment.

So in the case of the cows. With a fall in the temperature more fuel should be supplied in the form of food for the purpose of producing a larger degree of heat and more completely warming the body of the animal.

PROTECT THE FRUIT TREES.

If your young trees were mulched and not properly protected from mice and rabbits, you will probably be surprised when you visit the orchard to find that many of them have been ruined. Mulch is a good thing for the trees, but it is also a good thing for mice, as it affords them the best protection during the winter and they gather in large numbers around the foot of the trees and eat away the bark.

Protection is easy. The best material is wire screening, although some use tarred paper and veneer from wood. Some orchardists practice tramping snow around the base of their trees, but sometimes this is neglected and the trees are injured before the work is accomplished. The protectors should be pressed into the ground deep enough to prevent the mice from crawling under. Personally I prefer wire screening, but in case tarred paper is used it should be promptly removed in the spring to prevent injury from sealding.

By putting some care into the fattening of water fowls the farmer's wife will be able to realize more out of them. She will be in shape to solicit orders for fine table water fowl, and once her name is established she will have more orders for them than she can fill.

It is a sad mistake for a man to make a good crop of grass into poor hay.

DOGS AS CARRIERS OF DISEASE TO STOCK

By M. C. HALL, Ph. D.

The dog in the country is a useful and pleasant adjunct to the farm if he is properly controlled and cared for, but when neglected, may readily become a carrier of disease to stock, in addition to gaining opportunity to kill sheep and destroy gardens and other property. Dog ordinances as a general rule, have been intended chiefly to curb the dog's power of doing harm by attacking, biting, killing or running sheep or stock. The part that he plays as a carrier of diseases to animals only recently has been recognized, according to the Department of Agriculture, which has issued a bulletin (No. 260) on the subject, "The Dog as a Carrier of Parasites and Diseases."

Of the diseases carried to stock by dogs, the foot-and-mouth disease is probably of the greatest interest at this time. In this case the dog acts as a mechanical carrier of infection. The dog which runs across an infected farm easily may carry in the dirt on his feet the virus of this most contagious of animal diseases to other farms and thus spread the disease to the neighboring herds. In infected localities it is absolutely essential, therefore, to keep all dogs chained and never to allow them off the farm except on leash.

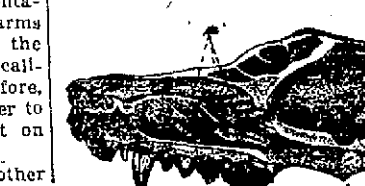

There are, however, many other maladies in the spread of which the dog takes an active part—rabies, hydatid, ringworm, favus, double-pored tapeworm, roundworm, and tongue worm are often conveyed to human beings in this way. It occasionally happens also that the dog helps fatten and ticks in transmitting bubonic plague or the deadly spotted fever.

Hydatid disease is caused by the presence in the liver, kidneys, brain, lungs, and other organs, of a bladder worm or larval tapeworm. Bladder worms are often as large as an orange and may be larger. A dog which is allowed to feed on carrion or the raw viscera of slaughtered animals may contain numerous tapeworm heads. These tapeworm heads develop into small segmented tapeworms in the intestines of the dog. The tapeworms in turn develop eggs which are passed out in the excrement of the dog. The eggs are spread broadcast on grass and in drinking water where animals can get at all or part of a bladder worm containing numerous tapeworm heads. These tapeworm heads develop into small segmented tapeworms in the intestines of the dog. The tapeworms in turn develop eggs which are passed out in the excrement of the dog. The eggs are spread broadcast on grass and in drinking water where animals can get at all or part of a bladder worm containing numerous tapeworm heads. These tapeworm heads develop into small segmented tapeworms in the intestines of the dog. The tapeworms in turn develop eggs which are passed out in the excrement of the dog. The eggs are spread broadcast on grass and in drinking water where animals can get at all or part of a bladder worm containing numerous tapeworm heads.

Prevention on the farm consists in so restraining the dog that he can not get at carrion or raw viscera. Viscera should be boiled before being fed to dogs and should never be thrown on the fields. If not cooked and fed, viscera and carcasses should be burned, buried with lime, or so disposed of as not to be accessible to dogs. Proper feeding of the dog is essential, and the owner who does not feed a dog properly has no right to keep one.

The parasite which causes gid in sheep somewhat resembles the hydatid worm. A dog allowed to eat the brain of a gidly sheep may swallow this parasite and later distribute the eggs of the resulting tapeworm over the pasture. Sheep which graze which they eat, in the case of sheep, dogs it is important to administer vermifuges often enough to keep them free of these worms. In the case of sheep measles, the bladder worm in the meat, typical of this disease, is swallowed by the dog and again the

Of the external parasites which dogs may carry to animals fleas and various kinds of ticks are both troublesome and dangerous. The remedy is clear. The owner must keep his dog clean, not merely for the comfort and happiness of the dog, but to prevent it from becoming a carrier of disagreeable and dangerous vermin.

These reasonable measures, important to the stock on the farm, have direct connection with the health of the family. Where ringworm or other skin diseases break out among the children, or the worm parasites develop, it is well to determine whether a dirty or uncared-for dog may not be carrying infection on his skin or hair, or be conveying disease from carrion directly to the food and persons of his friends. Even if no one is infected with disease, the folly of allowing a dog to remain dirty and have the freedom of a home where personal cleanliness and hygiene are respected, is apparent.

The land that is properly cultivated does not need rest, and therefore "fallowing" is a waste of time. Straw and hay make good nesting material.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Wheat showed fresh weakness today, the result largely of estimates that the world's visible supply exceeds by 45,000,000 bushels all previous records. Opening prices, which ranged from 1/2¢ to 3/4¢ up, with May at 1.01 1/2¢, 1.25¢ and July at 1.23 1/2¢ to 1.24, were followed by a sharp general setback, but then something of a rally.
The close was strong, 2c to 3c higher, with May 1.24 1/2¢ to 1.25¢ and July at 1.23 1/2¢.
Corn declined with wheat. After opening a shade lower to 1/2¢ up the market underwent a moderate sag all around.
The close was strong at 1c to 1 1/4¢ net advance.
Oats reflected the heaviness of other cereals.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Feb. 1.—A marked change for the better, the first in over a fortnight, came over the stock market in today's early dealings. Gains ranging from material fractions to several points were registered with practically no recessions. U. S. Steel opened at 30 1/2 to 30 3/4, soon advancing to 31 1/4, a maximum gain of 1 1/4. War shares and metals were one to two points higher, likewise oils and higher priced specialties. Crucible Steel rose 3/4 to 7 1/2 and Bethlehem Steel five to 45 1/2. Prices reacted irregularly from their early rise before the end of the first hour, the market undergoing a process of assimilation. Anaconda's heaviness also contributed to the setback, that stock declining 1 1/2 to 8 1/2. The rise was resumed with greater vigor later, however. U. S. Steel again leading the movement on its advance to 31 1/2, with continued strength in Crucible. Canadian Pacific led the rails, gaining over three points, with two for New Haven. Closely held specialties scored spectacular gains. Industrial Alcohol rising 14 to 15 1/2 and Cuban American Sugar 16 to 22. Bonds were firm.

PLUNGES TO DEATH AT WILSON'S HOTEL

Chicagoan's Body Hurtles
as President Eats.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—While President Wilson, his wife, and members of the Industrial club's executive committee were at supper on the third floor of the Blackstone hotel at about 11:30 o'clock last night the body of a man suddenly plunged out from a window in the hotel and dashed to the sidewalk.

The body struck the glass canopy over the south side (seventh street) entrance with a crash that could be heard for blocks and landed on the sidewalk in front of the hotel door.

The man was Edward Ford Johnson, of 743 Lincoln park boulevard, Chicago. He registered at the hotel at 6 o'clock last night and was given a room on the tenth floor. He was an insurance man, with offices in the Insurance Exchange building.

The sound of the fall created excitement in all parts of the hotel. Within a minute special service men rushed into the street.

Although the sound of the tragedy must have penetrated to the president's apartments, where a merry party had gathered, the first thought of the secret service officials was to keep Mr. Wilson and his wife from alarm. They were told a bundle had fallen into the street and there was no cause for alarm.

ANTWERP NEWS.

Antwerp, 6, Feb. 1.—Mrs. A. Allison was a Woodstock visitor the latter part of the week, the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Howard Shockey and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiltor Snyder and little son Donald, of Huntington, Ind., came Sunday to this place, hurriedly called here by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Geo. Mann.

The old opera house is now a scene of activity, a fine showing of Poland China bowls are now on display in the auditorium. These aristocratic wares will make their usual run to the public today.

A large entrance is being cut into the C. S. H. building, now occupied by the Smith hardware company with a large stock of goods.

Mrs. Geo. Shockey, of Woodburn, was hurriedly called to this place Sunday by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Geo. Mann.

Henry Reckford, of Payne, who owned a store at Clayton, O., has traded the same to the Kunkel place, for his grocery, located in the building at the corner of Main and Duggett streets. Mr. Kunkel moved his household goods to his new location Friday. Earl Birkhold, a son of the owner of the Antwerp store, will have charge of the business.

J. L. Johnson, one of our south Main street business men, was a Fort Wayne visitor for the latter part of the week, where he went to take a course of Turkish baths.

Little Henrietta Wilson, who was injured in this world at the Lutheran hospital two years ago by the Caesarine method, has attained her second birthday, which she celebrated Jan. 26. She is a new big healthy girl now, and the joy of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Wilson.

The many friends of Elias Kigar, who formerly lived here, are pleased to notice that the Fort Wayne newspapers have recognized him and have mentioned his steady habits. Elias is hard to shoe away from a job even for a few hours. A steady worker he is, and his friends here were aware of it, but when a fellow goes without sleep 1,100 nights he becomes a champion long distance worker, and is deserving of mention by the newspapers of his city.

Mrs. Geo. Boeb was among the passengers from this place that visited Fort Wayne Saturday, where she spent the day with friends.

Mrs. J. P. Harris, of West Unity, O., was a visitor here a few days the past week, the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Harris and family, going to Fort Wayne Saturday, where she will be the guest for a few days of her brother, Marion Perry and family, and other relatives.

Mrs. C. A. Traverer, accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Culbertson, were Fort Wayne visitors Saturday, where they spent the day shopping.

William Kudop, watchman at the erecting shop entrance gate of the Pennsylvania, was taken sick yesterday and failed to report for duty this morning. He suffers from the grip.

GIRL AGAIN LAPSES INTO STATE OF COMA

Hope That She Might Tell
of Buffalo Tragedy is Dispelled.

Buffalo, Feb. 1.—The hope that Miss Grace J. Teiper, one of the injured victims of Monday morning's tragedy on the Orchard Park road, would revive to tell of the murder of her mother and brother was dispelled today when surgeons reported that she had again lapsed into a state of coma after a brief period of semi-consciousness. In one of these moments a doctor asked her who struck her and she replied: "I don't know."

There were other mumbled words from her lips, but whether or not they gave any clue to the murder the doctors and detectives refused to say. The condition of John Edward Teiper, the second survivor of the tragedy, who was under guard of a deputy sheriff at his home in Orchard Park last night continued to improve. District Attorney Wesley C. Dudley reiterated today that Teiper would be brought to Buffalo as a material witness as soon as the doctors consented to his removal.
